CORPSE PILLAGING

Find these items on fallen foes. They're more or less worthless. Roll d20.

1	Seax	Small hunting dagger.
2	Fur Cloak	Warm, tattered coat.
3	Viking Longbow	Missing its string.
4	Broken Yew Shield	Cracked and battered.
5	Wooden Amulet of a God	Worn around the neck, a carved likeness of a god.
6	Leather-Bound Rune Book	Scruffy, leather book filled with illustrations of runes.
7	Viking Drinking Horn	Hollowed out animal horn with decorative carvings.
8	Healer's Herb Pouch	Contains dried poultice residue.
9	Flint and Steel	Can be used to start fires.
10	Fishing Net	Rolled up net for catching fish.
11	Whalebone Comb	A small comb.
12	Iron Cooking Pot	With a hook to go over a fire.
13	Horned Helmet	Probably made as a joke or for a costume.
14	Pair of Snowshoes	For easing travel through thick snow.
15	Rope and Grappling Hook	A long rope fitted with a metal hook at one end.
16	Ornamental Brooch	Could be worth something.
17	Jar of Mead	Looks good enough to drink.

CURSED ITEMS

Roll d12.

1	The Bone Ring	This ring slowly drains the wearer's life force. Every dawn they lose 1HP until the ring is removed. Test Wits DR16 to remove.
2	Hel's Coin	A coin from Helheim that brings great wealth, but every use shortens the lifespan of the owner. Flip the coin to instantly gain d100‡* Trinkets. After d6* uses, the wearer is claimed by Hel.
3	The Rusted Sword	This blade cuts through armour with ease (d10 damage, ignores armour). But every time it strikes the wielder must Test Fortitude DR12 or take d4* damage as their own body begins to rust.
4	The Unbreakable Chain	A chain strong enough to bind the mightiest foes, but each use weakens the user's soul, causing −2 to all Wits Tests for each day the chain is used.
5	Trickster's Dagger	This dagger deals 2d6* damage, but sows distrust. Every time it draws blood the wielder's companions must Test Wits DR14 or suspect treachery from the wielder.
6	Jörmungandr's Scale	Grants immunity to poison, but the wearer must Test Fortitude DR16 each week or begin to suffer a fever for d3* days.
7	The Eye of Andvari	This gemstone grants the wearer the ability to find hidden wealth at will. After use, d20* Draugr attack in d6* days.
8	Helbindr	A cursed belt that gives the wearer +1 to Might, but they slowly start becoming an undead creature. Test Fortitude DR12 each session or gain a Necrotic Mutation *(page 7).
9	Sword of the Damned	This sword deals d8* damage, but if the wielder fumbles the attack roll, the sword instantly turns on them and delivers d8* damage to its owner.
10	The Gnawing Hunger	An axe that gives its wielder +2 Might, but it must be fed constantly. After each battle, the wielder must kill a living being within 12 hours or lose 2HP permanently.
11	Freyja's Mirror	Reflects the image of your deepest desire, but using it causes the user to become obsessed with finding this desire.
12	The Scream of Luality	Next time you sleep, a shrunken Draugr head appears in your bed. When you try to rest, it screams. If you try to dispose of it, the head re-appears in your bed the next time you rest. If you scream back it disappears for good.

Necrotic Mutations

Roll d8.

1	Hel's Grasp	One half of your body becomes blackened and skeletal like the goddess Hel. The dead recognise you as kin, hesitating before attacking—or whispering secrets only they know.
2	Corpse-Eater's Maw	Your teeth elongate into jagged fangs and your breath carries the scent of the grave. You can consume raw flesh to restore strength, but the taste of the living is far sweeter than rations.
3	Frozen Veins	Your blood runs ice cold, and your skin becomes pale with blackened veins. Fire barely warms you, and frost harms you less—but your presence chills the air, making living allies uneasy.
4	Jötunn Rot	Your limbs grow unnaturally long and twisted, like the dead giants buried beneath Yggdrasil. Your grip is powerful, but wounds you suffer close sluggishly, as if death still pulls at you.
5	Wraith's Gaze	Your eyes are hollow and sunken, with the flickering glow of ghost-light inside them. The dead seem friendly in your presence, and living foes feel disgusted when they meet your stare.
6	Raven-Feast Flesh	Your body is pockmarked with deep scars and missing chunks of flesh, as if ravens have feasted on you and you did not die. You feel no pain from wounds, but healing magic struggles to mend your torn skin.
7	Call of the Void	Your shadow moves independently, sometimes mimicking your actions—or revealing movements you have yet to make. It whispers to you in the voice of lost souls, urging you toward doom.
8	Draugr's Hunger	Your body does not decay, but it does not heal as mortals do. Instead, the strength of those you slay lingers within you—your wounds knitting shut after each fresh kill. But if you go too long without battle, your flesh begins to crack and wither.

Traps

Roll d6. Test Swift DR12 to avoid.

1	Bear Trap	d4	Meant for a bear, but harmful to everyone.
2	Poison Dart	d4	Darts hurl at you from out of nowhere. On a hit, you are poisoned.
3	Hidden Pitfall	d6	A concealed pit—10, maybe 20ft deep.
4	Swinging Log	d8	Simple, but effective.
5	Rune Stone Glyph	d6	Carved runes glow as they activate. Apply any elemental damage.
6	Tripwire Alarm	–	Alerts all nearby enemies to your location.

General Quest Hooks

Roll d10.

1	A Realm in Peril	A specific realm is on the verge of destruction due to imbalance. The party must travel there and restore order, facing both natural disasters and enemy forces.
2	The Ancient One's Secret	A long-forgotten entity from the dawn of time emerges, and it offers the party forbidden knowledge in exchange for a dark deed. Accepting may bring power—but at what cost?
3	The Price of Honour	A rival warrior challenges one of the party members to a holmgang. Winning the duel grants respect and rewards, while losing could force the party to pay wergild (reparation).
4	The Hunt for a Relic	A powerful artefact has resurfaced, and both the Aesir and Jötnar seek it. The party must locate it first or be forced to deal with whichever side finds it.
5	The Call of the Norns	The Norns, the weavers of fate, summon the party to Yggdrasil, where they must help weave a specific thread of destiny—or risk unravelling fate itself.
6	A Soul for a Soul	A loved one or important NPC dies unexpectedly, and the party has the chance to journey to Helheim to bargain for their soul's return. The price may be steep.
7	The Trickster's Game	A powerful shapeshifter plays mind games with the party, impersonating gods, friends, and foes. The party must uncover the impostor's true identity before they are manipulated into disaster.
8	Alliances in Ragnarök	The party is approached by a faction or being who wants to ally with them in the coming Ragnarök. However, accepting their help may anger another powerful group or god.
9	Feast of the Dead	The dead walk the earth, seeking vengeance for their dishonourable deaths. The party must conduct an ancient ritual to send them back to Helheim, but the dead don't go quietly.
10	Yggdrasil's Sickness	The World Tree begins to wither, and the party must find the cause before it spreads to all Nine Realms. They may need to descend deep into the roots where Nidhogg gnaws, or face ancient beings guarding the cure.

ODIN QUEST HOOKS

Roll d12.

1 The Allfather's Test	Odin challenges the party to prove their wisdom. They must solve a series of riddles or risk incurring the wrath's Odin if they fail.
2 Runes of Power	Odin sends a vision of powerful runes that can shift the balance of power during Ragnarök. The party must locate and decipher these ancient symbols before their enemies do.
3 The Eye of Sacrifice	Odin demands a sacrifice from the party, perhaps an important item or even a party member's eye, to gain his favour. If they comply, they gain a powerful boon. If not, they may incur Odin's displeasure.
4 Valkyries' Choice	The Valkyries arrive to claim the soul of a recently fallen NPC, but the party has the opportunity to challenge their choice. Succeeding could gain them Odin's favour—or lead to conflict with the Valkyries.
5 Heimdall's Call	Odin sends Heimdall to lead the party on a quest to prevent an important event from tipping the balance toward Ragnarök.
6 A Vision from Yggdrasil	Odin grants the party a vision of Yggdrasil's roots, showing them hidden paths between the realms. They must decide whether to trust the visions and take the dangerous journey or stay on their current course.
7 The Ravens' Secrets	Odin's ravens, Huginn and Muninn, bring a cryptic message to the party. It hints at an upcoming betrayal, but the exact nature of the treachery remains unclear.
8 The Spear's Blessing	Odin offers to grant the party one use of Gungnir for an upcoming battle, but they must first prove their worth by completing a divine task of great difficulty.
9 Frigg's Request	Frigg, Odin's wife, asks the party to protect a sacred relic from those who would destroy it, warning that its loss could spell disaster when Ragnarök arrives.
10 The Test of Valour	Odin pits the party against one of his champions—defeat the champion in a holmgang, and they gain Odin's respect and a boon. Failure may require a personal quest for redemption.
11 The Whisper of Prophecy	The Norns send a prophecy that suggests one of the party members will betray Odin. Whether the party believes the prophecy or not, their actions will be watched closely.
12 Balancing the Realms	Odin tasks the party with restoring balance to one of the realms that has fallen into chaos. Completing this task moves the Ragnarök tracker toward Odin's favour.

Loki Quest Hooks

Roll d12.

1	The Trickster's Favour	Loki offers to assist the party in exchange for their participation in a mischievous scheme.
2	Deception's Reward	Loki secretly swaps one of the party's weapons with a cursed version (on a hit, the attack misses).
3	The Jötunn's Return	Loki arranges for the release of a Frost Giant from imprisonment. They ask the party to handle the transport of the criminal.
4	Illusions of Grandeur	The party encounters a situation where nothing is as it seems—Loki's illusions distort their reality, making it difficult to tell friend from foe. A voice from a random realm screams for help during the visions.
5	A False Ally	A trusted NPC turns out to be one of Loki's followers in disguise. The party must deal with the betrayal and decide whether to take vengeance or use the spy to their advantage.
6	The Price of Mischief	Loki's latest prank enrages a powerful figure, who now blames the party for the trouble. The party must either clear their name or face the consequences.
7	A Bargain for Power	Loki offers one of the party members forbidden knowledge in exchange for a future favour.
8	The Blood Oath	Loki orchestrates a blood oath between the party and a Jötunn clan, forcing the party to act in Loki's interests or face her wrath.
9	The Trickster's Twin	The party encounters a doppelganger of one of their members, created by Loki to cause confusion and chaos. They must decide how to deal with their double.
10	Ragnarök's Catalyst	Loki sends a powerful artefact to the party, claiming it will help them in battle—but each use pushes the Ragnarök tracker one step closer to the apocalypse in Loki's favour. Will they use it or destroy it?
11	Fenrir's Blessing	Loki leads the party to Fenrir, offering them the wolf's strength in exchange for freeing him. If they refuse, Fenrir may turn against them.
12	The Escape of Hel	Hel, the goddess of the underworld and Loki's daughter, has escaped from her realm, and it's up to the party to either capture her or ally with her in exchange for a dark blessing.

Baldr is Dead.

A hush fell over the NINE REALMS. Asgard's golden light flickered out, a dim memory. A chill wind swept through Midgard, whispering sorrow. Baldr, the god of light and purity, was dead.

The sacred groves of Asgard were silent, laughter turned to mourning. Odin, the Allfather, sat on his high throne, one eye full of grief, ready to swallow him whole. Frigga, Baldr's mother, wept inconsolably, her tears flooding the golden halls.

In the shadows, LOKI watched, a cocktail of sorrow and grim satisfaction on her face. Always the outsider, whose sharp wit had earned her admiration and distrust in equal measure.

But Baldr—he was different.

He'd been kind, a warm light in the cold, rigid world of the gods. His death wasn't just a loss; it was a sign. Ragnarök, the twilight of the gods, loomed near. Baldr's death was the first domino, setting off a chain that would shatter the world.

Warriors and adventurers found themselves in a maelstrom of despair. Baldr's death sent ripples through the realms, weakening barriers, unleashing chaos. Monsters grew bold, ancient evils stirred, reality frayed at the edges.

The sagas were unwritten, the legends yet to be forged. In the age of RAGNARÖK, even the smallest actions could have world-shattering consequences.

RAGNARÖK² LOOMS

Back when the clock of the universe hardly ticked, this rock we're on got spat out from the guts of fire and frost, *from the blood of some big-shot cosmic body named Ymir. Out pops Yggdrasil, the tree of the world, like a skyscraper of nature, tough as nails, sticking its fingers deep into the dirt of those nine spots they call realms, stitching up the whole shebang we're living in. But time's a sneaky beast, chomping away at the very thing holding it all up.

RAGNARÖK'S not just a bad day, it's the grand finale, the curtain call, the last round for the high and mighty. It's got the whole place sweating bullets, a real end-of-the-world bash that'll chew up the Nine Realms and spit 'em out. The ground's gonna dance, the sky's gonna crack like a broken window, and Yggdrasil? That big tree's gonna shake from its head to its toes. Rivers are gonna run red, the green spots'll burn like the morning after, and the mountains? Kiss 'em goodbye.

Then there's this big snake, Jörmungandr, coming out of the drink like it owns the place, spitting poison and looking for a fight. The sun and moon, those bright-eyed twins, are gonna get gobbled up by a couple of cosmic pups, turning high noon into never-ending night. Hel's doors swing wide open, and the Draugr are gonna join the party, all under the watch of that stone-cold lady, Hel.

Up in Asgard, where the gods hang their hats, things are looking grim. Odin's pacing in his shiny hall, biting his nails because he knows the score—a big bad wolf's got his number. Thunder Boy Thor's rolling up his sleeves for a throw down with the snake, a fight that's got 'final round' written all over it. And LOKI, that slick lady of trickery, is playing for the other team, stirring the pot and leading the ragtag bunch of giants.

But even with doomsday knocking at the door, there's a silver lining. It's the big chance for glory, a saga that'll get you remembered. The tough ones will stand shoulder to shoulder with the gods when the last bell rings. Their stories will stick around, etched in the big book of everything by those Norn ladies. And even if this place goes up in smoke, something new's gonna sprout, all fresh and green, thanks to the guts and glory of the ones who bit the dust.

This is Berserkr turf, where bravery and disaster are next-door neighbours, and the gods and the ghouls are squaring up. We're on the edge, looking down at the big reset button. The stories that'll be told about you? They're still waiting to be written, songs still waiting to be sung.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

III The Gods,

once towering and untouchable, were now something else—something more mortal, more fragile. Their vulnerabilities were laid bare, the cracks in their divine armour showing for the first time. They weren't the legends that stood apart from men anymore. Mortals, who once gazed up with awe, now realised they could reach out and touch the divine, maybe even push it around a bit. HEROES didn't just rise with swords in hand—they came with sharp tongues, with promises whispered in the ear, knowing full well that even gods could be bent, twisted by the right words.

The divine realm was shifting, and what was once solid as stone turned into a mess of intrigue and backstabbing. Order crumbled into chaos—every move, every word now a gamble with the future at stake. The gods, for all their power, were no different from the mortals they once looked down on. They were scrambling, just trying to keep their heads above water as the end of days loomed closer.

AND AS THE DARKNESS CREPT IN, those high, mighty lines between god and man started to blur. It got harder to tell who was who. Who was the hero? Who was the villain? In the end, they were all caught in the same brutal game, moving step by step, not knowing they were inching toward the final act of a tragedy they couldn't escape.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

4 be the Pawn or take the KING?

In the cold guts of Fimbulwinter, a real mean freeze has got the Nine Realms in a chokehold. The kind of chill that tells you something wicked this way comes. We're talking about Ragnarök, the big blackout, the showstopper of all showstoppers. And in this frostbitten scene, two heavyweights are squaring off: Odin, the one-eyed boss of Asgard, and LOKI Laufeyson, the wildcard with a knack for mischief.

Odin is a tough customer. A mix of brains, brawn, and the kind of spirit that doesn't know when to quit. He's the top dog in Asgard, keeping an eagle eye on the world, playing chess with fate, trying to outsmart a disaster that's got a reserved parking spot at the end of days.

He's the man who traded an eye for a whisper of wisdom, who'd hang from the world's spine just to eavesdrop on the universe. Now, staring down the barrel of the end times, he's pulling up his socks, ready to pay the piper, to do whatever the hell it takes to put the brakes on the endgame.

He's on the horn, rallying the troops of the Nine Realms. He's got a laundry list of Herculean errands: assemble the troops, shake hands with fair-weather friends, dig up relics with more juice than a power station, and throw a wrench in Loki's one-woman circus of chaos. The Allfather's road ain't for the faint of heart. It's a marathon of guts, of grinding it out when you're down to the wire, a testament to the will to keep the lights on.

On the flip side, LOKI is the queen of the curveball, the mistress of the long con. They say she's the bad news, but she's really the conductor of the shake-up, the game-changer, the kind that turns rags to riches, empires to ashes. She's got an eye for the endgame, too, not to torch the place for kicks, but to hit the reset button, to stir the pot until a new world bubbles up.

Lining up with Loki ain't about courting chaos; it's about betting on the wild card, riding the wave of change, being the spark that lights the bonfire of a new beginning.

It's a gamble on the new deal, the kind that could flip the world from busted to booming.

V

NOW, down on the Realm's streets, the tough guys and heroes gotta pick a side. Stick with Odin, and you're in for the long haul, keeping the world spinning as usual, throwing punches at the apocalypse.

Or side with LOKI, and you're signing up for the great unknown, torching the old to bring in the new. Playing both ain't off the table, either, there's Trinkets to be gained and blood to be spilled whichever way it ends.

ᛦᚾᛒᛒᛋᛗᚦᛁᛋᛗᚱᚫᛦᚾᛒᛒᛋᛗᚦᛁᛋᛗᚱᚫ

Choose wisely,

because the kind of story you're in, it's the sort that gets told long after you're gone. It's the kind where your name could either be cursed or praised through the ages. It's the kind of epic that's got more at stake than just your skin—it's the kind that decides whether the world gets a fresh coat of paint or goes down in flames.

So what's it gonna be? You gonna dance with Odin under the old spotlight, or take a leap into Loki's new act? The saga's yours to write, and the Nine Realms are holding their breath, waiting for the next scene. Make it one for the history books, or the swan song of an era. The Nine Realms are your stage, and Ragnarök's just waiting for its cue.

Your play, chief.

Character Creation

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Creating a Player Character

You begin with 2d6×10‡ Trinkets (if using a custom character), a waterskin with d4 uses, and d4 food.

1. Randomise your Starting Equipment.
2. Randomise your Weapon and Armour.
3. Roll for your Abilities.
4. Roll for your Hit Points.
5. Name your character, but be warned, it will not save you.

Optional Rules

1. You start by either choosing or randomising a class, then follow the instructions for that class, then roll for Equipment, Weapons, and Armour.
2. Depending on your class, you will also roll a certain number of Fates. If you don't have a class, roll a d2 for the number of Fates.
3. Use the tables (Memories of the Past, Quirks & Talents, Habitual by Nature, Beliefs & Superstitions) to flesh out your character.

If you receive a weapon as part of your class, you also roll on the Starting Weapons Table and take both. If you receive armour as part of your class, do not roll on the Starting Armour Table.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Abilities

Fortitude	Might	Guile	Swift	Wits
Parry	Melee Attack	Ranged Attack	Defend	Wield Runes
Survive Falling	Lift	Perceive	Balance	Fix Stuff
Resist Poison/ Cold/Heat	Crush	Charm	Swim	Find Your Way
	Move Objects	Stealth	Climb	Remember

To generate each ability score, roll *3d6 (adding the relevant modifiers from the either the class or array) and use the following table to determine the score:

1–4	−3
5–6	−2
7–8	−1
9–12	±0
13–14	+1
15–16	+2
17–20	+3
21–23	+4

Example: Bjorn decides to play as a Berserkr. He rolls 3d6 for Swift getting a 4, 3 & 5 for a total of 12. He then adds the +3 from the Berserkr class for a total of 15.

15 on the table above gives Bjorn a Swift modifier of +2. He adds that to his sheet and then repeats for the other abilities.*

For Player Characters NOT created with a class, roll 3d6 and add from an array of: +1,+2,+3,+4,+5 to each of the 5 rolls. The addition must be chosen before rolling the 3d6.

Example: Bjorn decides to play without choosing a class. He wants to have Might as his main ability so chooses to assign his +5 to Might. He rolls 3d6 getting a result of 11, and then adds his +5 for a total of 16.

He consults the table above and marks down +2 for his Might.

Next, he knows that he doesn't care about getting poisoned so he assigns his +1 to Fortitude. He rolls 3d6 getting a result of 6, and then adds his +1 for a total of 7. This leaves him with a −1 for Fortitude.

Now he has a +2, +3 and +4 left to assign to the remaining 3 Ability rolls.

Player Characters without a class may also chose one Feature from any of the realm based classes.

Midgard's 1 Berserkr

Berserkrs, hailing from the wild and untamed lands of Midgard, are legendary warriors feared across the Nine Realms for their unmatched ferocity in battle. They fight with the strength of the gods and the fury of wild beasts, driven by an inner rage that ignites in the heat of combat.

Berserkrs are known to charge headfirst into the thick of battle, their war cries echoing across the battlefield, shrugging off wounds that would fell lesser men.

1 Wyrd of the Wolf-Skin

Once per day, you can enter a trance that blurs the line between man and beast, lasting for d6* rounds. In this state, you are granted a +2 to attacks and can track enemies by scent. When the trance ends, Test Wits DR14. On a failure, the lingering spirit of the wolf compels you to lash out at the nearest being, driven by a hunger beyond conscious discernment.

2 Iron Vigor

The iron within your blood fortifies your will, mingling with the essence of your fallen foes. When you drink the blood of a defeated enemy, taking a full round to do so, you recover d6*HP and do double damage on your next attack. But blood is a double-edged sword—if your enemy's blood was tainted, Test Fortitude DR12. On a failure, you are afflicted with a raging fever.

3 Storm of the Aesir

Your rage summons the fury of the storm, a tempest that crackles around your weapon. Once per battle, after a successful attack, you can call upon this power, causing your attack to deal an additional d6* lightning damage.

4 Oath to the Ancestors

You are bound by blood to your ancestors—their eyes are ever upon you, judging your every deed. Once per session, you can call upon their aid, allowing you to reroll any failed attack or defence.

5 Berserkr's Toll

Pain becomes your ally, each battle etching its mark upon your body and soul. After taking damage, you can choose to channel your suffering into raw power. For every 3HP lost, you gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls for the remainder of the battle.

6 Blood Eagle Ritual

In the most desperate of moments you invoke the ancient, dreaded Blood Eagle, a ritual that demands both time and soul. This gruesome act takes a full round and can only be performed once per session.

Your next attack automatically hits, dealing maximum damage as the gods momentarily favour your brutality. But this act leaves a mark on you—Test Might DR14 at the end of the session. On a failure, the spirit of the slain haunts you, bringing nightmares and a −1 penalty to all rolls until the spirit is appeased through sacrifice or ritual.

2 Asgard's Valkyrie

Selected by Odin himself, the Valkyries are warrior maidens who move with the grace of a tempest and the inevitability of fate. Tasked with carrying the souls of the fallen to Valhalla, they stand as both guide and guardian, walking the razor's edge between life and death.

Trained in the sacred arts of battle and blessed with the Allfather's divine magic, the Valkyries command awe, their presence as ominous as the storm clouds that signal a coming reckoning.

1 Eyes of the Fallen

Once per day, you can peer into the soul of a creature, uncovering its deepest flaw, its greatest weakness—a truth it cannot hide. This revelation grants you a +2 bonus to attacks against that creature for the rest of the battle, striking with the precision of one who sees the end before it begins.

2 Wings of the Storm

Once per day, ethereal wings unfurl, allowing you to take to the skies for d6* rounds. Dive-bombing your enemies from above, your attacks gain a +2 bonus, each strike delivered with the force of a thunderclap, as if the sky itself has joined your battle.

3 Voice of the Chooser

Once per battle, you can issue a command that must be obeyed. Test Fortitude DR14. On a success, one enemy of your choice is compelled to follow your command for the next round—whether it's to stand down, turn their weapon on an ally, or flee in terror.

4 Spear of the Worthy

Once per battle, when an ally is attacked, you can interpose your spear, infused with divine protection. Test Fortitude DR14. On a success, the attack is completely negated, the force of the blow dissipating as if it had struck the unyielding will of the gods themselves.

5 Raven's Favour

Once per day, you can call upon raven spirits to scout ahead or relay information from afar. They reveal hidden dangers or secrets in the area, granting you and your allies advantage on your next Test. In their whispers, you hear the murmur of the world's hidden truths, guiding you through the darkness.

6 Valhalla's Call

Once per day, unleash a battle cry that reverberates with the spirit of fallen heroes. All allies that can hear you gain a +2 bonus to attacks for d6* rounds, their spirits lifted by the echo of Valhalla's call, as if the very halls of the afterlife are cheering them on.

5 Vanir's Blessing

The Vanir have touched your mind with the gift of foresight, a gentle nudge toward your destiny. Once per session, you may reroll any failed Test, as the threads of fate realign in your favour. Additionally, this feature allows you to sense the direction of the nearest source of water, food, or shelter when travelling.

6 Verdant Rebirth

Once per day, you may channel the primal energy of Vanaheim to restore life to the surrounding environment. Plants sprout, bloom, and intertwine around you, creating a temporary sanctuary. The flora grants the following benefits for d6* rounds:

- × Allies gain +2 to defence as the vegetation shields them.
- × Any ally starting their turn within the sanctuary regains 1HP, as the land's vitality flows into them.

1 Titan's Might

Your Might is legendary, capable of reshaping the world around you. Once per day, you can perform a feat of extraordinary power. This may involve lifting and hurling massive boulders, breaking through barriers that defy others, or delivering an additional d10* damage with a melee attack.

2 Iced Aegis

Once per session, you can summon an icy barrier that absorbs incoming harm. For the next d4* rounds, any damage you take is reduced by half as shards of frost erupt on impact to deflect the blow. Additionally, enemies striking you in melee combat during this time take 1 damage from the freezing backlash.

3 Frostbound Grasp

Your touch carries the chill of deep winter, freezing anything it contacts. Once per day, you can encase a foe or object in ice, stunning it for d2* rounds. If the target is a living creature, it takes d6* damage at the start of every round.

4 Winter's Fury

With a deep breath, you summon the full wrath of winter, exhaling a biting wind that creates a localised blizzard. Once per day, you can unleash this blizzard around you, dealing d8 damage to all enemies close to you.

5 Glacial Empowerment

The icy tundras of Jötunheim enhance your strength, grounding you in the elemental force of your homeland. When standing on snow or ice, you gain +2 to all Tests. As you move, you leave behind icy patches.

6 Ymir's Revival

Once per lifetime, when reduced to 0HP, you can call upon the ancient power of Jötunheim to encase yourself in ice. This icy shell absorbs all damage, delaying death and giving you a chance to recover. While encased, you are immobile until the ice is thawed. Only the fires of Musphelheim can melt the ice.

1 Runic Mastery

When you inscribe a Rune onto a weapon or armour, its effects are enhanced (GM discretion). For example:

1. Rune of Isa *(Weapon Inscribed): "Activate to coat your weapon in frost for d4 rounds. Each strike deals an additional d4 cold damage." This could become d6* rounds and an additional d6* cold damage.
2. Rune of Berkano *(Armour Inscribed): "Activate to create a healing aura. For the next d4 rounds, you and all allies close to you heal d4HP at the start of their turn." This could become d6* rounds and d6*HP.

2 Runic Reforging

You can reforge an item to hold two Runes simultaneously, allowing the effects to synergise for better or worse. This process takes a long rest. When using combined effects, if a fumble is rolled, the user loses double the HP and cannot use runic magic until they take a long rest.

3 Rune of Shattering

Inscribe a weapon with the Rune of Shattering to turn it into a one-use, devastating tool. Upon striking, the weapon deals maximum damage and shatters, causing a shock wave that inflicts d6* damage to anyone nearby. Only one weapon at a time can have the Rune of Shattering.

4 Smith's Resilience

Your experience in the forge has fortified your body and spirit. Gain +2 to Fortitude Tests, and once per session, negate a defence fumble, reducing its damage to 0.

5 Anvil-Bound Will

Once per session, you can call upon the ancient bond between the Dwarves and their forges to imbue either a weapon or piece of armour with temporary strength. Test Wits DR12. For the next battle:

- A Weapon gains +2 damage and the ability to ignore armour for the next d6* attacks.
- Armour negates an additional 2 damage for the next d6* rounds as molten runes briefly flare with protective power.

6 Quicksmith

Your speed and efficiency in the forge are unmatched. Once per session, upgrade or repair a weapon or piece of armour in rapid time, completing the task in just 1 hour. You can also change one inscribed Rune for another that you have seen or interacted with before.

Once per day, you can channel the volcanic power of Muspelheim, surging forward in a burst of lava and flame. Move through enemies and obstacles, dealing d6* fire damage to all in your path.

3 Pyroclastic Fist

Unleash a devastating punch fuelled by volcanic force. Once per battle, make an attack with +3. If successful, the target takes d8* damage and is knocked prone.

4 Living Flame

Once per day, you can ignite your entire body in an inferno, doubling the damage you deal for d4* rounds. However, once this blaze dies down, you are left weakened, suffering a −2 penalty to all Tests for the rest of the day.

5 Eruption Call

Once per day, summon a localised eruption of lava from the ground beneath your enemies. This eruption lasts d3* rounds, dealing d6* damage each round to those caught within it.

6 Inferno Heart

2 Soul Binding

You may bind the soul of a creature that has recently died. When a humanoid creature dies in your presence, you may attempt to bind its soul. Test Swift DR14. Once bound, the soul can be commanded to perform simple tasks—scouting or attacking with d6* damage (ignoring armour). The soul remains bound for d6* hours before fading into Helheim's mists. Only one soul may be bound at any time.

3 Hel's Embrace

Once per day, you may channel the chilling grasp of Helheim through your touch. On a successful attack, you drain d6*HP from an enemy, healing yourself for the same amount.

4 Veil of Death

Once per session, you may blur the line between life and death, making an ally appear as an incorporeal ghost. For d4* rounds, enemies will ignore the veiled target, perceiving it as though it has already passed into the afterlife. While veiled, the target cannot attack or interact with the physical world but may move freely, even passing through barriers or enemies.

5 The Spirit Path

You may summon a bridge of spirits over impassable terrain, whether a chasm, river, wall or otherwise. The spectral bridge lasts for d6* hours and can support you and your companions. Those who cross must sacrifice something to the spirits—d4*HP, a cherished tale from their Saga, or another form of essence.

6 Hel's Bargain

In moments of near death, you may strike a dark bargain with Hel herself. Once in your lifetime, when an ally dies, you may negotiate with the Lady of Helheim. Hel will allow the ally to return to life, but at a grave cost—they must strike all but one tale from their Saga. (This cannot be used if Hel is dead).

Your second item. Roll d12.

1	Wyrd-Knotted Twine	30‡	A long rope made of simple twine, woven with protective knots.
2	Smouldering Hearth Embers	60‡	A pouch of embers taken from a sacred hearth fire. Provides warmth in cold environments and can be used to light torches or fires.
3	Carved Wooden Lantern	50‡	A lantern crafted from a single piece of wood (Guile+6 hours of light).
4	Wolf's Fang Talisman	110‡	A carved wolf's fang strung on a leather cord. Grants +2 to all Tests relating to wolves.
5	Random Rune Stone	60‡	A weathered stone bearing a single, partially legible rune. Roll one random Rune.
6	Chipped Stone Axe	20‡	A crude stone axe, chipped and worn from use. A simple but effective weapon (d6 damage).
7	Foraged Healing Poultice	40‡	A poultice of crushed herbs and roots, wrapped in a clean cloth. Heals d4*HP and removes the fatigue condition (d4 uses).
8	Iron Fish Hook	40‡	A simple iron fish hook, surprisingly strong and sharp. Can be used as a makeshift weapon (d4 damage) or for fishing.
9	Thornsnapper Vine	45‡	A length of thorny vine that can be used to create a makeshift snare or trap (Test Swift DR12 to set up, d6 damage).
10	Thunderstone Shard	140‡	A jagged shard of rock said to have been struck by lightning. When thrown, deals d6* damage to everyone near where it lands.
11	Poisoned Thorns	70‡	A handful of thorns coated in a venomous sap. On a successful attack, deals d4* damage and inflicts the poisoned condition (d4 doses).
12	Raven Skull	300‡	A small, bleached skull of a raven. Can be used to invent a tale for your Saga.

MEMORIES OF THE PAST

What important memory still lingers? Roll d20.

1	The faint hum of an ancient lullaby that calms the chaos within, a thread to a time when things felt simpler, safer.
2	A scar, faded but permanent, on your arm—proof of a battle with a beast that nearly took you, its mark a reminder of what you survived.
3	A small piece of jewellery, worn and frayed, clutched close—the last piece of a loved one lost to time, their presence now only in memory.
4	The scent of pine, thick and green, floods your senses when you close your eyes, transporting you back to a time of peace, before all this chaos.
5	The warrior's chant, learned from an elder who spoke with the weight of the world in their words, echoes in your mind whenever fear tries to take hold.
6	You once witnessed something divine, something that defied reason, and the question of whether it was real still lingers in the back of your mind, unresolved.
7	A scrap of cloth, worn and frayed at the edges, from someone who disappeared too soon. You keep it close, as it's all that remains of them.
8	The taste of a long-lost meal, the warmth of it still lingering on your tongue, though the hands that made it are long gone.
9	A broken piece of a childhood toy, its edges chipped and its colour faded, but it brings you comfort in the quiet moments when the world feels too much.
10	The whispers of ancestors, those who walked before you, fill your mind during quiet meditation, urging you onward, reminding you of your place in the long chain of life.
11	A battle won, a victory that still burns bright in your memory, when the cheers rang out and you were hailed as a hero.
12	The first snowfall of every winter, a feeling both joyous and sorrowful, like a gift and a reminder of things you can never have back.
13	There's a place you dream of returning to, but with each passing year it feels further out of reach, like a fading memory you can't grasp.
14	A stormy night, the wind howling like an omen, brings memories of an escape—one that almost cost you everything, but you survived.
15	A melody, almost forgotten now, from your youth—a tune that once seemed so alive, now lost to the winds of time.
16	The day you saw a god, or some mythic being, something so real and yet so unbelievable, and you've never quite shaken the image.
17	The warmth of a fire, surrounded by family, telling stories beneath the stars—those nights when you thought nothing could ever touch you.
18	A lost friend, whose voice sometimes still comes to you in dreams, guiding you as if they never truly left.
19	An old tale from your mentor's lips, one that still haunts you, a warning of the dangers that lie ahead.
20	The vow you made, all those years ago—one that shapes everything you do now, like an unbreakable chain pulling you forward.

QUIRKS & TALENTS

Any hidden talents? Roll d20.

1	You can watch the shadows stretch and shrink with the sun, telling the exact time of day without a single clock in sight—nature speaks to you in angles and light.
2	You've got a knack for spotting hidden treasures—small valuables tucked away in places others would never think to look, the ones that slip through the cracks of a forgotten world.
3	Animals are drawn to you—birds find their perch on your shoulder, stray dogs follow you like loyal shadows. It's as if they know you're not a threat… or maybe it's something more.
4	You can mimic animal calls with eerie precision—ravens and wolves are your favourite, their sounds slipping from your mouth like you were born to call the wild.
5	You've got lungs like iron; when you hold your breath, the world around you holds its own, stretching time in a way that makes people wonder if you're a little more than human.
6	You can run your fingers over a tree's bark and instantly know how old it is—years, seasons, and storms all locked away in the texture of the wood.
7	Whistling is your art, and no one can carry a tune like you. You can send melodies soaring on the wind like a songbird, no matter the complexity.
8	When you throw something, it finds its mark with a precision that feels almost supernatural—whether it's a stone, a coin, or a blade, it always lands exactly where it should.
9	Faces and places stick with you like nothing else. You'll remember a person's eyes or the curve of a road years after a single glance, as if they're etched into your memory.
10	You're a master at skipping stones, the perfect flick of your wrist sending them skimming across water with a rhythmic precision that feels like poetry in motion.
11	You feel a storm before anyone else—your body reacts, a primal sense of change before the air shifts, before the clouds roll in.
12	You can twist, turn, and bend your body in ways that seem impossible, slipping through narrow spaces like a shadow, undetected and unseen.
13	Animals trust you. When fear sets in, you're the calm in the storm, your steady hands and voice soothing even the most panicked creature.
14	Words are your weapon. You've got the rare gift of persuasion, your calm tone breaking through walls and turning even the most stubborn souls into believers.
15	Knots are your language. You know every tie, every weave, and you can knot rope so tightly that it won't slip, no matter the tension.
16	Plants bend to your will. With just a little time and care, you can make anything grow—every garden is a testament to your touch.
17	Distances are nothing to you. A quick glance, and you know exactly how far away something is, the air around you giving up its secrets without a word.
18	You're a teller of tales, a spinner of stories, and you've got a catalogue of legends that can keep a crowd entertained for hours, each word dripping with life.
19	Reading and writing in runic languages is second nature to you. You've taught yourself, like an ancient scholar, understanding each symbol's hidden meaning, each twist of the lines.
20	Juggling is your pastime. Knives, stones, anything small enough to fit in your hands—each toss a perfect arc, as smooth as the air between your fingers.

HABITUAL BY NATURE

We all have habits—good or bad. Roll d20.

1	When nerves creep in, you rub the back of your neck, a subtle gesture that betrays the difficulty you feel trying to hold onto the calm.
2	Before a fight or any task worth the weight of your focus, you hum a soft, steady tune—like a ritual that calms the chaos within.
3	Deep in thought, you'll stare off into the distance, lost in some private world, your mind far away, locked in a trance only you can navigate.
4	You laugh in the face of danger—a sharp, unnerving sound that echoes with defiance. It's a way of mocking the gods, of letting them know they won't have the last laugh.
5	When anxiety creeps in, your fingers trace the lines of your tattoos, as if those ancient symbols still carry the strength they once promised.
6	Before action, you stretch your shoulders and crack your knuckles—warming up the machine that is your body, ready for the next move.
7	A soft prayer to the gods slips from your lips before any journey, a ritual of gratitude or protection, even if no one may hear it but the air around you.
8	Your curiosity knows no bounds; the world is a question waiting to be answered, and you ask too many because you need to understand everything.
9	You can't help but sharpen any weapon that comes into your hands, the rhythmic scraping of stone against steel almost meditative, like preparing for the inevitable.
10	When trying to convince someone, you repeat key phrases, the words falling like hammer strikes, building a rhythm, a cadence that drives your point home.
11	In crowded spaces, your back is always to the wall, always ready—never caught unaware, always looking for the next exit, the next threat.
12	You inspect everything, every nook and cranny—nothing slips by unnoticed, not while you're around. The smallest detail could be the one that saves your life.
13	You touch tree trunks or stones, feeling the textures beneath your fingers—earthy, solid, reminding you of something ancient, something real.
14	A bit of food is always with you, a small ration tucked away, because hunger is a vulnerability you're never willing to face.
15	People are a puzzle, and you study them carefully—every expression, every flicker of emotion, a clue to their heart, their truth.
16	Wherever you go, you leave a small offering for the gods—nothing grand, just something small, a sign of respect for the unseen forces that shape your world.
17	When judging someone's character, you squint your eyes, narrowing the world down to a finer point, looking past the masks to see what really lies beneath.
18	You run your fingers through your hair when a problem tugs at your mind, trying to comb through the thoughts, the answers you're seeking.
19	When deep in thought, your fingers tap a steady rhythm—always moving, always working, like the beat of your mind trying to find the solution.
20	Animals greet you with the same respect you offer them; a slight bow of the head, a recognition of their place in the world, and yours.

Beliefs & Superstitions

Who's to say you're wrong about this? Roll d20.

1	Certain trees are sacred to you—homes to spirits that whisper in the wind. You'd never harm one, for fear of angering the unseen beings that dwell within their bark.
2	Ravens are more than just birds—they're messengers from the gods, their caws full of hidden meanings, a language you've learned to read between the lines of.
3	Breaking a bone isn't just an injury—it's a curse, a sign of misfortune that calls for an offering, a prayer to keep the darkness at bay.
4	You collect certain stones, the ones that feel warm in your hand or shine with an inner light. These are your lucky charms, your "blessed" rocks, and they've never failed you.
5	You wear a particular colour, one that you believe attracts good fortune, a subtle magic woven into the threads of your clothes.
6	Rain is a blessing, the gods' way of nourishing the earth, and every time the rain falls, you pause to offer thanks.
7	A small charm hangs from your neck, always close, a token of protection against the evil spirits that lurk in the unseen spaces.
8	The sky speaks to you. Clouds are omens, shifting like the gods' will, and you watch them carefully, listening for the signs they send.
9	Before you make camp, you always whisper to the land, asking it for shelter and protection, a quiet plea to the spirits of earth and sky.
10	The left side is sacred to you, a shield against the world. In battle, you always lead with that side, letting its power guide your strikes.
11	Crossing a river without a prayer is foolish. You always pause, whispering to the river spirits, hoping for safe passage through their domain.
12	The first animal you see in the morning sets the tone for your day. If it's a rabbit, you know the luck is with you. A crow, though—maybe a warning.
13	Weapons are more than just tools. Sharp blades, the ones that sing as they cut, have souls of their own. You speak to them, sometimes, offering words of respect.
14	Low branches are bad luck. You never walk beneath them, believing they may reach out and drag you into misfortune.
15	Staring into a flame can show glimpses of what's to come. You've done it often, watching the flicker of fire as if it could reveal the secrets of your future.
16	Dreams are messages, you believe. Some nights, ancestors visit in the dark, and you write it all down in your dream journal, a record of the voices from beyond.
17	The forest gets your offerings—small bits of food left by the path or at the base of a tree, a token of respect to the spirits that roam its depths.
18	Sudden chills crawl up your spine, and you know they're not just the cold—they're warnings, the dead trying to send you a message, and you listen closely.
19	Iron is your shield. You carry a small iron nail, always with you, a touch of metal that protects you from curses and the dark magic that threatens to wrap around your soul.
20	Scars aren't just marks on your skin; they're spirits that linger, watching over you, protecting you from the dangers yet to come.

Sagas

The Saga isn't just some passive record of what happened—no, it's a living, breathing thing, stitched together from every moment, every choice, every scar your character wears.

It's a reflection of the soul, bleeding out onto the page, turning every deed into a story that claws its way into the world. The Saga doesn't just show the way—it becomes the way.

It's the map, the mirror, the mark you leave behind. And as life starts to slip through your fingers like sand, the Saga is what remains—the key to VALHALLA, the proof of whether you were worthy in the eyes of the gods

OR JUST ANOTHER FORGOTTEN FACE LOST IN THE SMOKE.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Recording The Deeds That Matter

Every significant act your character takes—a battle fought, a friend saved, a decision that sends ripples through fate—that's where the Saga breathes. It's where the ink sinks into the page. The GM may throw in suggestions when they feel a moment should be considered inscription, but it's the player who decides if it's worthy of becoming part of the legend.

Don't worry about long-winded speeches here. Keep it short but punch it full of power. Think of each entry like a shard of ancient Norse poetry—sharp, simple, and soaked in meaning.

Example: "Bjorn the Brave cleaved the troll's head with one strike, saving the village from certain doom."

Every word should hit like a hammer.

Let the Saga Grow

Not everything's about glory. The Saga's not just there for your wins—your fumbles, your screw-ups, they belong here too. That's what makes the story richer, what gives it meat. Those failures? They make the victories hit harder—or the fall feel deeper when you crash.

NPC Reactions

The Saga doesn't just follow you—it spreads. It gets out, it warps how people see you. A hero's name gets whispered, revered, feared, or envied. And if you've got a few shady marks on that record, expect suspicion, or worse. The world reacts, bends, and twists around the deeds you've etched into your story, and the GM should let those ripples be felt in every interaction.

Favour & Wrath of the Gods

You're not just writing a story for people. The gods are watching too, keeping score. You do something big enough—brave, reckless, stupid—the gods might take notice. Maybe they smile down on you, maybe they don't.

Either way, it kicks in the Favour & Wrath of the Gods mechanic. Whether you're blessed or cursed, it's up to the GM to read the gods' whims and drop them into the tale like thunder from a clear sky.

When Death Knocks...

The Saga's Final Judgement: Odin, Loki, and the Path After Death

First of all, you MUST die in battle to have a chance at entering Valhalla or becoming one of Loki's Chosen. When a character dies, their Saga is judged based on their deeds and loyalty. Players get three minutes to recount their character's story. The god, whether Odin or Loki, will decide the character's fate based on this recount and the impact of their actions.

3 Minutes to Recount Your Saga

The player has three real-time minutes to describe their character's most significant deeds, highlighting the victories, failures, and choices that shaped their journey. They can look at their Saga before recounting but not during the performance.

The quality of this recounting influences their final judgement.

How Judgement Works

Assign Dice

1. The GM, with player aid, assigns dice to key moments in the character's Saga based on the impact of their deeds.

d4	Minor deeds.
d6	Significant actions.
d8	Major accomplishments that shaped the story.
d10	Heroic or world-changing deeds.

2. The player's recounting receives a performance die based on how compelling and clear it is.

d4	Weak recounting.
d6	Solid recounting, covering key moments.
d8	Engaging and vivid recounting.
d10	Passionate, powerful, and emotional recounting.

Total the Dice

3. The GM rolls the assigned dice, including the performance die, and totals the result to determine the character's fate.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

The Outcome...

	Followers of Odin	Followers of Loki
30+	The character is taken to Valhalla as a hero, joining Odin's warriors and may return at Ragnarök to aid their companions.	The character is chosen by Loki and will fight on her side at Ragnarök, wielding their cunning or power in the final battle.
15–29	The character is sent to Helheim, where their name fades, but they may still influence the living through dark whispers or haunting visions.	The character is sent to Hel's Domain, no longer in Loki's favour, but may still have minor roles in her plans.
14 or Lower	The character is lost in the darkest parts of Helheim, with no chance of return, their name erased from history. This applies to followers of both Odin and Loki.

Second Chance

In rare cases, if the GM believes the character has gone above and beyond for Odin or Loki—exemplifying loyalty, bravery, or cunning—the GM can give the player a second chance at life by flipping the Divine Coin.

The GM flips the Divine Coin to determine whether the character is granted a second chance at life.

- Heads = The gods grant them another chance. The character is reborn, returning to the world with unfinished business.
- Tails = The gods deny the request, and the character's fate is sealed.

This Divine Coin flip can be done publicly or secretly, depending on the GM's style.

At Ragnarok

- Valhalla's Heroes = Characters who ascend to Valhalla may return at Ragnarök to aid their living companions, fighting for Odin in the final battle.
- Loki's Chosen = Characters chosen by Loki return to fight for her at Ragnarök, using their powers to tip the scales in her favour.

Tests

Tests are made against a Difficulty Rating (DR). To make a test, roll d20 ± your ability. You succeed if the result is equal to or greater than the DR. Creatures don't use abilities, they just roll a d20 against DR.

Example: 'Disarm a Frost Giant's bear trap. Test Swift DR12.' or 'Resist the cursed poison of Nidhogg's fang. Test Fortitude DR14.'

DR6	So simple that people laugh at you if you fail.
DR8	Routine, but some chance of failure.
DR10	Pretty simple but not simple enough to not Test.
DR12	Normal.
DR14	Difficult.
DR16	Really hard.
DR18	Nigh impossible.

Sometimes you will be granted advantage or disadvantage on a roll.

- Advantage = Roll twice and take the best result.
- Disadvantage = Roll twice and take the worst result.

Carrying Capacity

You can carry Might+8 normal-sized items without a problem. After that, when testing Might and Swift, the DR increases by 2 (from 12 to 14, etc.). It is impossible to carry more than twice Might+8.

Normal-sized items include things like bones, heads, and axes, but not heavy objects like chests, beasts, or fallen enemies.

Fates

Fates are blessings or curses woven into your life by the Norns. Whether it's divine intervention, the pull of fate, or the favour of a forgotten deity, these threads guide your destiny, for good or ill.

Every character not made with optional classes begins with d2* Fates. To regain spent Fates, take a long rest and roll the designated die for your class (or d2 if playing without classes).

Use Fates to:

- Deal maximum damage with one attack.
- Reroll a dice roll (yours or an ally's).
- Reduce damage dealt to you by d6.
- Negate a critical hit or fumble.
- Reduce the DR of one Test by −4.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Hit Points

If starting without a class, begin with Fortitude + *d10*HP.
In the worst case 1HP, but never less.

- × Zero HP = Broken
- × Negative HP = Dead

Broken

Roll d6.

1	Fall unconscious for d4* rounds, then awaken with d4*HP.
2	Broken or severed limb. Gain the fever condition.
3	Most of your teeth were knocked out of your mouth. Decrease current Guile by 1.
4	Roll on the Debilitating Injuries Table.
5	Haemorrhage. Death in d2* hours unless treated. All Tests are DR16.
6	Dead.

Debilitating Injuries

Roll d12.

1	Lost An Eye	Disadvantage on ranged attacks.
2	Frostbitten Fingers	Struggle with fine motor tasks.
3	Cracked Ribs	Easily fatigued after battle.
4	Venom-Scarred	Disadvantage on Tests for poison or fever.
5	Lame Leg	Disadvantage on Tests against being knocked prone.
6	Head Injury	Frequent headaches and impaired focus.
7	Frozen Lung	Shortness of breath with physical effort.
8	Crippled Hand	Reduced grip strength.
9	Deafened In One Ear	Difficulty pinpointing sounds.
10	Necrotic Burns	Half any HP recovered from resting.
11	Soul-Sapped	Disadvantage on Might Tests.
12	Cracked Spine	Stiff movements, vulnerable to re-injury. Next time you are broken, you DIE.

Battle

Players roll for both their attacks and defence.

Melee	Test Might DR12
Ranged	Test Guile DR12
Defence	Test Swift DR12
Runes	Test Wits DR12
Parry	Test Fortitude DR+3 (once per battle)

Initiative

Players and GMs can use either Individual Initiative or Group Initiative.

Group Initiative
Recommended for fast paced combat. At the top of every round, Roll d6.

1–3	Enemies go first.
4–6	PCs go first.

Individual Initiative
Test Swift+d6 to create the initiative order—highest result goes first. In the event of a tie, roll again.

How Long is a Round?

A round represents roughly six seconds in the game world. Unless otherwise stated, PCs may attack once per round.

A round is fleeting—a heartbeat in the cold, uncaring darkness of the world. It is only enough time for a strike of steel, a frantic movement, the casting of an ancient Rune, or a desperate grasp for survival.

Each round is a moment suspended in the shadow of fate. Only ten of these heartbeats make a minute, and in that time, a soul may witness unspeakable horrors or find themselves teetering on the edge of Hel's cold grasp.

Armour Degradation

When armour is damaged penalties to Might and Swift Tests are not modified.

Armour reduced below tier 1 is ruined and cannot be repaired (for armour repair costs, see the Equipment Table page).

Unarmed Attack

An unarmed attack's damage is d2.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Parry

In the heat of battle, there's that split second where you have to choose—do you stand firm, or do you move with the attack, using its own force to strike back? Once per battle, you can choose to parry an incoming blow instead of just relying on defence.

To parry, Test Fortitude against the DR of the incoming melee attack + 3. If you succeed, you don't just block the attack—you turn it back on your enemy, dealing your weapon's damage dice immediately. If you fail, the attack lands. It's a counterstrike born from the energy of the blow meant to harm you, where you become both defender and aggressor in one fluid motion, balancing on the knife-edge between survival and destruction.

And if fate smiles on you with a critical hit, your counter-attack lands with doubled ferocity, as if time itself froze just to give you this perfect moment of retribution.

Critical Hit

Natural 20

Attack	Double damage, armour is also reduced 1 tier.
Defence	PC gets a free attack.

Fumble

Attack	The weapon breaks or is lost.
Defence	PC takes double damage and armour is reduced 1 tier.
Parry	The weapon breaks or is lost, PC takes double damage and armour is reduced 1 tier.

Conditions

Poisoned

A deadly substance courses through your veins, sapping your strength and clarity.

- Test Fortitude DR12 at the beginning of each round. On a failure, you suffer d4* damage and have disadvantage on all Tests for the round.
- Outside of battle, all Tests are made with disadvantage.
- The poison lasts until it is purged using an antidote, magic, or after d4* hours.

Fever

Raging heat consumes your body, sapping your energy and making you delirious.

- Test Fortitude DR10 at the start of each day. On a failure, you are fatigued until you take a long rest, and your Wits Tests are made with disadvantage.
- If the fever persists for more than 3 days it becomes life-threatening, and each subsequent day requires you to Test Fortitude DR14 to avoid losing d8*HP.

Blindness

Your sight is stripped away, leaving you vulnerable in a world of shadows and danger.

- All attacks and Tests relying on vision are made with disadvantage.
- PCs have advantage on defence when attacked by a blinded enemy.
- You must Test Swift DR12 when the GM deems appropriate when travelling. If you fail, you take d2* damage as you stumble or injure yourself.
- Blindness may be temporary or permanent, depending on the cause.

Fatigued

Exhaustion weighs down your limbs, dulling your reflexes and slowing your movements.

- While fatigued, you suffer disadvantage on all Might and Swift Tests.
- Any physical exertion (running, fighting, etc.) requires you to Test Fortitude DR10. On a failure, you collapse, unable to act for 1 round.
- Fatigue lasts until you rest for at least 6 hours without interruption.

Stunned

- A stunned creature cannot move, parry or attack during the next round.
- Attacks against a stunned creature are made with advantage.
- Defence tests while stunned are made with disadvantage.

Prone

- While prone, defence and attacks are made with disadvantage.
- Attacks against prone enemies are made with advantage.
- Takes an action to stand up.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Rest

In this unforgiving world, rest is essential, but even sleep may not be enough when the body is racked by hunger, sickness, or exhaustion.

- Short Rest = Take a brief respite. Roll *d4 to restore a small amount of HP.
- Long Rest = A full night's sleep/six hours of uninterrupted rest restores d6*HP.

If you go without both food and water during rest, you regain no HP.

Starvation and Dehydration

- After two days without food, you begin losing d4*HP per day to starvation.
- After two days without water, you lose d6*HP per day until you find drinkable water.

Reaction

When you encounter creatures whose reaction is uncertain—be they gods, giants, or spirits—roll *2d6 to determine their mood, shaped by the whims of the Norns and ancient grudges.

2–3	Doomed by Fate	You have offended the gods or stirred ancient grudges. The creature will attack immediately, seeing you as cursed or an enemy of fate.
4–6	Wrath of the Old Gods	Their blood burns hot with rage. A fight is near, but they may allow you a single word before they strike.
7–8	Indifferent as the Dead	They regard you with cold indifference, as one might a fly buzzing in the long dark of Fimbulwinter. You are beneath their notice… for now.
9–10	Guarded Respect	They acknowledge your presence with a wary nod. They may not be friendly, but they recognise strength when they see it.
11–12	Fate's Favour	The Norns smile upon you. The creature is unusually helpful, offering aid or information, perhaps sensing a shared destiny.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Improvement

The Norns weave the threads of every mortals fate, but it is the GM who decides when a character has earned the right to improve. Whether through surviving a deadly battle, accomplishing a feat of cunning, or making a sacrifice in blood and sweat, improvement is never granted lightly.

When the GM declares the time is right, do the following:

Increase HP

Roll 6d10. If the result is equal to or greater than your current maximum HP, increase your maximum HP by d6.

Ability Changes

Roll d6 for each ability.

- If the result is equal to or greater than the current ability, increase that ability by 1, up to a maximum of +6
- If the result is 1 the ability decreases by 1, but never below −3.

Holmgang

A holmgang is a sacred duel, used to settle disputes and prove one's honour. Both participants agree to fight within a marked square, with the gods watching closely.

Breaking the rules or showing cowardice brings divine Wrath.

Setup

- The challenger and challenged agree on the terms (to the death, submission, or first blood).
- The duel takes place inside a marked square. Leaving the square results in immediate defeat and divine wrath.
- At the start of each round, both duellists roll *d6 for initiative. The higher result goes first.

Rules of Combat

- Leaving the Square = If a duellist leaves the square (voluntarily or pushed out), they immediately lose the duel and incur Moderate Wrath of the gods.
- Victory Conditions = The duel ends when one duellist is killed, surrenders, or first blood is drawn (depending on the terms). A clean surrender is respected, but failure to honour the terms of the duel could attract wrath.

Divine Wrath

- Leaving the square or acting dishonourably triggers Moderate Wrath of the gods.
- The GM rolls on the Moderate Wrath Table for either Odin or Loki.

Outcomes

- Victory = The victor adds a tale to their Saga and possibly gains favour from the gods.
- Defeat = The loser must submit to the terms or face the consequences of dishonour.
- Dishonour = Leaving the square or breaking the rules triggers Moderate Wrath of the gods, punishing the dishonoured duellist.

Flyting

A Duel of Wit and Resilience. Flyting is a verbal contest where two participants hurl insults to prove their wit and mental resilience. The winner is determined by their ability to both craft clever insults and endure the opponent's verbal attacks.

Setup

- The flyting lasts for 3 rounds.
- The GM and other players adjust the DR based on the player's insult:

DR−2	Good insult.
DR12	Baseline.
DR+2	Weak insult.

Rules of Flyting

In each round:

1. The opponent insults the PC.
2. The PC insults their opponent.
3. The insult is judged using the table above.
4. The player Tests Guile with appropriate DR.
5. Repeat.

To win the round, the player must succeed on the Guile Test. Failing means the opponent wins that round.

Divine Influence (Optional) = The GM may roll d6 before the flyting to determine divine involvement:

1–2	Divine Favour	The player gains +2 to one Test during the duel.
3–4	Neutral	No divine intervention.
5–6	Divine Wrath	The player takes −2 to one Test during the duel.

Victory = After 3 rounds, the participant who has won 2 or more rounds wins the flyting.

Outcomes

Victory

- Gain +1 to all Guile Tests for the next d4* days.
- The PC gains advantage on all Tests related to the defeated opponent for d4* days.

Defeat

- The character suffers disadvantage on all social Tests for the next d4* days.
- If the player loses all rounds, their character may also incur Moderate Wrath.

Navigating The Realms

Travel between the Nine Realms across Yggdrasil's branches is dangerous and unpredictable. The PCs must summon a gate and then navigate The World Tree to move between realms.

Step 1: Summoning a Gate

Player Characters must first summon a gate by performing a ritual which uses a totem. The totem must embody the essence of the desired realm. Its destruction during the ritual reflects the sacrifice required to breach the barriers between worlds.

- Midgard = A thing of Earth. A stone worn smooth by a river, a handful of fertile soil or an oak branch tied with twine—simple, grounded, and tied to the mortal plane.
- Asgard = A thing of Glory. A fragment of a warrior's banner, a golden coin minted in triumph or a medal won in battle. Anything that carries the weight of victory and honour.
- Vanaheim = A thing of Nature. A sprig of wild mistletoe, a freshly bloomed flower, or a vial of untouched spring water. Whatever captures the raw, untamed beauty of nature.
- Jötunheim = A thing of Frost. A shard of ice that refuses to melt, a giant's toe or the frozen pelt of a beast that roamed the tundra.
- Alfheim = A thing of Light. A crystal that catches sunlight, a drop of honey from a flower-fed bee or a white feather. Anything radiant and ephemeral.
- Svartalfheim = A thing of Value. A gem cut from the deepest mines, a flawless ring of silver or a rare coin steeped in greed and pride.
- Niflheim = A thing of Shadows. A scrap of blackened cloth, a raven's feather or a handful of ash that refuses to drift away. Symbols of mystery and the unseen.
- Muspelheim = A thing of Flame. A charred piece of wood, a shard of obsidian born in fire or the embers of a dying flame caught in a glass jar.
- Helheim = A thing of Death. A bone from a fallen beast, a dried black rose or a shroud woven for the dead. Each carries the weight of life's inevitable end.

Test Guile DR12 to perform the ritual and summon a gate. Whether successful or not, the totem is destroyed during the ritual.

- Critical Success = The gate is constructed and you may pass straight through to the desired realm.
- Success = The gate is constructed and you may pass through onto the branching limbs of Yggdrasil.
- Failure = No gate is made, and you must try again later.

Step 2: Navigating Yggdrasil

The gate leads to the infinite branches of The World Tree, Yggdrasil. The characters must now successfully navigate this realm-between-realms and make their way to the gate leading to their desired destination.

Test Wits DR12 to navigate the many branches of The World Tree.

- Success = You find your way to the gate to the desired realm.
- Failure = Roll *d12 on the Yggdrasil table below.
- Fumble = Your time spent on Yggdrasil attracts the attention of Nidhogg, The Corpse Eater that gnaws at The World Tree's roots (see below).

1	Fractured Paths	The branches twist and split, creating a disorienting maze. The characters eventually reach a realm—but it may not be the one they intended.
2	Glimpse of Another Realm	A vision of an unfamiliar realm clouds the path. When the journey ends, the characters arrive somewhere, though they're uncertain if it's their chosen destination.
3	Whispering Roots	Yggdrasil's roots murmur riddles or warnings, cryptic and unsettling. The party arrives in the intended realm, but they believe it is the wrong realm.
4	Ratatoskr's Trickery	The mischievous squirrel spirit flits between branches, sowing confusion. He may lead the characters to the wrong realm—or provide half-truths that guide them to a destination of his choosing.
5	Echoes of Ginnungagap	Shadows of the primordial void dance at the edges of the path. The journey feels endless before abruptly spitting the party into an unintended realm.
6	Entangled Time	The branches twist through time itself. The characters reach their destination, but time has shifted—they've arrived far into the future or past, with no warning.
7	Branch Break	A crack echoes through the wood as the party feel themselves fall. They land in a realm suddenly and violently, unsure if it's the right one.
8	Realm Split	The path grows hazy, two realms appearing to overlap. The characters cannot tell which one they're stepping into until the journey is complete—and the choice may not be theirs.
9	Root Collapse	A sudden collapse throws the party off balance. They tumble into a realm, arriving directly in the middle of battle or conflict, with no time to prepare.
10	Lingering Voices	Ghostly whispers draw the characters off course, murmuring riddles of fate. The journey ends in a realm tied to their deepest desires—or their darkest fears.
11	Unexpected Gatekeeper	Odin himself intervenes, offering aid or obstruction. His reasons are unclear, but the party find themselves in the realm of his choosing, not theirs.
12	Splintered Reality	Loki arrives, weaving chaos into the journey. Whether she's helping or scheming, the party lands in the realm Loki deems most entertaining—or dangerous.

Nidhogg's Arrival

If a player fumbles when attempting to navigate The World Tree, they inadvertently call the attention of Nidhogg, the ancient dragon that gnaws at the roots of Yggdrasil. They must fight or flee.

Quick Summary

Test Guile DR12 with an appropriate totem to summon a gate.

- Critical Success = Bypass Yggdrasil—the gate leads straight to the desired realm.
- Success = Gate to Yggdrasil is summoned.
- Failure = No gate summoned, try again later.

Test Wits DR12 to navigate Yggdrasil.

- Success = Travel to the desired realm.
- Failure = A mishap (roll on the Yggdrasil Table).
- Fumble = Nidhogg appears, forcing the players to either fight or flee.

Favour & Wrath of The Gods

The GM invokes Favour or Wrath during key moments in the campaign:

- After completing a significant quest or task that impacts the balance of power between Odin and Loki.
- When characters improve or gain new abilities, drawing the attention of the gods.
- At major turning points in the story, such as surviving a harrowing battle or making a critical decision.
- Occasionally, when a character prays to a god or offers a sacrifice.
- After a holmgang.
- If a character spectacularly fails at flyting.
- When attempting to use a Rune that results in a fumble.
- When the GM sees fit.

Surprise Favour or Wrath

In most situations, players won't know whether they'll receive Favour or Wrath—this is left to the GM's discretion or decided by a coin flip. The GM flips a coin secretly to determine the outcome:

- Heads = The character receives Favour.
- Tails = The character receives Wrath.

Tracker Influence

The Ragnarök tracker determines which god's Favour or Wrath the characters are subject to:

- Leaning Toward Loki = The characters might receive Loki's Favour but risk Odin's Wrath.
- Leaning Toward Odin = The characters might receive Odin's Favour but risk Loki's Wrath.
- Neutral Positions = The GM has more freedom to decide which god responds, depending on the characters' actions.

Rolling on the Tables:

Once Favour or Wrath is decided, the player rolls *d12 and the GM consults the appropriate table:

- Minor = Balanced situations or minor moments of Favour or Wrath.
- Moderate = The tracker is moderately aligned with one god.
- Severe = The tracker is heavily aligned with one god, or after significant story events.

When the Effect Happens:

The effect generally won't happen immediately—it takes place at the next appropriate moment:

- In Battle = It might manifest as sudden divine intervention or a catastrophe.
- During Travel = Divine favour could smooth the journey, while wrath might create new dangers.
- In Social Encounters = The gods could subtly shift the balance of negotiations or interactions.

The GM introduces these effects when they will have the greatest narrative impact, ensuring the gods' presence feels powerful and influential in the story.

Examples of Play

Example 1 = Players Complete a quest (Ragnarök tracker is closer to Loki):

1. After completing a quest that aligns with Loki's interests, the GM decides it's time to invoke the gods.
2. The GM flips a coin secretly to see if the party receives Favour or Wrath. The coin lands on heads, meaning Loki's Favour.
3. The GM asks a player to roll d12 and then consults the Loki Moderate Favour table, resulting in Jörmungandr's Blessing, which is triggered the next time they attack, dealing an additional d4 poison damage.

Example 2 = Characters Improve (Ragnarök tracker is closer to Odin):

1. After the party Improves, the GM decides that the gods have taken notice.
2. The GM flips a coin to see whether Odin's Favour or Loki's Wrath will follow. The flip lands on tails—Loki's Minor Wrath.
3. The player rolls d12 and the GM checks the Loki Minor Wrath table and gets Nidhogg's Hunger; next time the character rests or eats, they'll realise they've lost d4 food and water.

Example 3 = Unexpected divine response (tracker is balanced):

1. After surviving a difficult battle, the GM invokes divine attention. The tracker is balanced, so the GM decides to flip the coin publicly.
2. The coin lands on heads, signalling Favour. The GM decides the character will receive Odin's Favour, and the player rolls d12 on the Odin Minor Favour table, gaining Odin's Wisdom, which grants them insight for their next challenge.

Runic Magic

ᚱᚢᚾᛁᚳ ᛗᚨᚷᛁᚳ is not just a force—it's a language. The gods carved the Runes into the very fabric of reality, and those who understand these symbols can tap into their ancient power.

Runes aren't just a list of spells; they're pieces of a puzzle. However, Runes carry risk, and using them incorrectly can have dire consequences.

Using Runes

Runes can either be inscribed or cast as spells.

Inscribed to Armour
Inscribed to a Weapon
Cast as a Spell

Daily Limit

After a long rest, roll d4+Guile to determine how many times you can use Runes that day. These uses are spent when casting spells or activating inscribed Runes.

Inscribing

Inscribing a Rune onto a piece of armour or a weapon takes a short rest—you must still use food and water but forego regaining any HP. After inscription, that Rune may not be used as a spell or inscribed again. It is destroyed in the process and the inscription cannot be undone.

Casting

To use a Rune, Test Wits DR12 to see if you successfully tap into its power.

- × Success = You cast the Rune's effect, consuming one of your daily uses.
- × Failure = The spell fails. You lose 1HP consume one of your daily uses.

Fumble

The Rune backfires, causing unpredictable or devastating effects. Invoke Favour or Wrath of the Gods.

Rolling a Random Rune

Since there are 24 runes, roll *d2 to determine the set of runes (set 1 or set 2), and then roll d12 to select a rune from that set.

1	Fehu wealth		For the next d4* hours, your ability to discern valuable objects, both hidden and in plain sight, is heightened. Gain +2 to any Test involving Trinkets or valuables.
			Invoke a shower of wealth. On your next successful hit, d100*‡ Trinkets or valuable items rain from the sky onto your target (d4 damage per 10‡ Trinkets).
2	Uruz strength		Channel the raw energy of Uruz, gaining or bestowing +2 to Might Tests for d6* rounds.
			Unleash a shock wave from your weapon, knocking all enemies close to you prone and dealing d4* damage to each.
3	Thurisaz giant		Summon a destructive force, dealing d8* damage to all enemies you can see.
			Enlarge your weapon to massive proportions for d4* rounds, dealing double damage. After the effect ends, you become fatigued.
4	Ansuz divine		Invoke insight from the Norns to gain a truthful answer to a question or problem.
			Force an enemy to follow a simple command.
5	Raidho journey		Know the most direct path to your destination or summon a gate, without the need for a ritual, a totem or Test.
			Teleport to any visible location you can see, along with one ally if desired.
6	Kenaz knowledge		Summon a radiant light, revealing hidden objects or creatures.
			Brand an enemy with Kenaz's Rune, causing them blindness and also making them glow brightly, making them visible through walls, darkness, or magical concealment. Attacks against the branded enemy are made with advantage.
7	Gebo gift		Exchange life force. Heal an ally for d6*HP at the cost of your own HP.
			Deal maximum damage on your next hit, but sacrifice d6*HP in exchange.
8	Wunjo joy		Restore d4*HP to yourself or a nearby ally, curing all conditions.
			Emit a joyful song that heals all nearby allies for d4*HP and grants +1 to their next Test.
9	Hagalaz hail		Call down a hailstorm, dealing d6* damage to all creatures in the area for d4* rounds.
			Surround yourself in raging hail for d4* rounds. Enemies that strike you take d4* damage from the freezing storm.
10	Nauthiz need		Gain +2 to your next Test.
			Reroll a failed attack. However, you take d6* damage as payment for this favour from the Norns.
11	Isa ice		Freeze your enemy in place. They are stunned for d2* rounds.
			Coat your weapon in frost for d4* rounds. Each strike deals an additional d4* cold damage.
12	Jera harvest		Double the amount of your current food and water.
			Summon a bountiful harvest—you and your allies find d6* food and water within your immediate vicinity.

Rune Set 2

1	Eihwaz reliability		Reduce all incoming damage to you or an ally by −2 for d4* rounds.
			Become immovable for d4* rounds, reducing all damage taken by half. You cannot move during this time, but you can still act.
2	Pertho fate		Reroll one failed Test within the next hour.
			Activate to twist fate in your favour. After hitting an enemy, roll *d6: 1–3 = add that number to the damage dealt. 4–6 = subtract that number from damage taken on the next attack targeting you.
3	Algiz protection		Halve all incoming damage for d4* rounds.
			Create a magical shield around yourself for d4* rounds. This shield blocks the next successful attack entirely.
4	Sowilo sun		The power of the sun in the palm of your hand. When you touch an enemy, they take d10* damage and their armour is reduced by 1 tier.
			Unleash radiant energy in a burning wave. All enemies that can see you take d6* damage and have blindness for d4* rounds.
5	Tiwaz sacrifice		Grant an automatic success on the next attack, but you suffer d4* damage as the strain takes its toll.
			Guarantee a hit on your next attack, but after the blow, take double damage the next time you are hit.
6	Berkano growth		Restore d6*HP immediately.
			Create a healing aura. At the start of the next round, you and all allies close to you heal d4*HP.
7	Ehwaz partnership		Form a bond with one ally for d6* rounds. Any damage the ally takes is halved, and you take the other half.
			Summon a mystical horse beneath you. Your movement while on the horse is increased and defence is made with advantage. If you take 4 damage, the horse disappears and you are knocked prone.
8	Mannaz cooperation		Allow party members to share bonuses from features, abilities, and equipment for d4* rounds.
			Share a bonus once per day. You can transfer one of your active bonuses (e.g., from equipment or abilities) to an ally for their next Test.
9	Laguz water		Summon a powerful water wave, dealing d8* damage to all in its path and knocking them prone. This also deals double damage to any fire-based enemy.
			A calming aura surrounds you. Heal yourself for d4*HP each round for d4* rounds. This also heals all conditions.
10	Ingwaz fertility		Make any creature you can see pregnant.
			Add a +4 to your next non-battle Test.
11	Dagaz day		The target creature may not sleep for d4* days.
			Awaken the weapon's potential. For the next round, the weapon deals an additional 2d6* damage.
12	Othala inheritance		The target creature grows a beard made of d20*‡ Trinkets, the beard cannot be trimmed or removed but can be styled.
			Invoke the power of your ancestors. Once per day, an ancestral spirit guides your hand, ensuring advantage on your next defence.

Ragnarök Tracker

The Ragnarök tracker represents the escalating tension between the powers of Odin and Loki, with the characters' actions influencing the fate of the world. Each decision they make either brings the world closer to the apocalypse or delays it, and each god responds in turn. The tracker is the heartbeat of the campaign, its movements based on alliances, battles, and quests completed.

How It Works

- The Ragnarök tracker is a visual representation of the balance of power between Odin and Loki.
- It starts with a marker in the centre of the tracker, equidistant between Odin's side and Loki's side.
- As the players make decisions, complete quests, and shape the world, the marker will move left towards Odin or right towards Loki, symbolising which god is gaining influence over the world.

Shifting the Tracker

- Minor Actions (small decisions, aiding NPCs, minor quests) = Move the marker 1 space toward Odin or Loki based on the characters' actions.
- Major Actions (defeating key enemies, completing large quests, advancing the god's agenda) = Move the marker 2 or more spaces toward Odin or Loki depending on the impact of the action.
- God-Aligned Decisions (choosing to help a god directly, retrieving powerful artefacts for them, killing a god etc.) = Move the marker 3 spaces or more towards the relevant god.

For shorter campaigns, the GM will move the marker more spaces for each impactful decision and conversely for a longer campaign the GM will move it less spaces per decision.

How the Tracker Affects Character Fates

The position of the Ragnarök tracker also affects the Favour or Wrath a character might experience after death, influencing whether they end up in Valhalla (Odin's side) or as a Chosen of Loki.

- If the tracker is closer to Odin = Characters who die while aiding Odin are more likely to ascend to Valhalla.
- If the tracker is closer to Loki = Characters who die in service to Loki are more likely to become her chosen warriors for Ragnarök.

Ragnarok Begins

When the marker reaches the centre of the Ragnarök tracker, Ragnarök begins. The players are now free to choose which side—Odin or Loki—they want to fight for in the final battle. However, whichever side the marker was closest to before reaching the centre will have a clear advantage, with stronger forces, resources, and divine support.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

THE TRACKER HAS REACHED THE CENTRE

the end is nigh

A Cinematic Skirmish

Ragnarök is the climactic battle where the players' choices throughout the campaign come to a head. To make it epic, cinematic, and impactful, the final battle should feel dynamic and allow the players' previous decisions to shape the outcome.

Preparation for Ragnarok

Set the Stage:

- Create 2 circles with 15 segments each = One represents Loki and the other, Odin. If the tracker was aligned with Loki when it hit the centre fill in three segments of their tracker. The same is true for Odin. Then fill in one segment per god that has died up to this point. For example; if Thor is dead, fill in a segment of Loki's circle.
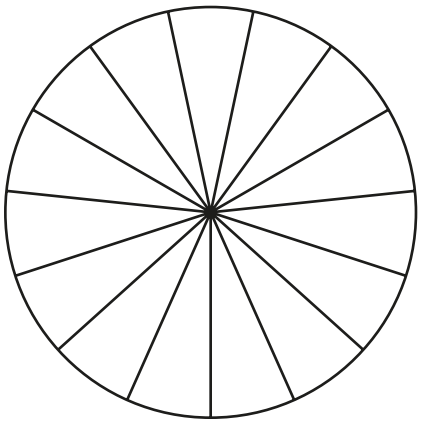
- Describe the battlefield in vivid detail = Whether it's the crumbling halls of Asgard, the frozen wastes of Jötunheim, or the shores of Midgard, immerse the players in the realm as it falls apart.
- Use environmental hazards = cracks in the earth, flaming debris, and rising seas will heighten the tension. The world is ending, and everything should feel like it's on the edge of destruction.



ODIN

Determine Allies and Enemies:

- The circles determine the strength of the forces that arrive. More segments filled in equals more forces.
- If the tracker leaned towards Loki, her army will have the upper hand, with overwhelming numbers or powerful champions leading the charge, and vice versa.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Ragnarök Battle Structure

Break the battle into cinematic phases, each representing key moments in the final skirmish. Keep the pace moving while giving the players the feeling that their decisions matter.

Phase 1: The Onslaught

Setup:

- Both sides begin the battle by deploying their main forces. Describe massive armies clashing—godlike champions, hordes of Jötnar, Asgardian warriors, and wild beasts.
- Let the characters position themselves based on their alliances. If they're aiding Odin, they fight alongside the Aesir. If they've chosen Loki, they stand with her chaotic forces.

Simple Rules for Battle:

- Roll on The Onslaught Table and describe what happens. Let the players decide who will act and then ask for a Test based on their action (rather than rolling for hundreds of enemies).
- Each character should act at least once. The GM should monitor the segments and ask for additional Tests if needed.
- When a player passes a Test, fill in 1 segment of their allied god. When they fail, fill in 2 segments of the opposing god.
- Use the environment to change the battle: collapsing buildings, magical storms, or erupting volcanoes can serve as obstacles and opportunities.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

The Onslaught Table

The table below has moments that force players to react immediately, encouraging them to describe their approach before the GM calls for a Test. Roll d20.

1	A ballista bolt rips through the battlefield, impaling an allied warrior. More shots are incoming—what do you do?
2	The ground cracks open beneath you, forming a widening chasm. You and your allies are on the edge—how do you escape?
3	A war beast charges straight at your position, trampling everything in its path. It's too fast to outrun—what's your move?
4	An enemy archer unit has taken high ground and is raining arrows down on your forces. You're exposed—how do you deal with them?
5	A siege tower is rolling toward the battlefield, packed with enemy reinforcements. If it reaches the front line, your side will be overwhelmed—how do you stop it?
6	A sudden shock wave from a god's attack sends you flying. You're hurtling toward jagged debris—how do you regain control?
7	A collapsing structure is about to crush a group of warriors. You have only moments to act—what do you do?
8	A war horn blares, signalling an enemy charge straight at your position. The first wave is nearly upon you—how do you react?
9	The battlefield begins to flood as a dam breaks. You're being swept away—how do you keep from drowning or save others?
10	A legendary warrior locks eyes with you across the battlefield. They charge, weapons raised, intent on a duel—do you engage or outmanoeuvre them?
11	A magical storm erupts, sending shards of ice and lightning everywhere. The air crackles with energy—how do you shield yourself?
12	A group of allied warriors have lost their nerve and are starting to flee. How do you rally them, or do you let them go?
13	A heavily wounded enemy begs for mercy. Do you spare them, interrogate them, or finish them off?
14	A unit of enemy soldiers is trapped and offers to surrender. Do you accept, negotiate, or execute them to send a message?
15	A desperate commander is calling for retreat. Do you convince them to hold the line or let them abandon their post?
16	A godlike figure calls out to you, offering a temporary alliance in exchange for a price. Do you accept, bargain, or refuse?
17	A powerful champion on the opposing side looks hesitant, as if questioning their loyalty. Do you persuade them to defect or press the attack?
18	A divine artefact falls from the heavens, embedding itself in the battlefield. Everyone is scrambling for it—what's your next move?
19	A fallen god crashes onto the battlefield, their dying essence warping reality around them. You feel its power pulling at you—how do you resist or embrace it?
20	A messenger rushes to you with critical intelligence that could change the battle. Do you trust it, act on it, or assume it's a trap?

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Phase 2: Decisive Moments

Choose 1–3 major decisions from earlier in the campaign and show how they affect the battlefield, filling in 2 segments per decision.

Example Outcomes:

- Retrieving a powerful artefact for Odin = The characters unleash its magic, tipping the balance in Odin's favour, weakening Loki's forces.
- Forging alliances with a powerful Jötunn = The Jötunn arrives as an ally of Loki, devastating Odin's side.
- Sacrificing a key ally = A moment where the absence of that ally weakens their forces, or the sacrifice strengthens their side with a divine boon.

Phase 3: The Champions' Duel

After waves of lesser enemies are dealt with, the gods themselves enter the fray—Thor, Freyja, Fenrir, Jörmungandr, and others—fighting one another to the death. One of the opposing gods will take on the party directly. This will likely be Odin or Loki but if they have already been felled, choose an appropriate champion from that side. This is the final boss.

Battle Mechanics:

- When there are 5 segments left unfilled on the allied god's circle, introduce the final boss.
- Run combat with gods as normal but with some slight adjustments.
- Allow cinematic free actions = The players should be encouraged to pull off epic stunts—leaping onto Jörmungandr, throwing Thor's hammer, or delivering a fatal blow to Fenrir. Use the environment to enable these feats.
- This battle happens alongside all the other gods slugging it out. Be sure to reference all the destruction happening around the players. It should feel Epic.

Player Decisions in the Duel:

- Let past alliances determine which champions help or hinder the characters. If they've made enemies of certain gods, those gods will personally target them.
- Any Favour or Wrath gained earlier can and should be used by the GM.
- When the god is defeated, fill in the final 5 segments of the allied god's circle.

Odin

- Heimdall
- Freyja
- Frigg
- Tyr
- Vidar
- Thor

Loki

- Jörmungandr
- Fenrir
- Nidhogg
- Surtr
- Hel

Phase 4: Final Choice and Consequences

When the final boss is defeated and Ragnarök nears its end, the players face a final choice. This could be an opportunity to save or doom the Nine Realms, depending on the alliances they've formed and the gods they've served.

Offer a Final Choice. Present the players with a moral or strategic dilemma.

For example:

- Odin's Offer = Odin asks them to make a final sacrifice to ensure his victory—perhaps giving up something dear or one of their own.
- Loki's Temptation = Loki offers power and chaos, promising a future shaped by their will in exchange for betraying Odin.

Outcome

- The outcome of Ragnarök should hinge on this choice, but it must reflect all the decisions leading up to this moment.
- If they choose Odin, the characters help secure the Nine Realms for a time, delaying Ragnarök's final toll. But perhaps they've made too many sacrifices along the way.
- If they choose Loki, the chaos of Ragnarök consumes the realms. However, they may rise as the new lords of a reshaped world.

How Decisions Affect the Final Battle

- Allies = Past actions determine which gods, creatures, and NPCs assist the party. If they forged strong alliances, they will have more help in battle.
- Enemies = Characters who have made powerful enemies will face direct opposition from those foes during the battle.
- Artefacts and Boons = Artefacts gained during the campaign can be used for special effects, such as countering a god's attack or summoning reinforcements.
- Environmental Changes = Key decisions may have changed the landscape—characters who stopped certain events may fight on more favourable terrain, while those who didn't act face more hazardous conditions (flooded cities, volcanic eruptions, etc.).

Final Victory or Defeat

The final outcome of Ragnarök will be determined by:

- The Players' Final Choice = Who they side with in the final moments.
- The Tracker Position = The god with the stronger influence (from the tracker) has more control over the battle's flow.
- Key Decisions Made Earlier = Allies, enemies, artefacts, and environmental factors shaped by the characters' past actions.

Viking Burial After Ragnarok

After Ragnarök, should the world collapse or survive, the players and GM must perform a Viking Burial for this book, closing their Saga with honour, whether they ascended to Valhalla, walked with Loki, or fell into Helheim.

The Nine Realms, a sprawling universe woven into the very cloth of existence, are a stage where more than just gods and mortals play their parts.

· ᛗ · ᛞ · ᚢ · ᛖ · ᚨ · ᛊ · ᚾ · ᛗ · ᛁ ·

In this celestial soap opera, Elves shine like ancient stars, their light a blend of otherworldly wisdom and mystical strength. They dance through time with a grace that haunts the memory, casting spells and weaving enchantments from their seat in Alfheim, bathed in the gentle light of Freyr.

Dwarves carve their lives into the bones of Svartalfheim, their hammers singing songs of creation that resonate with the earth's core. Their hands work wonders, forging weapons of legend and crafting marvels that are the envy of even the heavens.

The Giants, titans of Jötunheim, are as varied as the land itself, from the wrath of the tempest to the enduring silence of the peaks. They are the raw power and majesty that the other realms would rather avoid.

The Vanir, thriving in the lush Vanaheim, are the keepers of the cycle, their touch brings abundance and their whispers nurture the roots of the world, heralding the ebb and flow of life's endless bounty.

Niflheim, cold and merciless, lies shrouded in mist, its icy winds carrying remnants of forgotten ambition. This desolate realm cradles the primordial wellspring of Hvergelmir, its icy rivers feeding Yggdrasil's roots.

Helheim is a realm less spoken of, a place where dishonour's price is etched in the cold gazes of its spectral residents. Here, the monstrous Nidhogg feeds on the roots of existence itself, and the Draugr wander, the living dead cursed to walk without purpose.

The Einherjar are the honoured dead, handpicked by Odin, feasting in Valhalla as they wait for the final showdown that is Ragnarök. They're the heroes of old, salivating at the thought of one last battle.

And let's not forget Muspelheim, where fire reigns supreme, the domain of Fire Giants and the fearsome Surtr, destined to set the stage for Ragnarök's fiery crescendo.

Yggdrasil

, that cosmic tree, stands like the spine of the universe, its limbs stretch across the skies, its roots worming deep into the secrets of the underworld. It ain't just some giant plant; it's the big picture, the story, the bridge that links every bit of the cosmos. A living, breathing monument of what was, what is, and what's to come.

But Yggdrasil's got its own share of hurt. Nidhogg, that nasty serpent, is chewing at its roots, and the stags are always munching on its leaves. The old tree's bleeding out, its sap as precious as any poet's dreams, and it's shuddering under the heavy burden of Ragnarök, trembling with every blast of the Gjallarhorn.

Underneath this giant, we start our trek across the Nine Realms. Your every move, every choice, sends waves through its branches, etching runes into the cosmos itself.

MIDGARD

Realm of Men

Midgard, once alive with forests, mountains, and thriving villages, is now suffocating under the relentless grip of Fimbulwinter. The sky is a constant sickly grey, barely letting in any light, while snowdrifts swallow pathways and homes. What few settlements remain cling to crumbling hearths, their warmth fleeting as food and hope grow scarce. The seas are frozen, rivers sluggish, and the wind's bitter howl cuts through the silence of a land on the brink of death.

But it's not just the cold that haunts Midgard. Draugr, undead warriors, claw their way out of frozen graves, and Trollkin descend from the mountains, their steps shaking the earth. Starving Wargr, gaunt and feral, roam the snow-covered roads. With the gods distracted by Ragnarök, the barriers that once held these horrors in check have crumbled. Monsters now roam freely, attacking the last human settlements already ravaged by frost and fear.

Survivors face a relentless battle against both the cold and the beasts that now rule the land. As the days grow darker and the frost deepens, they ponder how much longer they can hold out before Midgard succumbs to the inevitable.

Weather

Fimbulwinter has arrived. In Midgard, the weather is not just background noise—it's a constant threat, shaping survival and combat alike. Roll d6.

1	Blinding Snowstorm	A blizzard howls to life, the snow thickening into an impenetrable white wall. Visibility drops to almost nothing, and every step becomes a struggle. Navigation falters, and the icy wind bites through even the warmest gear.
2	Icy Winds	Bitter, knife-like winds cut through the land, causing extreme cold exposure. Unless wrapped in warm gear, Test Fortitude DR12 every 2 hours or take d4* cold damage as frostbite starts to set in.
3	Frozen Fog	A thick, frozen fog creeps across the land, muffling sound and swallowing sight. Beyond a few paces, the world vanishes into icy white. Tests relying on perception falter and are made with disadvantage, but the shrouded stillness lends itself to stealth— Tests for stealth gain advantage in this eerie haze.
4	Forgotten Sun	The sky splinters, clouds parting to reveal a pale winter sun. Its light spills over the frozen landscape, offering a fleeting reprieve from the unrelenting cold of Fimbulwinter. For a moment, the world feels less cruel, and hope lingers in the short-lived warmth.
5	Black Ice	Beneath the snow, black ice waits like an ill-timed joke. Step wrong, and it'll take you down, hard. Test Swift DR10 or hit the ground, cold and unforgiving, with d2* damage to remind you that winter doesn't play fair.
6	Cloud Break	The clouds crack open just enough to show a pale blue sky, fragile and distant. For a moment, the gloom lifts, the world less heavy, like a sigh you didn't know you were holding. It won't last, but for now, it's enough.

1	Half-Frozen Corpse	A warrior's body lies half-buried in the snow, their weapons intact but unremarkable. Clutched in their frozen hand is a Rune, faintly glowing with an unspoken purpose.
2	Wolf Tracks	Fresh tracks cut through the snow, leading to a nearby den. Inside, starving Wargr likely wait, desperate and dangerous. The den might hold spoils from past kills...
3	Hidden Shrine	Hidden beneath snow and ice, a small shrine to a forgotten god waits in a secluded grove. Leaving an offering or sacrifice grants a small boon (+1 to Wits Tests for the rest of the day), but disrupting its balance risks summoning a vengeful foe.
4	Ice-Encased Spoils	Something glints beneath the ice, catching the party's eye. Its pull is undeniable. Breaking it free demands you to Test Might DR14. Success reveals an object of power—roll on the Cursed Items table to discover its true nature.
5	Frostbitten Supplies	A cart lies in the snow, its frostbitten supplies offering d4* dried food and water. The provisions seem tempting, but they may be spoiled. Consuming them requires you to Test Fortitude DR12 to avoid fever.
6	Abandoned Camp	The scattered remains of a traveller's camp lie frozen in the snow, abandoned in haste. Among the debris are d10‡* Trinkets and a weathered journal, its pages recounting a failed quest to find an ancient tomb.

Local Rumours

Roll d6.

1	"Bjorn's still out there, hunting." Whispers spread like frostbite—Frost-Stalker Bjorn has been seen again, hovering at the edge of villages, watching, waiting for weakness. Survivors swear he can't be killed by ordinary means.
2	"The Nithing walks these woods." An old woman mutters of a Nithing spirit at the town's well, its icy form drawn by the betrayal of a local leader. She swears it marks its prey, waiting for the perfect moment to strike and dish out its cold justice.
3	"The Draugr are restless. The ground itself is opening." Farmers speak in hushed tones of Draugr clawing up from frozen graves, their numbers growing with each passing night. Some say something has stirred them from their rest, and as Fimbulwinter tightens its grip, the worst is yet to come.
4	"Trollkin have stolen our food!" A haggard group of villagers pleads for help—their food stocks have been stolen by Trollkin. Desperation lines their faces as they offer what little they have left to anyone brave enough to track the creatures and reclaim their provisions.
5	"They say Odin's ravens see everything." Travellers murmur that Huginn and Muninn are more vigilant than ever, their dark shapes smudging the skies. The Allfather gathers knowledge, his gaze falling on mortals tied to Ragnarök. To catch their attention, they say, is to be marked—for greatness... or for doom.
6	"Fimbulwinter's only the start." A wandering seer, cloaked in frost and mystique, warns that Fimbulwinter is only the prelude. Their visions speak of Ragnarök's nearness but hint at something else—an ancient force lurking in Midgard's mountains, more terrifying than even the Jötnar.

Roll d8.

1	The Nithing's Revenge. The Nithing emerges, born of broken promises and betrayal. Frost spreads with its steps, its screams sharp with accusations of dishonour. It doesn't care whose guilt it feeds on—yours or another's. To stop it, you must confront the wrong, make amends, or be dragged to a place where regret never fades.
2	Frost-Stalker Bjorn. Bjorn, a once-mighty warrior now lost to the endless winter, lurks in the obscurity of the trees. His eyes burn with hunger, his movements predatory. Draped in beast furs, he strikes with the raw ferocity of a cornered animal. Confronting him is perilous—his knowledge of the woods gives him an edge, and his savagery is unmatched. Defeat him, and you may claim his Trinkets, but beware: Bjorn is no ordinary foe.
3	Wargr Ambush. In the moonlit snow, a pack of d4 Wargr stalk, their glowing eyes piercing through the darkness. Their howls echo long before they strike, the hors d'oeuvre to the hunt. When they attack, it's with deadly precision, moving as one, relentless and calculating.
4	Trollkin Mischief. The village lies in disarray—walls shattered, food stores raided, livestock scattered. The Trollkin cause mischief everywhere, leaving the villagers desperate but too terrified to act. The party can track the miscreants into the wilds, but these creatures won't go down easily. d3 Trollkin lay traps and turn the terrain itself into a weapon.
5	Draugr Raid. From the snow, a band of Draugr (equal to the number of PCs) shambles forth, their frozen armour cracking with each step, their eyes glowing with eternal rage. They attack without hesitation, driven by an unending thirst for battle. Slaying them offers rewards—ancient weapons from the old world, some enchanted, others cursed...
6	Starving Villagers. A huddled group of starving villagers stumbles into view, their stomach's growling with hunger. They beg for food, offering scraps of belongings in trade, desperation etched into every word. But desperation is a dangerous thing—if they feel threatened or denied, their pleas may give way to violence, driven by the instinct to survive.
7	Mara's Nightmare. A Mara has latched onto one of the party, a sinister spirit feeding on their dreams. Each night, it twists their sleep into a labyrinth of terror, leaving them fatigued and drained (d4 damage). Without intervention, the Mara will return night after night, sapping their life and sanity until nothing remains.
8	Frozen Ruins. The party discovers the frozen remains of an ancient village. Among the crumbled ruins, d3 Runes carved into stones hint at a hidden path to a lost treasure or divine artefact. But the air feels thick with warning—disturbing the site risks waking the d4 Draugr who guard it...

Creatures

1 Trollkin

Mischievous and brutish, Trollkin bound through rural communities like condensed smelly storms. You know they've been around when fences are busted, tools go missing, and that creeping unease settles in—like something just slipped out of sight. They live for the chaos they stir up, grinning in the evening as villagers scratch their heads, wondering if it was all just a bad dream or something worse.

HP 10

Armour -

Weapon Stolen tools d6

2 Wargr

Descendants of the great wolf Fenrir, these beasts carry a sliver of their ancestor's fearsome legacy. Their eyes gleam with a primal intelligence, and every move they make is swift and deadly, like a murmur of death. In the dead of night, when the moon hangs high, their howls cut through the silence with a ferocity that chills the bones.

HP 8

Armour Thick fur –d2

Weapon Claw d4, Bite d6

3 Draugr

The spirits of fallen warriors, these restless souls are haunted by the battle fury that devoured them in life. They roam the realm, forever trapped in the heat of their final fight, their lust for combat never satiated. In the dead of night, their ghostly forms clash in unseen wars, the echoes of their rage tearing through the air.

HP 6

Armour Battle worn armour –d2

Weapon Varied weapons. Roll d6.

3–4 = Sword d6
5–6 = Spear d8

4 Mara

Mara, those nightmarish entities, slip into the world of dreams like coughs echoing through a dimly lit room. They haunt the slumbering, pressing down like an anvil on the chest, breathing cold breath into their ears. These spirits feed on fear, sucking the life out of their victims with every nightmare they weave. When the world is quiet, they come, twisting dreams into harrowing visions, leaving their prey weakened—or worse, never waking up at all.

HP 5

Armour -

Weapon Soul drain d8

Special

Fear Factor. Will always attack the most fearful. Any damage dealt to the Mara is also dealt to the attacker.

Frost-Stalker Bjorn

Once, Bjorn was a name people revered—protector, warrior, the guy who kept the wilds in check. But Fimbulwinter came, and the cold didn't just freeze the land; it broke something inside him. Now, he's not a man anymore. The winter crawled into his bones and twisted him into a predator.

Bjorn's nothing but a beast now, prowling the woods, wearing the furs of creatures he's torn apart. His eyes? All rage. He doesn't protect—he hunts. He's become what people fear, lurking just beyond the firelight, waiting to strike. The hero they once sang about is gone, replaced by something cold, savage, and empty.

Armour Bear hide –d2

Weapon Bear hands d8+2

Special

Stalker's Prey. If the characters are within a mile of Bjorn, he knows where they are.

Reward

Blessing of the Frost Stalker. Pick a prey (enemy type or named foe) if you are within a mile of your prey, you know exactly where they are.

The Nithing

Nithings are malevolent spirits born from betrayal, lies and broken oaths, creatures of pure spite and vengeance. In the bleak grip of Fimbulwinter, these spirits have grown in number, drawn to the chaos and desperation that now grips Midgard.

The Nithing take many forms—often a twisted shadow, or a pale, gaunt figure whose presence freezes the air. Wherever they walk, ice trails behind, marking their bitter existence. They hunt those who dishonour their word, who betray their kin or make desperate, deceitful choices. But they don't just kill—they drag their victims into darkness, feeding on their guilt, their broken promises and their shame.

HP 15

Armour Ghostly robes –d2

Weapon Withered fingers d6+2

Special

Liar's Remorse. Whomever goes back on their word in Midgard, the Nithing will find and punish them.

Reward

The Nithing's Intuition. You automatically know when someone is lying and are compelled to enact justice.

ASGARD

Realm of The Aesir

Asgard, once a realm of divine order and beauty, now lies under gloomy, storm-filled skies. Fimbulwinter has seeped into the gods' realm, distorting its once-majestic landscape. Valhalla stands battered by fierce winds, lightning tearing across the sky, as if the heavens themselves mourn the coming of Ragnarök.

The Bifrost flickers weakly, its light fading under the weight of the impending apocalypse. Forests groan under torrential rain, and the land feels brittle, mirroring the turmoil gripping the gods. Once united, Asgard's deities are now fractured, whispers of fear and distrust replacing the laughter and merriment that once echoed through the halls.

Tempests have turned Asgard into a storm-filled battlefield, where even gods must tread carefully. The river Ifing is frozen, allowing Jötnar to invade the heart of the divine realm. With Ragnarök looming, the gods face a stark reality: their time, like that of mortals, is running out.

Weather

Even the gods cannot escape the deadly grip of Fimbulwinter. The weather in Asgard reflects the cosmic upheaval. Roll d6.

1	Divine Storm	A storm born of Thor's fury tears across the sky, its lightning striking wildly. Each bolt threatens the party, dealing d6* damage to anyone it hits. But amidst the chaos, there's a 1-in-6 chance a strike charges a weapon nearby, granting it +2 lightning damage for the next battle.
2	Aurora Veil	An aurora dances across the stormy Asgardian sky, painting the land in flickering shades of green, blue, and gold. Those who stop to behold its beauty feel a sudden clarity, as if touched by a lingering divine presence.
3	Frozen Twilight	The sun vanishes, leaving Asgard shrouded in a twilight. For the next d4* hours, the unnatural gloom muffles sight and sound, granting advantage on all Tests for stealth.
4	Sunlit Cold	A beam of golden light pierces the clouds, bathing Asgard in rare warmth and granting all within it +1 to Fortitude Tests for the next day. Yet this fleeting reprieve from the cold does not go unnoticed—divine eyes turn toward the party, and a challenge may soon follow.
5	Hail of Spears	A hailstorm of divine spears rains down, the sky itself bracing for Ragnarök. The ground is soon strewn with shattered, golden weapons. Test Swift DR12 to avoid them or take d6* damage.
6	Fimbulwinter's Gale	A howling gale tears through Asgard, its breath claiming all in its path. Anyone exposed for more than an hour must roll d4 and subtract the result from their food. Any magical fire is extinguished by the relentless wind.

Local Rumours

Roll d6.

1	"Loki grows bolder." Whispers among the lesser gods tell of Loki's latest scheme—a plot to seize control of the Bifrost. Many fear his machinations will shatter Asgard's defences further, leaving the realm dangerously exposed to the Jötnar's advance.
2	"Odin is watching everyone." The gods murmur of Odin's rising paranoia, his trust worn thin by the weight of Ragnarök. Huginn and Muninn now watch not just Asgard's enemies but his own allies. Those who defy his will or act against his interests risk being marked for swift and merciless judgement.
3	"The Valkyries choose no more." Whispers spread that the Valkyries have ceased choosing the worthy for Valhalla. Some say they've lost faith in the gods' power to halt Ragnarök, while others fear they're preparing for something darker—an unseen purpose that could shake the realms.
4	"The Bifrost is cracking." Rumours circulate of the Bifrost's weakening. Its once-steady glow now flickers, unstable and frail. Some say even Heimdall strains to keep it intact. Soon, crossing the bridge may become perilous—even for the gods themselves.
5	"A traitor walks among us." Rumours swirl that one of the Aesir has betrayed Asgard, secretly aligning with Loki. Freyr and Tyr draw the most suspicion, though none dare voice their fears openly. The air between the gods grows heavier, tension threatening to fracture their fragile unity.
6	"Thor's hammer has been seen in the wrong hands." Whispers circulate that Mjölnir, Thor's legendary hammer, was spotted in the hands of a mortal. Some say it is a sign that the gods are losing control, while others believe it to be a divine test. Whether stolen, gifted, or lost, its absence from Thor's side has left the gods uneasy, fearing what havoc it could unleash if wielded against them.

1	Vakten. The party encounters a group of Vakten *(number of PCs +1), ethereal guardians with otherworldly forms. They block the path and demand a test of worthiness to travel through Asgard. Failure to impress them seals certain paths, but success earns safe passage—or even a blessing from Heimdall himself.
2	Valkyrie's Judgement. A Valkyrie descends, her eyes blazing, her presence heavy with judgement. She demands to know if the party is worthy of her respect, her voice like steel. She challenges the strongest looking member to a holmgang. If they show valour, she may bestow guidance, her blessing as rare as it is powerful.
3	Einherjar Patrol. A patrol of d6* Einherjar, Valhalla's immortal warriors, strides through the realm, their eyes set for battle. They approach the party, offering a trial of combat alongside them against Jötunn invaders. Victory may earn a favour from Odin, but refusal risks the Aesir's wrath, with whispers of cowardice lingering in their wake.
4	Hrist's Fury. Hrist, a fallen Valkyrie with bloodstained wings, emerges from the shadows, her once-divine purpose lost to madness. No longer serving the gods, she hunts mortals for sport, stalking the party with predatory patience. If they endure her relentless attacks, they may uncover the tragedy that drove her to forsake her role.
5	Váli, The Avenger. Váli, the god of vengeance, steps forward, his presence sharp. He demands the party right a wrong—be it personal or divine—with no room for negotiation. His tone carries the weight of inevitability: act now or face his wrath. Agreeing may earn his favour, but refusal guarantees the relentless wrath of his justice.
6	Idunn's Orchard. The party discovers a hidden grove of Idunn's apples, their golden glow a promise of vitality. A PC who eats one is fully healed and recieves +1 to all Tests for the rest of the day. But such power comes with risk—plucking an apple may draw the attention of Loki or perhaps worse, Idunn's Protectors.
7	The Shattered Bifrost. The Bifrost lies fractured, the once-glorious bridge between realms splintered by Fimbulwinter. Among the ruins, the party finds shards crackling with divine energy. These can be used for a one-time teleportation to another realm. However, the magic is unstable—using a shard requires you to Test Wits DR14. Failure means that you are transported to an unintended and potentially dangerous realm.
8	The Allfather's Eye. Huginn, Odin's great raven, lands nearby, its piercing gaze fixed on the party. It watches in silence, a test of their resolve. If they fall short, the raven croaks a cryptic warning of impending doom before taking flight. If they prove worthy, Huginn leaves behind a Rune, a gift from the Allfather.

Fly. Can fly at will.

3 Einherjar

The Einherjar, spirits of the bravest warriors, stand as timeless sentinels, their forms touched by something beyond. Their weapons, still gripped tightly, are more than tools of war—they're pieces of their very souls, carried with a purpose that stretches beyond time.

HP 8

Armour -

Weapon Varied weapons. Roll d6.
1–2 = Throwing Axe d4 ranged
3–4 = Morning Star d6
5–6 = Lance d8

Special

Insult to Injury. Attacks deal +2 damage to targets already wounded.

4 Idunn's Protectors

Their skin, textured like bark, carries the rich, earthy tones of the trees they defend. Their hair flows like leaves and blossoms caught in the breeze, and their eyes flash with the vibrant green of fresh growth, alive with the orchard's vitality.

HP 5

Armour Golden bark –d3

Weapon Thorns of Idunn d6

Special

Regeneration. Heals *d3*HP at the end of every round.

Unique Beings

Hrist, Valkyrie of Fury

Once a noble chooser of the slain, Hrist's role as a Valkyrie has been consumed by an insatiable thirst for battle. Her radiant wings, now stained with blood, no longer serve to guide souls to Valhalla, but to hunt the living. Disillusioned and driven by rage, Hrist sees mortal life as unworthy of the gods and seeks to snuff it out wherever it thrives.

Her judgement has twisted into vengeance, her blade swift and merciless. Once a guardian of balance, Hrist has become a force of pure destruction, leaving only death in her wake.

HP 18

Armour Golden armour –d3

Weapon Golden longsword d8+3

Special

Fly. Can fly at will.

Amnesia. You will not remember this encounter.

Rewards

Golden Longsword (d8+3 damage).

Vali, The Avenger

Váli's life has been defined by vengeance. He seeks not only to punish those who defy the gods but to impose his own brutal sense of morality on the realms. Every battle is a means to satisfy his hunger for retribution, his cold, calculating rage making him a fearsome god in Asgard.

Unconcerned with mercy or diplomacy, Váli's heart is consumed by the need to right wrongs through force, and those who stand in his way are swiftly crushed under the weight of his wrath. He is more than just a warrior—he is vengeance incarnate.

HP 27

Armour -

Weapon Avernger's greataxe d10+3

Special

Bloodied. Once at half health or below, attacks and defence are DR+2.

Rewards

The Avenger's Greataxe (d10+3 damage)

VANAHEIM

Realm of The Vanir

Vanaheim, once a land of gentle breezes and harmony, has been ravaged by Fimbulwinter's savage winds. Tornadoes tear across the plains, uprooting trees and flattening villages, while storms batter the forests relentlessly. The balance the Vanir gods once maintained has been swept away, leaving the realm in chaos.

The mighty trees of Vanaheim, once symbols of growth and fertility, now lie broken, and the rivers, once calm, have turned into wild torrents filled with debris. The people, once at peace with nature, now huddle in shelters, praying for protection from the gales that never cease.

Even the Vanir gods are not immune to the devastation. Freyr's once-bountiful fields are now barren, swept away by storms, and Njord, god of the seas and winds, has lost control of the elements he once commanded. The creatures of Vanaheim have turned wild, their minds broken by the endless howling winds.

Weather

The weather in Vanaheim is chaotic, driven by the gods' loss of control and the power of Fimbulwinter tearing the realm apart. Roll d6.

1	Tornado Uprising	Massive tornadoes tear through the plains, uprooting trees and shredding the landscape. The party must Test Swift DR14 or be caught in the winds, suffering d6* damage and losing any sense of direction.
2	Elemental Storm	A wild elemental storm roars across the land. The sky is filled with lightning, ice shards, and gale-force winds.
3	Howling Gale	The winds howl relentlessly, carrying faint songs through the air. Though disorienting, those who listen carefully may glean fragmented wisdom from the Vanir's ancient knowledge. Test Wits DR12 to discern a useful clue or insight.
4	Flooded Plains	The rivers have overflowed, turning the once-fertile plains into a dangerous flood zone. Movement is restricted, and anyone attempting to cross the waters must Test Might DR12 to avoid being swept away.
5	Blinding Rain	Sheets of cold rain pour from the sky, obscuring vision and making the ground treacherous. The party suffers −2 to all ranged attacks and must Test Swift DR12 to avoid slipping on the soaked terrain.
6	Veil of Frost	A gentle frost settles over the land, painting the trees and plains in shimmering silver. The cold is brisk but not harmful, and its beauty seems almost calming.

1	Overgrown Shrine	The party discovers an overgrown shrine to an ancient Vanir god hidden beneath vines and debris. Leaving a sacrifice of food or water at the altar grants a blessing, bestowing +1 to Swift Tests for the rest of the day.
2	Wind-Touched Tree	A lone tree rises defiantly against the storm, its branches crackling with elemental energy. Touching it grants the party temporary control over the wind for the rest of the day. However, misuse of this power risks angering the land's spirits, inviting their wrath.
3	Vanir Relic	Buried in the mud, the party uncovers a cursed Vanir relic—a weapon or item humming with ancient nature magic. Roll on the cursed item table.
4	Gullveig's Altar	The party discovers a hidden altar to Gullveig, the enchantress, adorned with gold and Trinkets left by fearful supplicants. Taking these offerings invites her wrath, summoning Gullveig to exact vengeance and reclaim what is hers.
5	Flooded Cave	A half-submerged cave entrance looms ahead, its dark depths beckoning the party. Inside, remnants of Vanir Trinkets glimmer in the dim light, promising rewards. However, the cave is dangerously unstable—at any moment, it may flood. Escaping in time requires you to Test Swift DR12, or the party risks being trapped as the waters rise.
6	Seed of Freyr	In the centre of a ruined field, the party discovers a single glowing seed of Freyr, pulsing with vibrant life. If planted, it instantly sprouts into a small grove, providing shelter and restoring an additional d6*HP to those who rest within. However, removing the seed from Vanaheim risks invoking a wrath.

Local Rumours

Roll d6.

1	"Freyr is missing." The whispers run like frostbite—Freyr is gone. The god of fertility, the one who made the earth sing, vanished without a trace. Some say an Aesir god dragged him off, others claim he just walked away, tired of carrying a world that's rotting from the roots.
2	"Njord has lost control." The seas don't listen anymore. Njord, god of the waves, is just another old man shouting at clouds that don't care. The winds tear through like wild dogs, and people say Gullveig cursed him, laughing at his struggle while the waters drown the land.
3	"Gullveig has returned." She's back, Gullveig, the one who smiles while the world burns. Her power wraps around the chaos, tightening like a noose. They say she's not just bending nature; she's pulling it apart, weaving it into something only she can control. And if the gods stand in her way? She'll topple them like broken idols.
4	"The Vanir have abandoned us." Prayers are dead letters now. The Vanir aren't answering—maybe they're gone, maybe they just don't care anymore. The land is cold, the spirits are angry, and the people are left to freeze while the gods turn their backs.
5	"The Grove Wardens have awoken." The Grove Wardens are moving, slow and heavy, like the forest itself got tired of being cut down. Some say they're reclaiming what's theirs; others think they're gearing up for a fight no one's ready for. Either way, they don't care about who's innocent and who's guilty.
6	"A power in the wind." The wind doesn't just howl—it calls, whispers promises of power to anyone stupid enough to listen. Some try to grab it, thinking they can bend the storm. Most of them don't make it. The ones who do? They're never quite right again.

Creatures

1 Vanir Guardians

Divine soldiers draped in ornate, leaf-encrusted armour—serene but deadly. They wield natural magic and forest knowledge to keep intruders at bay. Don't mistake their calm for weakness; they'll turn the woods against you before you even realise you're lost.

HP 6

Armour Leaf-encrusted armour –d2

Weapon Twisted bow d6 ranged

Special

Veil of Leaves. Once per battle, a Vanir Guardian can shroud itself or an ally in a camouflage of leaves and vines, making them invisible for one round unless they attack.

2 Landvaettir

Revered spirits tied to the land itself, each has a piece of the landscape woven into their being—rocky skin, limbs like flowing water, you name it. They're the embodiment of the hill, river, or grove they're linked to, and won't let anyone mess with their turf.

HP 8

Armour (Unless on rocky terrain) –d2

Weapon Weapons are based on the terrain.
Rocky = Boulders d8 ranged
Forested = Poison Mist Test Fortitude DR12 or become poisoned
Water/Wet = Crashing waves d6
All Terrain = Slam d4

Special

Form of the Land. The Landvaettir changes based on its terrain.

- Rocky = Armour –d4.
- Forested = Can entangle an enemy; Test Fortitude DR12 or be stunned for one round.
- Water/Wet = DR to hit +2.

3 River Nymphs

Enchanting water spirits guarding the rivers and lakes, these radiant figures have skin that ripples like the waters they protect. Their siren songs can either lead you safety or send you straight to your doom, depending on their mood—and how much they like your face.

HP 5

Armour -

Weapon Screech d4

Special

Siren Song. Once per encounter, a River Nymph can sing an enchanting melody. Enemies who can hear the song must Test Guile DR14 or be compelled to move toward the Nymph on their next turn.

4 Grove Wardens

Sentient beings, more tree than man, these wardens are the forest incarnate, with every step causing the ground to burst with new life. They're connected to the health of the forest in a way that's almost frightening, and they'll respond to any threat with a force that makes the whole damn grove rise up in defence.

HP 6

Armour Thick bark –d3

Weapon Vine whip d6

Special

Regeneration Flame. Regains 1HP at the start of each round unless damaged by fire. Fire also deals double damage to the Wardens.

Unique Beings

Gullveig the Enchantress

Gullveig, the ancient witch and seeress, is a figure cloaked in mistique and menace. Her name is spoken with a mix of awe and fear, symbolizing her insatiable lust for gold and power as much as mastery over arcane magic. Thrice burned, thrice reborn, her ties to the Aesir-Vanir conflict are etched in myth.

Now, in Vanaheim, she's back—stronger and more dangerous. Her goal? To overthrow the divine order, carve out her place as a deity, and make the gods tremble before her cold, calculated hunger for power.

Reward

Enchantress' Hunger. Activate once to topple the divine order: deal double damage to Aesir Gods for d4 rounds.

HP 24

Armour Nature's ward −d2

Weapon Vinewoven staff d4

Special

Resistant to Fire. Gullveig takes only half damage from fire-based attacks.

Witchcraft Arsenal. Gullveig can wield different magical attacks by rolling a d4 each round to determine her action:

- Summon Boar = Summons a spectral boar to charge a single target, dealing d6 damage.
- Hexfire Blast = Launches a bolt of dark energy; all targets she can see must Test Swift DR12 or take d8 damage.
- Vine Bind = Vines erupt from the ground. The target must Test Might DR14 or be stunned.
- Curse of Weakness = Weakens a target's resolve; they must Test Guile DR12 or take a −2 penalty to all Tests on their next turn.

Skirnir the Corrupted

Once Freyr's loyal messenger, Skirnir was known for his diplomatic skill and unwavering devotion. His journey to woo the giantess Gerd was proof of his resourcefulness. But those days are gone.

Bitterness has turned into a vendetta against the gods he once served, now believing they've abandoned him.

Reward

Corrupted Negotiator. One use; anyone will agree to a bargain or trade of your choosing, no matter how outlandish. They will, however, be aware of the trick after d12 hours.

HP 10

Armour Tattered leather robes −d2

Weapon Redwood bastard sword d10+1

Special

Don't Shoot the Messenger. Once per encounter, he can target one character and attempt to charm them. The target must Test Guile DR14 or become temporarily enthralled by Skirnir's will, turning against their allies and attacking the nearest party member for the next round. This effect ends after one round or if the enthralled character takes damage.

Jötunheim

Realm of The Giants

Jötunheim, the vast, frozen land of giants, has been consumed by a relentless frost, but the biting cold is only the start. Towering ice cliffs rise like jagged teeth, and shifting glaciers turn the landscape into a treacherous maze. Hidden beneath layers of snow, deep crevasses wait to swallow the unwary, leaving only silence behind.

The Jötnar, once proud and solitary, have grown more aggressive as Fimbulwinter grinds on. Resources, already scarce, have dwindled further, sparking brutal skirmishes. The strongest giants now dominate, forcing weaker clans into submission or driving them from their strongholds. Once unified, the Jötnar are now fractured, forging uneasy alliances out of desperation, destined to crumble as quickly as the ice beneath their feet.

Meanwhile, monstrous creatures prowl the frozen wastes. Frost drakes glide through the snow, and colossal ice beasts, driven from their lairs, hunt anything in their path, including giants.

Weather

The weather in Jötunheim is as harsh and unforgiving as the giants who live there. Blizzards and icy winds constantly batter the land. Roll d6.

1	Blinding Blizzard	A blizzard sweeps through the land, reducing visibility to nothing. All movement is halved, and the party must Test Fortitude DR12 every hour to avoid taking d4* cold damage from the extreme cold.
2	Reshaping Landscape	The glacier beneath the party shifts, creating new paths and revealing hidden features in the ice. What was once impassable now offers potential shortcuts. The party may Test Wits DR12 to spot a newly opened route or hidden cave.
3	Howling Winds	The wind howls through the ice cliffs, creating a deafening roar. All Guile Tests are made with disadvantage for the next hour, and attacks suffer a −2 penalty as the winds tear through the air.
4	Frozen Fog	A thick fog rolls in, freezing everything it touches. The party must Test Fortitude DR12 or suffer from frostbite, which deals d4* damage and slows movement by half until treated.
5	Dance of Ice	Tiny, glittering ice crystals fall from the sky in a mesmerizing display, reflecting the pale light of Jötunheim. The air feels oddly calm despite the cold.
6	Fimbulwinter's Breath	An unnatural cold settles over the land, even more intense than usual. All Fortitude Tests are made with disadvantage for the next day, and anyone who fails these Tests suffers d4* cold damage.

1	"Thrym's got the war drums beating." Talk is thick in the icy air. Thrym, the Frost King, is raising an army, one that could break the sky. They say he's found a way to control the blizzards tearing apart Jötunheim, and he ain't gonna use that power for a winter holiday.
2	"The mountain's groaning." It ain't just the cold shaking the land. Giants are talking about something old, something asleep beneath those frozen peaks, waking up like a beast with a hunger for chaos. Some think it's Ragnarök knocking at the door. Others? They say it's worse—something even Thrym's too scared to wake.
3	"Geirrod's laying traps for Thor." Geirrod's been setting traps—traps so damn clever the gods themselves might fall for 'em. Giants who wander into his part of Jötunheim? They don't come out the same, if they come out at all. Even the gods know better than to cross that bastard.
4	"The Frost Drakes are restless." The Frost Drakes—always aloof, always distant—are getting hungry. And mean. Now, they're even taking swipes at giants, looking for something. Mad from the cold? Or just pissed they don't own this place anymore?
5	"The Rime Etins are ready to burn it all down." The Rime Etins, those smaller giants, are done with being Thrym's puppets. They've got plans to overthrow the big man, but to do it, they need blood—and plenty of it. You help them? You're marked for death, too, and Thrym's not one for mercy.
6	"The glaciers are waking." Jötunheim's glaciers? They've started moving like they've got somewhere to be. Giants can't agree on why—some blame the Bergresi, some think it's Geirrod stirring shit, but most know deep down: if the ice starts moving like that, Ragnarök's closer than anyone wants to admit.

Creatures

1 Frost Drakes

Perched on Jötunheim's frozen peaks, Frost Drakes are dragon-like creatures wrapped in an icy mist. Their breath freezes the air, spitting sharp icicles that pierce everything in their path.

HP 9

Armour -

Weapon Ice breath d6 ranged, Claw d4

Special

Fly. Can fly at will.

Frozen Breath. Once per encounter, the Frost Drake can unleash its icy breath in a cone, dealing d6 damage to all targets caught in it's path. Affected targets must Test Might DR12 or be stunned for one round.

2 Rime Etins

The Rime Etins, lesser giants of Jötunheim, command the fury of frost. With a flick of the wrist, they summon blizzards and ice-forged weapons, their hulking forms surrounded by icy tools of violence.

HP 12

Armour -

Weapon Ice spear d6, Ice club d8

Special

Summon Blizzard. Once per encounter, the Rime Etin can conjure a blizzard. All enemies close to the Etin must Test Fortitude (DR14) or take d4 damage and gain a −2 penalty to Swift Tests for the next round.

3 Bergresi

Bergresi are the elemental spirits of Jötunheim's jagged peaks. Like sneaky moles, they move through stone, their power ripping the earth apart with rockslides and quakes.

HP 3

Armour Stone skin −d4

Weapon Rock fists d8

Special

Stone Merge. A Bergresi can move through rock and stone, making it impossible to hit while within solid terrain. It can emerge to attack, leaving it vulnerable, before retreating back into the rock during the next round.

4 Glima Giants

Towering behemoths, the Glima Giants rule their frozen domain with brute force. Anyone daring to cross their path must face a test of mettle—a wrestling match that few survive, brother.

HP 15

Armour Giant's skin −d2

Weapon Choke slam d10

Special

Wrestling Moves. Roll a d3 each round:

- Supplex = Deals d6 damage and knocks the target prone.

Thrym, the Frost King

Thrym, ruler of the Frost Giants, is Jötunheim's living nightmare. A hulking mass of ice, his every step cracks the ground, sending shards of frost flying. Known for stealing Mjölnir from Thor, his ambition matches the glaciers he commands—cold and unforgiving.

His eyes, glowing like arctic ponds, see only through the lens of old, unfeeling power. His massive ice club summons blizzards with a single swing.

HP 30

Armour Ice-encrusted body −d3

Weapon Ice club of Thrym d12+4

Special

Ice Men Cometh. Thrym calls forth ice-formed warriors from the snow around him. Roll a d4 to determine how many Ice Warriors appear (4HP, icy fists d6). These minions obey Thrym's commands and will attack intruders relentlessly until destroyed or dismissed.

Blizzard Summon. Thrym can summon a blizzard once per encounter. This raging storm affects all creatures (not his Ice Warriors), forcing them to Test Fortitude DR14 or take d6 cold damage and suffer a −2 penalty to all Tests until the end of their next turn due to the freezing winds.

Rewards

Ice Club of Thrym (d12+4 damage)

Geirrod

Geirrod, the giant of shadows and tricks. Tall and grey as the stones he hides among, he waits, unseen, always ready to strike. Geirrod doesn't fight with fists—he fights with cunning, using traps so devious even Thor has to think twice.

The mountains themselves seem to bend to his will, every rock and crevice a weapon in his hands. When you face Geirrod, you're not just up against a giant—you're up against the land itself.

HP 22

Armour Cloak of the Jötunn −d2

Weapon Bear trap sling d4 ranged (Test Swift DR12 or be unable to move during the next round)

Special

Lair of Traps. Geirrod's domain is littered with cunning traps that blend into the natural landscape. As the party explores his lair, they must Test Swift DR14 to avoid triggering hidden traps. Failing the Test causes them to suffer d4 damage as rocks fall, pits open, or concealed spikes spring up.

Shadow in the Rocks. Geirrod has mastered the art of ambush. Once per encounter, he can vanish into the rock formations, becoming untargetable for one round. When he re-emerges, his next attack with his traps gains +2DR to defence as he catches his opponents off guard.

Rewards

Gerriod's Master Trap. This one-use trap is almost impossible to spot by Jötnar, if caught in this trap the target takes d12+3 damage and cannot move during the next round

ALFHEIM

Realm of The Light Elves

Alfheim, the land that used to glow like something out of a dream, is now nothing but a scorched desert. No snow, no cold—just an endless stretch of sandstorms that tear through what's left of this parched place. The once-brilliant sky? It's nothing but a dull haze, choking out the light like the last drag of a cigarette. The golden cities, the shining towers the Elves built to touch the heavens? Buried. Gone. The sands swallowed them up like they never existed.

Up on the surface, the desert is alive with things that shouldn't exist. Giant scorpions and sand serpents—they're the new kings here, slithering under the dunes, waiting to strike. And if the creatures don't get you, the spirits will. Ghosts of the past wander the wasteland, beautiful, terrible things, drawing you in with promises of what once was. But it's all a lie, and before you know it you're just another body buried beneath the sand.

Alfheim might have escaped the ice, but it sure as hell didn't escape the end. The light's gone, buried under layers of dust and regret. And as Ragnarök looms, the Elves are left wondering if they'll ever see the stars again—or if their once-brilliant world will just disappear, forgotten, like so many others before it.

Weather

The desert of Alfheim is harsh and unforgiving, its once-brilliant skies now replaced by endless storms and choking winds. Roll d6.

1	Eternal Horizon	The desert stretches on forever, the heat shimmering off the sand like a curse. There's something eerie about it, like Alfheim itself is lost in time.
2	Blinding Sandstorm	The sandstorm hits fast, fierce. Visibility drops to nothing. All Tests that rely on perception are made with disadvantage as the sand grinds against your skin. Anyone caught outside takes d4* damage every hour from the abrasiveness of the wind. Moving through it? You're blind, and you're walking through hell.
3	Echoes of Glory	The wind carries something. Almost like music—melodic fragments of a world long gone. The air hums with the memory of Alfheim's lost grandeur, but it's a ghost now.
4	Sudden Drought	The air turns thick, dry. Water in your packs vanishes into nothing (lose d4 water), evaporated by the unnatural heat. Test Wits DR14 to find a water source before dehydration kicks in. Fail, and you'll be feeling the sun drain every drop from you.
5	Fleeting Mirage	A shimmer on the horizon. An oasis, maybe a city, or a figure—someone offering help. You can't help but be drawn to it. Test Wits DR12 to resist the pull. If you fail, you'll chase the mirage, and when you get there? Just more sand, more nothing.
6	Light's Last Gasp	For a moment, the sky glows. A last flicker of Alfheim's beauty, and for an instant, everything feels... alive. You gain a +2 to Wits Tests for the next hour. But that beauty fades fast, leaving a deep, aching sense of loss. Like it's the last breath of a dying world.

1	Buried Elven Relic	The sands have swallowed it, but a faint magical glow shines through. A random Rune, but don't get too comfortable. Its power's nearly spent, and trying to tap into it for to long might trigger a magical mishap that'll leave you burned or worse.
2	Crumbling Tower	The skeleton of an elven tower juts out from the dunes like a dying beast. Inside, ancient Runes and long-forgotten Trinkets wait to be uncovered. But the tower's fragile. Test Wits DR14 before disturbing anything, or risk it collapsing and trapping you under a pile of stone.
3	Shattered Mirror of Light	Once a conduit for the Elves to harness light's pure power, the mirror is now shattered, its pieces scattered across the sands. If you're clever enough to reassemble it, the mirror might offer the location of something desired.
4	Sunken Elven Temple	A submerged temple, hidden beneath the ever-shifting sands. Sheltered from the storm, it's a place to rest. But inside, the air is thick with magic, and old Runes pulse. You might uncover some elven secrets or just unleash something best left undisturbed.
5	Desiccated Corpse	A corpse, dried out by the sun, lies in the sand. Maybe it was a fool who didn't know when to stop, maybe someone searching for the same answers you are. On them, there's a map or key to an elven vault, but what's waiting for you at the end of that path? Treasure? Or an early grave?
6	Glowing Oasis	A flicker of light in the middle of the godforsaken desert—an oasis that glows under the harsh sun. It offers water and a chance to recover, letting you regain d6*HP. But nothing comes without a price in this place. Mirage Stalkers or worse might be lurking, waiting to see if you're worth killing.

1	"The last city is buried." The final city of Alfheim's glory got swallowed up by the sands, its magic still flickering deep beneath the dust. Some say it's just waiting to be unleashed, while others call it a cursed tomb—untouchable, best left alone. But who really listens to that kind of advice in a place like this?
2	"The Mirage Stalkers are growing bolder." Once rare, those souls—the Mirage Stalkers—are everywhere now. They're drawn to magic like flies to shit, hunting down anyone with Rune-inscribed weapons or armour. They're not as easy to outrun anymore.
3	"Ælfric is looking for allies." Ælfric, the noble from the Luminous Court, is out there hunting for people dumb enough—or desperate enough—to help him save what's left of Alfheim's fading magic. Word is, he's willing to spill Aesir secrets if you prove you're trustworthy.
4	"The Gatekeeper is watching." Eirwyn's still out there, guarding the last damn gate to somewhere untouched by the eternal winter. She's not one to be charmed or fooled. You'll need to pass her tests—prove you're worth the trouble.
5	"The sands are cursed." They say the sands of Alfheim are cursed, soaked in the souls of those poor bastards who died in the storms. Dig too deep and you might awaken something hungry. Some old vengeful foe with a bone to pick.
6	"The desert hides something." They say buried under the dunes is an elven weapon—something powerful enough to either light up the world or burn it all down. Some think it's their last shot at salvation, others—well, they just hope it doesn't end up in the wrong hands.

Creatures

1 Sun-Touched Raiders

Once proud Elves, now just scavengers in the wasteland. The endless sun and storms have fried their minds and their skin. Their eyes burn with desperation, and their once elegant forms have wasted into something twisted—bone-thin, cracked and hungry.

They'll slit your throat for a scrap of food, no hesitation, no mercy. They've forgotten who they were, and they don't care anymore.

HP 6

Armour -

Weapon Varied weapons. Roll d6.
1–2 = Broken spear shaft d4
3–4 = Rusty scimitar d6
5–6 = Desert hook d8

Special

Mug. When a Sun-Touched Raider successfully attacks, they have a 50% chance of stealing one random item from the target. If successful, they immediately retreat into the sand, vanishing with the stolen item.

2 Sand Worms

Huge, ugly beasts, burrowing through the desert like the land itself is their grave. Tough as nails, their bodies built like steel, nothing short of a god's wrath can pierce them. They can feel you coming before you even know they're there—vibrations in the sand, and then—bam, they're on you.

HP 11

Armour Shield-sized scales –d3

Weapon Crushing bite d8

Special

Swallow. On a fumble, the Sand Worm swallows a target whole. The swallowed character takes d6 damage each round and must pass a Might Test DR14 to break free. Other party members can also attack the worm's soft underbelly from outside DR12 to release the swallowed character.

3 Mirage Trappers

Born from the twisted magic of Alfheim, these ghostly creatures drift through the desert, all shimmering illusions and false promises. They look like a traveller in need, or an oasis glimmering in the heat—until you're close enough to smell the lies. That's when the veil drops, and what you thought was salvation turns into a sand-and-light monster, sharp as a knife and twice as deadly.

HP 4

Armour -

Weapon Blades of sand d6

Special

Multi-Mirage. Due to their ethereal form, Mirage Trappers can only be hit on attacks of DR15 or higher unless the attacker is using magical or rune enchanted weapons, DR10.

4 Desert Scorpions

Huge as nightmares, these scorpions crawl through the desert like scorned exes, their exoskeletons glinting in the relentless sun. Venom drips from their stingers. They don't rush—they wait, buried in the sand, patient and silent. The unlucky ones never know what hit them.

HP 5

Armour Chitin plates –d3

Weapon Poisonous stinger d6

Special

Poison Stinger. When the Desert Scorpion's stinger hits, the target must Test Fortitude DR12 or become poisoned.

Ælfric of the Luminous Court

Ælfric—a name once spoken often through the cities of Alfheim. He runs the Luminous Court like a king in the dark, seen and not heard. Not just some Elf with a fancy title—he's the damn heartbeat of Alfheim's light, the last thread holding it all together.

He's got one thing on his mind: keep the old magic, the ancient ways, alive. No compromises, no bending. Anyone who thinks they're gonna change that can take a seat at the back of the line.

HP 18

Armour Reflective armour −d3

Weapon Luminous spear d8+2

Special

Mirror Shield. Once per encounter, Ælfric can use his Mirror Shield to reflect a spell or ranged attack back at its caster. The attacker takes the original damage or effect they intended for Ælfric.

Light Blindness. When Ælfric activates this ability, his spear emits an intense, blinding flash of light. All enemies that can see the spear must Test Wits DR14 or be temporarily blinded for one round, increasing their attack DR by +4 during that time.

Reward

The Light of the Court. Activate once to blind all enemies that can see you for d3 rounds.

Eirwyn the Gatekeeper

Eirwyn—cold as the frost that bites at your bones, pure as the untouched snow on a mountain top. She doesn't just guard the gates; she is the gate—the last line of defence between Alfheim and whatever horrors lurk beyond.

She's seen it all—every challenge, every would-be trespasser—but that doesn't change a damn thing.

HP 24

Armour Alfheim heavy armour −d3

Weapon Gatekeeper's warhammer d10+3

Special

Gatekeeper's Retribution. When an enemy successfully hits Eirwyn, she automatically counters with a retaliatory strike, dealing d6 damage back to the attacker. This ability activates once per round.

Unyielding Threshold. Eirwyn can create a magical barrier that blocks any enemy trying to cross into Alfheim without her permission. Enemies must Test Might DR16 to bypass the barrier, or they are forcibly repelled, taking d4 damage.

Reward

Gatekeeper's Lock. Speak a Name and a Realm once. The named may not enter the realm for d6 days.

SVARTALFHEIM

REALM OF THE DWARVES

Svartalfheim sits under a sky choked with ash, its mountains clawing at the heavens like pylons in a rural town. The air reeks of iron and sulphur, clinging to the skin like a curse. Waterfalls crash from jagged cliffs, roaring into the unknown, the ground constantly shifting, groaning under the weight of time. No silence here, only the hum of a restless world.

Deep in the mountains, the forges blaze. Ore veins run through the rock like blood, feeding furnaces that never die. Dwarves work in shadow and flame, hammering metal, sparks flying, the grind of their labour endless. Chains creak, powering great wheels, driven by the volcanic heart deep below—a force both life-giving and deadly.

Fimbulwinter grips the land. Tremors shake the mountains, cracks open, rockslides tear into valleys, and rivers shift course. The earth splits wide, devouring all in its path—stone, metal, flesh. But the Dwarves endure, stubborn, reinforcing their halls even as the ground threatens to swallow them.

WEATHER

Svartalfheim's environment is harsh, with constant volcanic activity, ash-choked air, and collapsing mountains. Roll d6.

1	Dust Storm	A thick cloud of dust fills the air, reducing visibility to almost nothing. All Guile Tests are made with disadvantage. Anyone not sheltered must Test Fortitude DR12 to avoid choking on the ash, suffering d4* damage and becoming fatigued.
2	Echoes of the Forge	Instead of toxic fumes, the mines hum with the sound of ancient forges. The clang of hammers on anvils reverberates through the stone, a reminder of long-forgotten craftsmanship, alive with the rhythm of creation.
3	Seismic Tremors	A series of tremors shake the land, threatening to collapse the mountains. The party must Test Swift DR12 to avoid being trapped by falling rocks or sliding into a deep crevasse.
4	Cleansing Breeze	A warm, sulphur-laced gas blows through the tunnels. Though acrid, it somehow invigorates the body, as if the earth itself offers strength. All party members gain a temporary +2 to Fortitude Tests for the next hour, driven by the winds of resilience.
5	Unstable Machinery	The party encounters an area filled with Dwarven machinery, old and rusted, prone to malfunction. As they pass, gears begin to turn and pistons fire unpredictably. Each member must Test Swift DR12 to dodge the machinery. Fail, and suffer d6* damage from crushing or slicing gears.
6	Lava Flow	A sudden eruption sends a river of lava surging through the valley. The party must quickly find higher ground and Test Swift DR14 to escape the flow. Any misstep means being engulfed by the lava, dealing 2d6* fire damage. The earth burns, unforgiving and quick.

2	Vein of Gleaming Ore	The party stumbles upon a rich vein of rare ore, its surface gleaming with magical potential. Mining it could yield valuable materials for crafting or trade, but the act may draw the attention of nearby Dökkálfar, whose dark magic thrives on such disturbances.
3	Crystallised Cave	A crystal-filled cave shimmers with an eerie glow, its walls lined with precious stones. But beware—the cave is fiercely guarded by Crystal Spiders, creatures that strike at any intruder.
4	Forgotten Vault	The party uncovers a vault sealed by ancient runes. Inside, the riches of the Dwarven world await—runic weapons, enchanted armour, and untold treasures. But opening the vault could awaken Rock Golems, bound to protect the contents with deadly force.
5	Dvalin's Workshop	Hidden deep within the caves, the party discovers Dvalin's workshop, filled with cursed artefacts and unfinished creations. To handle these items safely, Test Wits DR14—for any wrong move might trigger their dark magic. But those who succeed may claim the power these twisted creations offer.
6	Collapsed Mine	The remains of a collapsed mine lead deeper into the earth, a maze of crumbling tunnels. These dark passages may hide lost Dwarven artefacts, but tremors rock the area, making every step a gamble.

Local Rumours

Roll d6.

1	"Fafnir guards a hoard of treasure." The Dwarves whisper that Fafnir, the dragon, has added something new to his hoard—an ancient weapon, said to have the power to challenge even the mighty Aesir. But those who've tried to claim it never return. It's a death wish, and everyone knows it.
2	"The forges are malfunctioning." Some say the tremors have broken the forges. What was once the lifeblood of Dwarven craftsmanship has turned into a twisted, dangerous place. The fires burn uncontrolled, and even the bravest Dwarves won't venture near. A catastrophe in the making.
3	"Dvalin's curse is spreading." Rumours are swirling that Dvalin's curse is spreading. Anyone who handles his cursed creations—his twisted weapons or tools—seems to be doomed to the same fate as the old master craftsman. Slowly, they're twisted by the same corruption that turned Dvalin into the monster he became.
4	"The Dark Elves are planning something big." The Dökkálfar are gathering. No one knows exactly what they're planning, but it's bigger than anything they've done before. Dark magic is on the rise, and every time a traveller goes too deep into their territory, they don't come back.
5	"The Crystal Spiders are on the move." The Crystal Spiders have been spotted closer to the surface, moving in numbers that haven't been seen in centuries. Some believe it's a sign that something is stirring in the earth, and that these creatures are preparing for Ragnarök—though what part they'll play in it is anyone's guess.
6	"The forges are burning too hot." The Dwarven forges are burning hotter than they should be, their flames threatening to melt stone and steel alike. The heat is unbearable, and the risk of an explosion or collapse is growing by the day. If they don't get a handle on it, the whole mountain might come crashing down.

Creatures

1 Dokkalfar

In the darkest pits of Svartalfheim, the Dökkálfar—or Dark Elves—move like shadows. Masters of dark magic, they twist reality, warping what you see, hear, and feel.

Their traps are more than snares of flesh; they burrow into your mind, playing on your deepest anxieties.

HP 5

Armour -

Weapon Shadow blast d8 ranged

Special

Mind Maze. The Dökkálfar can warp a target's perception, making them question their surroundings. The target must Test Wits DR12 or be mentally ensnared, suffering −1 to all Tests as they struggle to focus on reality.

2 Rock Golems

Massive stone-and-metal constructs, the Rock Golems lie like forgotten bric-a-brac buried deep. Sculpted by Dwarves, they're silent, patient and waiting. When they stir, it's like the mountain itself is rising to crush anything foolish enough to get in its way.

HP 17

Armour Stone and metal skin −d3

Weapon Crushing slam d8

Special

Stone Sentinel. Rock Golems are indistinguishable from natural rock until they attack. Any creature attempting to perceive them before they move must Test Wits DR14 or assume the golem is just part of the landscape

3 The Searing Ones

Born from Svartalfheim's deepest caves, The Searing Ones are pure fear given form. They move like a last gasp, eyes glowing like stars in a black sky. Blink, and they're gone—leaving nothing but the lingering taste of terror and sulphur.

HP 8

Armour -

Weapon Claw d4, Bite d6

Special

Sulphur Shift. The Searing Ones can move between mists and gasses, vanishing and reappearing in the blink of an eye.

4 Crystal Spiders

Massive spiders, coated in sharp, shimmering crystals, which blend beauty with bereavement. Their near-invisible webs are as strong as steel—deliciously dangerous, drawing in the unwary. They guard the crystal veins—not just treasures, but the very essence of temptation.

HP 2

Armour Crystal thorax −d4

Weapon Infectious bite d4

Special

Glittering Lure. Crystal Spiders are drawn to those carrying the most Trinkets. They will always attack the character with the highest Trinket count first. Their poisonous bite requires you to Test Fortitude DR10; failure results in being Poisoned.

Unique Beings

Dvalin

Once a master craftsman who forged the legendary Brísingamen for Freyja, Dvalin now rots under a curse that's twisted his body and shattered his mind. Deep in the bowels of Svartalfheim, he's a broken genius, desperately clawing at anything—dark runes, old spells—to lift the weight of what he's become.

His lair's a labyrinth of cursed junk and traps, each one a little slice of his warped soul. He's surrounded by loyal, dangerous followers, and whether he's chasing redemption or revenge, it doesn't matter. You cross him, you don't walk away.

HP 20

Armour Masterwork armour −d3

Weapon Enchanted hammer d10+2 (deals an extra d4 damage if the target's armour has a Rune inscribed)

Special

Trapmaster. The first time a character steps into Dvalin's lair, they must Test Swift DR14 to avoid one of his cursed traps. Failing the Test results in d6 damage and a temporary −1 to Guile and Might Tests for as long as they remain in his domain.

Goon Summon. Once per battle, Dvalin can summon two loyal Dwarven followers (8HP, Armour −d2, Weapon d6) to aid him if the battle turns against him.

Reward

Dvalin's Armring. A one-time activation can give the user +3 to all Wits Tests for the rest of the day. (Cursed. After activation, the user will be hunted by Heimdall)

Fafnir the Dragon

Once a Dwarf consumed by greed, Fafnir became a dragon, his lust for Trinkets twisting him into something monstrous. Deep in Svartalfheim, he guards his hoard with a hunger that's erased every trace of his former self.

His scales are a fortress, his breath poison. His lair is a death trap—cursed, and filled with pitfalls and the bones of those who thought they could take his wealth. There's no trace of the Dwarf he was, just a beast driven by an endless need to protect his gold.

HP 37

Armour Dragon scales −d2

Weapon Fire breath d10+3, Claws d6

Special

Sulphuric Breath. Fafnir's breath attack melts d100‡ Trinkets instantly. Additionally, anyone caught in the blast must Test Fortitude DR14 or have their armour degraded by 2 tiers.

Treasure Madness. Fafnir's presence amplifies greed in others. Every character must Test Wits DR12 each round they spend within Fafnir's lair. Failing the Test means they become fixated on his hoard, suffering a −1 to attacks against Fafnir as they eye the treasure obsessively.

Reward

Fafnir's Searing Armour. Tier 4 Armour that imposes no increased DR to Swift Tests or Defence but cannot be enchanted.

NIFLHEIM

Realm of Eternal Ice

Niflheim stretches out where time itself feels frozen beneath layers of frost. The cold isn't just felt—it owns you, seeping into your bones, erasing warmth in seconds. The land, vast and barren, is scarred by deep fissures, cracks in the ice like forgotten wounds. From these gashes, pale, formless spirits rise, weaving through the air without a sound, carrying only the chill of a world long dead.

Above, the sky flickers with the eerie glow of the aurora borealis, casting ghostly light over the frozen plains. It's a beauty that offers no comfort, just a cold reminder of how far this realm is from anything alive. The ice groans beneath, ancient and shifting, while massive glaciers loom like jagged sentinels, their sharp edges a warning to any who might venture too close.

Buried deep beneath it all lies Ymir, the primordial giant, frozen in the ice, a relic from a time of unimaginable power. His colossal form is trapped, held in place by the unyielding frost, a memory of a force that once moved the stars but now lies still. His presence lingers, like a dream that won't fade, a reminder of something ancient and terrible, encased in eternal cold.

Weather

Niflheim's cold is not just weather—it is a force of nature that bends the land and its inhabitants to its will. Roll d6.

1	Blinding Snowstorm	A blizzard rages across the wasteland, reducing visibility to nothing and freezing everything in its path. The party must Test Fortitude DR14 to endure the cold or take d4* damage for every hour spent in the storm.
2	Freezing Mist	The air grows heavy with a freezing mist that softens the harsh environment. The mist obscures vision, giving the party advantage on Tests that rely on stealth for the next day.
3	Ice Shards	Sharp ice shards rain down from the sky, carried by the wind. The party must Test Swift DR12 to avoid taking d4* damage from the falling shards. Finding shelter is crucial, as the storm could last for d4* hours.
4	Aurora's Blessing	The aurora borealis dances across the sky, its vibrant lights energising the party. Any character who takes a moment to bask in its beauty feels their degraded armour repair itself.
5	Frozen Ground	The ground beneath the party cracks and shifts, revealing icy fissures that make movement dangerous. They must Test Swift DR12 to avoid slipping into a crevasse.
6	Silent Night	An unnatural silence descends on Niflheim, muting all sound. Communication is impossible, and the party's footsteps leave no echo. This eerie calm puts everyone on edge.

2	Ymir's Blood	The ice cracks open to reveal a pool of Ymir's blood, frozen yet glowing with raw power. Drinking it grants +2 Might for d4* hours but at a steep price—using it drains d6*HP, as your body fights to contain the primordial strength coursing through you.
3	Frozen Lake of the Dead	A frozen lake, its surface covered with the bodies of the dead, stretches before the party. Crossing it risks disturbing the restless spirits below, who may rise if the ice is disturbed. Test Wits DR14 to avoid awakening the dead and inciting a violent attack.
4	Glacial Cavern	The party stumbles upon a hidden cavern of ice, filled with statues of ancient warriors, preserved in time. Some may carry Runes, while others might be the trapped souls of warriors, waiting for a new body to claim.
5	Ancient Sigils	Ancient runic sigils are carved into the ice, their meanings undicernable. Test Wits DR12 to study them for insights into Niflheim's dark magic and to gain a random Rune.
6	Frost-Rimed Scroll	Buried deep beneath layers of ice, the party finds a Rune—its symbol glowing with ancient power. To decipher its meaning, the party must Test Wits DR12 to avoid triggering a wrath from the gods.

1	"Ymir is waking." The ice trembles more often now, and the whispers grow louder. Ymir, the primordial giant, stirs beneath the frozen earth. Some say his awakening will mark the end of the world, others believe his ancient power can be bent to their will.
2	"Hrímgrímnir is gathering an army." Hrímgrímnir, the Icebound Jarl, is said to be assembling an army of frost spectres and ice wraiths, preparing to invade Asgard. Any who venture too close to his fortress vanish without a trace.
3	"The River Serpents are restless." The rivers of Hvergelmir are rising, and the River Serpents are becoming more aggressive. There are whispers of something hidden deep within the frozen waters—Trinkets or a powerful Rune, perhaps—guarded fiercely by the serpents.
4	"The Mistwalkers are multiplying." Once rare, the Mistwalkers now appear in greater numbers. They are drawn to the places where the veil between worlds thins, preying on the lost and the weak, luring them into endless fog and confusion.
5	"The dead are restless." The frozen dead are rising with increasing frequency, their spirits unable to find rest in Niflheim's cold wasteland. Some say the realm itself is awakening, growing more hostile to all who dare tread its frozen plains.
6	"Ymir's heart still beats." Deep within the ice, it's said that Ymir's heart still beats—a slow, rhythmic pulse felt by those who venture near. Some believe that touching it will grant them his power, while others think it will bring nothing but destruction.

1	Frost Spectres. A group of d6* Frost Spectres—twisted souls stolen by Niflheim's eternal cold—drift toward the party. Their touch freezes the air, chilling the bones before they even lay a hand on you.
2	Ice Wraith Swarm. A swarm of d8* Ice Wraiths slides silently through the mist, their forms barely visible in the frigid air. The party must Test Wits DR12 to spot them. Failure results in the wraiths sapping d6*HP before battle.
3	Mistwalker Trap. The party is surrounded by d4* Mistwalkers, shifting beings of fog and fear. Their presence disorientates the party. They must Test Wits DR14 to maintain their bearings, or risk walking straight into a death trap of shifting mists.
4	River Serpent Attack. Near the frozen rivers of Hvergelmir, d2* River Serpents strike from beneath the ice. The party must Test Swift DR12 to dodge their deadly bites, or suffer d6* damage as the serpents' venomous chill freezes their limbs, reducing movement for d4* rounds.
5	Cracking Ice. As the party crosses the frozen plains, the ice beneath them begins to crack. Test Swift DR12 to avoid falling into a frozen crevasse. Anyone who fails is plunged into the freezing waters below, suffering d6* cold damage and must Test Fortitude DR14 or face a fever from the frigid touch.
6	Frozen Corpse. The party comes across a corpse in the ice—an adventurer, or perhaps a giant, long dead from the frozen grip of Niflheim. Searching the body may yield d3* Runes, hidden among the decay.
7	Beckoning Sound. An eerie sound, and what looks like soldiers clad in black ice, marching through the wasteland. They are emotionless, void of expression. Then without question, they vanish, an echo of their time in life.
8	Ymir's Awakening. The ice beneath the party cracks as they venture deeper into Niflheim. Ymir, the primordial giant, stirs in his frozen tomb. The party must Test Wits DR14 to escape the shifting ice or risk being dragged into the depths of his ancient prison, where his cold power lingers.

Creatures

1 Frost Spectres

Frost Spectres are souls snatched by Niflheim's unforgiving cold, doomed to wander, forever craving warmth. Their touch doesn't just freeze the skin—it creeps into the soul, choking out hope and light. These spirits haunt the desolate wastelands and the darkest corners of the mind, where despair festers, waiting for the moment to strike.

HP 5

Armour Deceptive movement –d2

Weapon Ice shard nails d6

Special

Fire Weakness. Takes double damage from fire-based attacks.

2 Ice Wraiths

Ice Wraiths are born from the mist itself, drifting silently through Niflheim's fog, leaving nothing but an unrelenting chill. They suck the warmth and life from everything they touch, leaving only empty husks behind.

HP 4

Armour -

Weapon Freezing touch d4

Special

Incorporeal. Ignores physical attacks unless made with Rune-enchanted weapons or fire.

3 Mistwalkers

Mistwalkers are born from Niflheim's ever-shifting mists, slippery and elusive, always changing shape. They thrive on uncertainty, guiding their prey into confusion and despair. Step by step, they pull you deeper into a fog where reality warps, and every path leads straight to doom.

HP 6

Armour Misty form –d2

Weapon Withered claws d6

Special

Claws of Confusion. On a hit, the target must Test Wits DR12 or experience temporary hallucinations, imposing a +2 DR to their next attack.

Shifting Form. Attacks against the Mistwalker are DR+1.

4 River Serpents

The River Serpents lurking in Hvergelmir's frozen streams are the icy wardens of death's chill. Their scales cut like ice, and one bite freezes life where it stands.

HP 10

Armour Permafrost scales –d3

Weapon Frozen fangs d8

Special

Aquatic Ambush. If the serpent attacks from the water, the target's defence is made with disadvantage.

Unique Beings

Ymir, the Primordial Giant

Ymir, the ancient giant from which all life once sprang, lies frozen in the heart of Niflheim's icy wastes. His body, long dead, is a silent nod to the chaos of creation—his blood turned to seas, his bones to mountains, his flesh to earth.

But even in death, something of Ymir endures—his presence lingers.

HP 40

Armour Frost-hardened flesh –d4

Weapon Primordial breath d6+2 ranged (ignoring non-enchanted armour)

Special

Ancient Wind. Ymir's Primordial Breath can hit mutliple targets and freezes non-magical items on a fumble, shattering them.

Awaken the Depths. Every round, Ymir's presence causes the ice beneath to shift and crack. All characters must Test Swift DR14 at the start of their turn or take d6 cold damage as the ice shifts.

Reward

Creator's Gift. Activate once to bring the mischievous legion to it's knees, dealing double damage to followers of Loki for d4 rounds.

Hrimgrimnir, the Icebound Jarl

Hrímgrímnir, the Icebound Jarl, is a warlord carved from the cold heart of Niflheim itself. Encased in armour forged in the darkest pits of the underworld, he leads the frozen legions with an unyielding, mechanical precision.

His heart, a frozen void, beats with the ancient fury of a soul damned to eternal frost.

HP 28

Armour Black ice armour –d3

Weapon Icebound greatsword d10+3

Special

Unholy Frost. Hrímgrímnir wields a massive greatsword imbued with an unholy frost. On a fumble, the target is encased in ice and must Test Fortitude DR14 to break free or be stunned for d4 rounds.

Frost Legion. Hrímgrímnir can summon d4 Frost-Bound Warriors (d4HP, Ice axe d6) to his side each round, bound to his command until defeated.

Reward

Icebound Greatsword (d10+3 damage). Once per session, unleash a storm of hail dealing d8 damage to all enemies you can see.

MUSPELHEIM

Realm of Fire

Muspelheim is a world born of fire, where flames rule everything. Rivers of molten lava cut through the land, casting a red glow over jagged volcanic peaks. At the centre, a massive volcano erupts endlessly, spewing molten rock and ash into the boiling sky. The heat here is suffocating, pressing down like a physical weight, while red lightning cracks through the darkness, momentarily lighting up the chaos.

Nothing stays still. The volcano reshapes the land constantly—fresh lava breaks open the ground, steam bursts from fissures, and molten boulders fall from the sky like the gods' fury. The ground trembles under it all, a constant pulse that runs through the realm, as if the earth itself is struggling under the weight of endless fire. Lava moves beneath the surface like blood, ready to erupt at any moment.

Even the air is alive with fire, ash swirling with flames, distorting vision, blurring the line between solid ground and raging inferno. There is no escape—no shelter from the relentless heat. The flames consume everything, and the ground seems hungry for destruction.

Weather

The land of Musphelheim is plagued by volcanic activity and fiery storms, where the very air can scorch flesh and bone. Roll d6.

1	Ash Storm	A thick storm of ash covers the land, reducing visibility to almost nothing. All Swift Tests are made with disadvantage, and the ash clogs your lungs, forcing you to Test Fortitude DR12 every hour or take d4* damage and become Fatigued.
2	Molten Rain	Molten rock rains from the sky as the volcanoes spew fiery debris. The party must Test Swift DR14 to dodge the falling chunks of lava, or suffer d6* damage from the intense heat. The rain lasts for d4* hours, making travel dangerous.
3	Blistering Mirage	The heat becomes so intense that heat waves form, distorting the landscape into surreal and shifting visions.
4	Red Lightning Storm	The sky flashes with red lightning, striking randomly across the landscape. The party must Test Swift DR12 to avoid being struck by a bolt, which deals d6* damage.
5	Volcanic Tremors	The ground shakes violently as the volcanoes rumble, causing the terrain to shift and crack. The party must Test Swift DR12 to avoid falling into the newly formed crevasses, which lead straight into rivers of molten rock.
6	Cleansing Ember Winds	A hot, ember-laden wind sweeps through the land, burning away impurities. The party feels momentarily invigorated, gaining a +2 bonus to Fortitude Tests for the next day.

Roll d6.

1	Abandoned Forge	The party stumbles upon an old Dwarven forge, its walls scorched by flames long past. Reactivating the forge triggers a deadly lava eruption. The party must Test Swift DR12 to avoid disaster.
2	Molten Pool	A pool of molten rock pulses with faint magical energy. Dipping weapons into the molten pool imbues them with fire damage (additional d6 for d4 days), but it's a risky move. The party must Test Fortitude DR12; failure destroys the weapon in the process.
3	Fire-Resistant Ore Vein	A vein of rare fire-resistant ore gleams in the rock, perfect for mining Runes. Mining it requires you to Test Might DR12, but the noise may draw the attention of Molten Hounds lurking nearby.
4	Smouldering Corpse	The charred remains of a fallen adventurer lie half-buried in ash. A collection of d3* Runes can be found, but disturbing the body could set off a trap or alert nearby Flame Spirits.
5	Volcanic Chamber	Hidden deep within the mountain, a volcanic chamber awaits. Its walls glow with Runes. Prying them free requires you to Test Might DR12, but failure may cause a violent lava surge.
6	Petrified Remains	The stone remains of a creature, burned by volcanic heat, lie frozen in place. They may hold secrets to an ancient civilisation or a cursed item.

Local Rumours

Roll d6.

1	"Eldrimnir stirs the lava." Eldrimnir, the fire giant, is said to be preparing for war. With control over the molten rivers, he is reshaping Muspelheim into a fortress of flame. Some whisper he's unlocked the power of fire runes, making his army unstoppable.
2	"Logi seeks a challenge." Logi, the spirit of fire, grows restless in his eternal dominion. He seeks worthy opponents, mortals and gods alike, to test his flames. He's been seen wandering the molten fields, looking for someone brave—or foolish—enough to face him.
3	"The flames hold secrets." It's whispered that the molten rivers of Muspelheim are more than they seem. Some claim the lava holds memories—glimpses of the past or future. But many who've gazed too long have lost their sanity, consumed by the searing visions.
4	"The fire giants are warring." Not all fire giants are united. Rival clans vie for control of the central volcano, and their internal strife has led to whispers of bloodshed. Adventurers may find opportunity in this chaos—alliances, betrayals, or weakness to exploit.
5	"The Ashen Constructs are growing." The Ashen Constructs are multiplying, their presence becoming more widespread. Their growing numbers signal something darker on the horizon.
6	"The volcano is ready to blow." The central volcano of Muspelheim trembles with growing instability. Rumours swirl that a catastrophic eruption is imminent, one that could reshape the realm and send shock waves through the Nine Realms. The ground itself is on the brink of splitting open.

1	Flame Spirits. A swarm of d6* Flame Spirits erupts from the molten rivers, their erratic leaps setting everything they touch ablaze.
2	Ashen Construct Trap. The air grows heavy as d4* Ashen Constructs rise from the ashes, reforming into walls and weapons that block the party's path.
3	Molten Hound Pack. From a volcanic cave, d6* Molten Hounds burst forth, their claws burning with inner fire. The hounds are relentless, pursuing any who flee.
4	Inferno Beetle Ambush. d6* Inferno Beetles explode from the ground, spewing burning acid. Their fire-resistant shells are valuable for crafting heat-resistant gear.
5	Lava Burst. The ground trembles as a sudden eruption shoots lava from a fissure, flooding the area with molten rock. The party must Test Swift DR12 to avoid being engulfed. Failure results in d6* fire damage and potential loss of d20‡* Trinkets to the lava.
6	Steam Vent Trap. A hidden steam vent bursts open, releasing a blast of scalding steam. The party must Test Fortitude DR12 to endure the heat, suffering d6* damage on failure. The vent may also reveal a hidden passage beneath the earth, though exploring it risks further eruptions.
7	Molten River Crossing. A river of molten lava blocks the way. The party must Test Wits DR12 to find a safe crossing, or take d8* damage from the burning heat.
8	Flame Tornado. A flame tornado spirals across the landscape, consuming all in its path. The party must Test Swift DR14 to avoid being caught in the fiery winds, which deal d10* damage and set anything flammable ablaze. The tornado uncovers hidden areas as it tears through the terrain.

Creatures

1 Flame Spirits

Born from Muspelheim's flames, Flame Spirits are fire in its wildest form—unpredictable and deadly. Small but fierce, they leap and ignite everything they touch with frantic energy. Their erratic movements are like fleeting thoughts, here one moment, gone the next. When killed they explode in chaotic bursts.

HP 4

Armour -

Weapon Flame touch d4 fire damage

Special

Touch of Flames. On a hit, the target ignites, causing d2 damage per round until extinguished.

Explosion. When a Flame Spirit is defeated, it explodes in a burst of fire. All creatures close to it must Test Swift DR12 or take d6 fire damage.

2 Ashen Constructs

Born from ancient fires, Ashen Constructs are beings of ash and soot, constantly shifting like memories. They reshape at will, forming weapons that burn—embodying the past's unshakable grip.

HP 7

Armour Shifting ash –d2

Weapon Ashen blades d6

3 Molten Hounds

Forged from molten metal and volcanic stone, glowing with inner fire, their fangs slice through steel. Territorial and relentless, they guard Muspelheim's forges with an intensity that mirrors our own fierce protection of what we hold dear, even as it threatens to consume us.

HP 10

Armour Volcanic hide –d3

Weapon Molten bite d8

Special

Melt. Fumbles with Molten Bite melt through non-enchanted armour, reducing its effectiveness by an additional 1 tier.

Territorial Rage. When defending their territory, Molten Hounds deal +2 damage.

4 Inferno Beetles

Armoured and enduring, Inferno Beetles thrive in Muspelheim's searing heat. They spew streams of burning acid—both creating and destroying, much like the volcanic land they inhabit. Prized for their fire-resistant shells, they symbolise the protective layers we forge in the heat of our own trials.

HP 6

Armour Hardened shell –d4

Weapon Chitinous charge d6 (and knocked prone)

Special

Acid Spray. Once per encounter, the Inferno Beetle can spray burning acid. All targets caught in the spray must Test Swift DR14 or take d6 acid damage and have armour degraded by 1 tier.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Unique Beings

Logi, the Spirit of Fire

Logi isn't just fire—he's fire's pure, untamed rage. A sentient inferno with flames that dance like they've got a mind of their own, and that mind is chaos. To meet him is to witness the world's rawest power, the kind that doesn't ask for permission.

Everything he touches goes up in smoke, turned to ash in a heartbeat.

HP 22

Armour Veil of fire –d2

Weapon Fire claws d8+3

Special

Unstable Flames. At the start of each round, Logi's chaotic fire spreads to any flammable object within close range, which ignites and burns uncontrollably.

Inferno Burst. Once per battle, Logi releases a burst of fire, forcing everyone close to him to Test Swift DR14 or take d8 fire damage.

Reward

The Spirit of the Flame. Activate once to become immune to fire damage for d4 rounds

Eldrimnir, Fire Jotunn

Among Muspelheim's fire giants, Eldrimnir is a god of chaos in flesh. A towering colossus, his molten rock skin pulses with heat so intense it warps the air around him.

Destruction isn't enough for him; it's the unravelling of order, the pure joy in watching the world burn down to nothing.

HP 28

Armour Volcanic rock –d3

Weapon Molten hammer d10+4

Special

Lava Command. Eldrimnir can summon a river of lava, creating a barrier or line of molten rock. Anyone attempting to cross it takes d10 damage unless they succeed in a Swift Test DR14.

Seismic Stomp. Eldrimnir stomps the ground, creating a shock wave. All enemies must Test Swift DR14 or be knocked prone and take d6 damage from the impact.

Reward

Molten Hammer (d10+4 damage).

HELHEIM

REALM OF THE DEAD

Helheim stretches beneath a sky choked with fog, its cold, unmoving expanse slowing time itself. The air is thick with a mist made from restless souls, pale green threads that wind through the land like unspoken whispers. It clings to everything, a shroud wrapping the world in muffled silence. Tombs and graves litter the rocky landscape, crumbling into dust, as though the very stone longs to disappear along with the souls buried within.

The air is heavy, pressed down by the sorrow of countless lost souls, their presence etched into the ground. The dead are hollow-eyed shadows, wandering aimlessly, their whispers barely more than a breeze against the stone. Helheim is drained of colour, its only light the faint glow of the sickly green mist. Jagged cliffs fall into endless darkness, as if the realm has no bottom, no end—just a cold, empty void.

Yet, Helheim is not peaceful. The mist shifts with a cold purpose, moving through cracks in the stone, around graves, creeping like death itself. It is not a sudden blow, but a slow, suffocating force that seeps into the bones, draining warmth and hope with each step.

WEATHER

Helheim's weather is as cold and lifeless as the realm itself. Mist, darkness, and a slow, inevitable decay dominate the atmosphere. Roll d6.

1	Thick Fog	The fog thickens, reducing visibility to mere feet. All Swift Tests are made with disadvantage, and combat becomes difficult, with all attacks suffering a +2DR penalty to hit.
2	Freezing Rain	A freezing rain begins to fall, chilling the air but leaving a strange clarity in its wake.
3	Silent Night	The air falls unnaturally silent, muting all sound. Communication is impossible.
4	Soulstorm	A soulstorm sweeps across the land, filling the air with the wails of the lost. The party must Test Wits DR14 to maintain their composure, or forget who they are for d4* hours.
5	Grave Mist	A grave mist rolls in, carrying faint whispers that seem to guide the party. Those who Test Wits DR12 may gain insight into their surroundings or uncover a hidden location.
6	Eternal Twilight	The light dims to a faint, sickly green, making everything feel distant and unreal.

2	Corpse Light Trail	A trail of flickering Corpse Lights leads off into the mist. The lights dance enticingly ahead, promising a hidden crypt filled with treasure, but they may also guide the party into an ambush. Spirit Bound Guardians lie in wait, ready to strike when the party least expects it.
3	Bone Collector's Lair	The party stumbles into the lair of a Bone Collector, surrounded by the twisted remains of countless dead. Among the bones, a cursed item lies waiting. But taking it will anger the Bone Collector, who will either force the party into a desperate battle or chase them down if they flee.
4	Shattered Gravestone	At the base of a cliff lies a shattered gravestone, its surface covered in ancient runes. Studying the stone could reveal lost knowledge. But the area is haunted by Móðguðr's Sentinels, who will not hesitate to strike anyone who dares disturb the sacred ground.
5	Frozen Pool of Souls	A frozen pool reflects the faces of the long dead, their eyes hollow with the weight of forgotten lives. Staring into the pool allows the party to communicate with a lost soul, who may offer valuable insights or warnings. But those who gaze too long risk being pulled into the pool, their minds shattered as the soul attempts to drag them into the afterlife.
6	Hel's Throne	The party comes across a throne of ice and bone, said to belong to Hel herself. Sitting upon the throne grants the sitter visions of the future—glimpses of Ragnarök that may change everything. But this act draws the attention of Garmr, the spectral hound of Helheim, who will stop at nothing to claim those who sit on the throne as his own.

Local Rumours

Roll d6.

1	"Hel watches from the shadows." The whispers of the dead say that Hel, the cold mistress of the underworld, watches every soul that enters her realm. She waits patiently, biding her time, picking and choosing the souls she deems worthy to serve her and her sister. Some even claim she's begun preparing for the final battle of Ragnarök, collecting the souls who will fight for her.
2	"Garmr prowls the gates." Garmr, the monstrous hound of Helheim, is said to be more restless lately. His howls echo across the land, a grim reminder of his ever-present watch over Hel's realm. Some believe he's growing restless in anticipation of Ragnarök, preparing to defend the gates of Helheim with a savagery unmatched by any mortal or god.
3	"The Náir are restless." The Náir, Helheim's Corpse Lords, are stirring in their tombs. Dark magic churns beneath their decaying flesh, growing stronger by the day. Those foolish enough to venture near their lairs often never return, their bodies claimed by the eldritch powers that these cursed beings command. The realm's balance may be on the brink of shifting, and with it, a storm of death and power.
4	"The dead are disappearing." A strange phenomenon plagues Helheim—the dead are vanishing. Souls, once bound to the cold, endless expanse of the underworld, are simply being devoured by some unknown force. Those who venture to investigate this growing mystery risk joining them, dragged into an abyss where even the dead lose their place.
5	"The Gates of Náströnd are weakening." The cursed shores of Náströnd, where the most wretched souls are eternally punished, are said to be slowly decaying. The barriers that keep the damned spirits from breaking free are fraying at the edges. If the gates fall, an unstoppable tide of vengeful souls will sweep through Helheim, and the underworld may collapse into chaos.
6	"Helheim is shrinking." The dead speak in hushed tones of Helheim's decay. The realm is slowly shrinking, the fog that once stretched endlessly now closing in around the trapped souls. Some believe the realm itself is dying, and when it fades completely, the souls held within it will be lost forever, vanishing into the void like forgotten memories.

Creatures

1 Modgudr's Sentinels

Born from the frost of Móðguðr's will, these spectral sentinels haunt the borders of Helheim, their purpose as grim as the land they guard. Armed with weapons that flicker like glimpses of long-forgotten wars, they patrol with precision, ensuring that the dead stay where they belong.

HP 6

Armour -

Weapon Spectral blade d6

Special

Spectral Attack. Spectral Blade bypasses all armour.

Incorporeal Form. Reduces all physical damage by half.

2 Bone Collectors

Bone Collectors are skeletal figures that shuffle through Helheim's shadowed realm, methodically gathering the bones of the dead. With cold hands, they reanimate these remains, twisting them into grotesque constructs, each one an extension of their dark will. Their touch saps the strength from the living.

HP 10

Armour -

Weapon Skeletal grip d4

Special

Might Drain. A successful touch attack reduces the target's Might by 1 for the duration of the encounter.

3 Spirit Bound Guardians

These spectral warriors are the broken remnants of fallen defenders, condemned to Helheim as punishment for their failures. Bound to the underworld, they stand watch, their ghostly weapons striking with the force of both body and soul. Near indestructible, they are the living embodiment of regret—trapped in an endless cycle of atonement, forever paying for the duties they failed to fulfil in life.

HP 13

Armour Ghostly armour –d2

Weapon Ethereal blade d6
(+2 damage to targets already wounded)

Special

Eternal Binding. If a target falls to a Spirit Bound Guardian, their soul is immediately trapped in Helheim, making ascension to Valhalla impossible.

Past Lives. Spirit Bound Guardians take the forms of former fallen party members who's names are forgotten.

4 Corpse Lights

Corpse Lights are twisted, malevolent spirits, their flickering glow like that of a will-o'-the-wisp but with a deadly twist. They lead the unwary deeper into the shadows of Helheim, their soft light a cruel illusion of safety. But as one draws near, their true forms are revealed—burning skulls wrapped in ghostly flames, scorching both flesh and soul.

HP 6

Armour -

Weapon Flame grasp d6 fire damage
(Tests Fortitude DR10 or take d4 fire damage at the start of the next round)

Special

Luring Flame. Targets that can see the flame must Test Guile DR12 or be compelled to move toward the Corpse Light on their next turn, ignoring potential hazards.

Garmr, the Guardian of Helheim

Garmr is no mere hound—he is death itself, stalking the borders of Helheim with an insatiable hunger. His fur, blacker than the space between stars, swallows light and air alike, leaving only the oppressive weight of his presence. His eyes burn with a ghostly glow, a silent reminder that no one escapes the inevitability of their end.

Garmr's howl isn't just a sound; it's the pulse of the underworld, a low, bone-rattling resonance that claws at your soul, dragging you closer to oblivion. Trying to run from Helheim is a fool's errand—his jaws, cold and merciless, are always one step behind, tearing through any hope of escape with brutal finality.

HP 30

Armour Necrotic fur –d3

Weapon Jaws of the abyss d8+3

Special

Deadly Bite. On a hit, Jaws of the Abyss ignores 1 point of armour and induces a sense of dread, making the next Fortitude Test against Garmr +2 DR.

Spectral Howl. Once per battle, Garmr unleashes a bone-chilling howl that forces all within hearing range to Test Fortitude DR14. Failure means you are stunned from fear for d2 rounds as memories of death flood you mind.

Eternal Pursuit. Garmr can teleport to any location within sight when a target attempts to flee, appearing as a dark blur that shadows their every move. This ability activates automatically if someone moves away from him without attacking.

Reward

Náir, the Corpse Lords

The Náir, the Corpse Lords of Helheim, are towering abominations of decay, born from the unquiet dead who could never rest. They aren't just rulers; they are the physical form of resentment, envy, and the rotting bitterness that festers in the hearts of the forgotten.

Their bodies are a grotesque patchwork of decayed flesh and brittle bone.

HP 26

Armour Amalgamation of corpses –d3

Weapon Necrotic touch d6+3

Special

Aura of Decay. All close to Náir must Test Might DR12 each round or lose 2HP as the cold and decay saps their strength. Any creature that dies within their aura becomes an animated corpse under the Náir's control for the rest of the encounter.

Grasp of Envy. Once per round, the Náir can extend a hand toward an enemy, forcing them to Test Wits DR14. Failure results in the target losing an item of value (weapon, Trinkets, or Rune), which disintegrates into dust.

Reward

Náir's Servitude. Gain a Boney Corpse Follower (d10HP, can wield weapons, Tests made with no bonuses). If it is defeated, it can be resurrected by striking a tale from your Saga.

Running Odin

- Overwhelming Power = Odin doesn't hold back. Open with runic magic, summon the Einherjar to do his dirty work, and let Gungnir cut through your characters like they're nothing but leaves caught in the wind.
- Control the Battlefield = The Wild Hunt, storms, and collapsing terrain keep the characters scrambling. The fight should feel like they're wrestling with the weight of the world.
- Last Phase Chaos = When Odin goes berserk, the rules break with him. He's no longer a god at the top of the mountain—he's the mountain itself, crumbling and crushing everything in his way.

Beating Odin

Fighting Odin isn't just combat—it's surviving a storm, outthinking a god, and standing against the full weight of fate.

- Resourceful Use of Runes and Artefacts = If your characters came prepared, their hard work pays off here. Runes, alliances, and artefacts shift the balance.
- Allies and Strategy = Characters who sought aid from gods or tricked Loki into helping have an edge. In this fight, cunning is as important as might.

Loot and Rewards

- Gungnir = A weapon that strikes true, blessed and cursed in equal measure.
- The Eye of Odin = Odin's missing eye, which grants the wielder visions of the future. One use. The wielder can choose an effect from Loki's Severe Favour.
- Runes of the Allfather = The character who defeats Odin can choose one divine Rune that grants a permanent bonus (+2 to any ability of their choosing). This Rune also allows the character to cast one of Odin's Runes (from his runic abilities) once per day.

HP	75	Armour	Armour of the allfather −d3
Bonus	+3DR to all PC Defence	Immunity	Odin is immune to stunned and prone

Attacks

Gungnir

Damage d12+4 melee/ranged

Effects

Odin wields Gungnir, his spear—a weapon that rarely misses. Gungnir pierces through normal armour—only inscribed armour can reduce its damage.

He can target up to three enemies with one throw. Once thrown, it always returns, like fate on a string.

Raven's Talons

Damage d8+3

Effects

Odin commands his ravens, Huginn and Muninn, to attack a character, dealing damage and giving Odin insight into that character's weaknesses. That character suffers −2 to defence for the next d4 rounds.

Special

Spear of Fate

Uses Once Per Battle

Odin can imbue Gungnir with runes of fate, allowing him to hit every enemy within sight. Each player must Test Swift DR16 to avoid being struck.

Fate's Unyielding Grip

Uses Once Per Battle

Odin doesn't just bend fate—he grabs it by the throat.

Odin may turn a player's critical success into a fumble or take back his own failure, turning it into a success. This can be done once per battle, typically at a pivotal moment.

The Wild Hunt

Uses Once Per Battle

Odin calls Sleipnir, his eight-legged horse, and charges forward like an unstoppable avalanche.

Every character in his path must Test Swift DR14 or take 3d6 damage, trampled by the weight of legend itself. Those hit are knocked prone, staring up at the Allfather's shadow.

Master of Runes

Uses One Rune Per Round

Odin commands the Runes like a poet commands words, each one written with blood and power. He casts a Rune each round:

- Rune of Protection = All damage Odin takes for the next round is halved.
- Rune of Binding = Odin targets a character and binds them in runic chains. Test Fortitude DR14 to break free. Until freed, they are stunned.
- Rune of Strength = Odin increases his damage for the next 3 rounds, adding +3 to all damage rolls.
- Rune of Sight = Odin sees into the future. He automatically avoids the next successful attack against him.
- Rune of the Storm = Odin calls forth a storm dealing d8 damage to all enemies he can see, forcing them to Test Fortitude DR12 or be knocked prone.
- Rune of the Dead = Odin raises the spirits of fallen warriors from Valhalla as d4 Einherjar join the fight.

Fury of the Allfather

Activates at HP<20

When Odin's HP dips below 20, the Allfather drops his godly composure, unleashing the beast he used to be—a raw, bloodied warrior who knows only how to destroy.

- × Odin can now make two attacks per round, either using Gungnir, Raven's Talons or both.
- × Odin is immune to all conditions except blindness.

The Battlefield Trembles

As Odin enters this state, the battlefield begins to crumble. The environment becomes unstable, and at the start of each round characters must Test Swift DR14 to avoid taking d6 damage from collapsing structures, fissures, or the very sky breaking apart.

THE WATCHER OF THE BIFROST

Heimdall isn't just a guardian—he's the quiet power of duty, the immovable resolve of a protector who watches the tides of fate crash against his station. Every swing of Hofund, every step he takes, is deliberate, precise, and unshakable. To fight him is to face the certainty of a being who will not falter, even at the end.

Running Heimdall

- Heightened Senses = Heimdall isn't just a fighter—he's a watcher, always one step ahead. Use Guardian's Sight to frustrate ranged attackers and make Heimdall feel untouchable.
- Control the Field = Abilities like Gjallarhorn and Blinding Radiance make Heimdall a master of crowd control. Blind, stun, and summon allies to overwhelm the party while Heimdall methodically picks them apart.
- Final Stand = Heimdall should fight hardest when he's at his weakest. Lean into his Final Stand, making the players feel like they're battling an immovable force. His Oath should be a last, terrifying reminder of his dedication to Asgard.

Loot and Rewards

- Gjallarhorn = This legendary horn can be blown once per day to stun all enemies within earshot for one round. Test Wits DR14 to activate.
- Hofund = A powerful sword that deals d10+3* damage. Once per day, it can release a shock wave, knocking enemies close to it prone.
- Heimdall's Sight = A blessing that grants the wielder the ability to see through illusions and spot hidden enemies. Once per day, the character can automatically avoid an incoming attack by predicting it.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP 55 Armour Golden Asgardian Armour −d2

Bonus +2DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Hofund, The Guardian's Sword

Damage d10+3

Effects

Heimdall's sword, Hofund, glows with divine energy. On a defence fumble, the sword releases a shock wave, knocking back all enemies. Test Swift DR16 or be knocked prone.

Blinding Radiance

Damage d6+4 ranged

Effects

Heimdall can channel the radiant energy of the Bifrost, releasing a blinding light. Enemies close to Heimdall must Test Guile DR12 or gain blindness for 1 round.

Special

Horn of Gjallarhorn

Uses Once Per Battle

When Heimdall blows Gjallarhorn, the sound shakes reality itself, calling Vakten to his aid and striking fear into all who hear it.

Heimdall summons d4 Vakten.

The sound of Gjallarhorn causes all enemies that can hear to Test Wits DR14 or be stunned for 1 round.

Guardian's Sight

Uses Every round

Heimdall's all-seeing eyes pierce through shadows and deceptions. He anticipates attacks before they even begin.

Increase the DR to hit by +2 for one ranged attack per round, as he sees it coming before it happens.

Bifrost Strike

Uses Once Per Battle

A searing beam of the Bifrost descends from the heavens at Heimdall's command, tearing through his enemies like a wrathful god's judgement.

Heimdall summons a beam of Bifrost from the sky, targeting up to two enemies. Each must Test Swift DR14 or take d8+2 damage. If the target is wearing non-inscribed armour, they suffer disadvantage on their next defence.

Battle Sense

Uses Once Per Battle

Heimdall's unmatched awareness turns him into a whirlwind of divine precision.

Once per battle, Heimdall can choose to act thrice in one round, making three attacks in a single round.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Final Stand

Activates at HP<15

When pushed to his limit, Heimdall becomes an unyielding wall of defence, embodying Asgard's last hope.

- Heimdall gains +2 armour.
- He adds an additional +2 DR to all PC defence.
- Heimdall also attacks twice per round while in this state, refusing to go down without a fight.

Heimdall's Oath

If defeat is certain, Heimdall sacrifices himself in a final, devastating blow. All enemies close to him take 4d6 damage, his dying act a testament to his unwavering duty.

Freyja
Goddess of War and Magic

Freyja is more than a goddess of war—she's a symbol of life, death, and everything in between. On the battlefield, she commands not just swords, but Valkyries, magic, and raw, unyielding will. Fighting her isn't just combat—it's standing against the chaos of war itself, guided by the ancient wisdom.

Running Freyja

- Commanding Presence = Freyja should feel untouchable at first, a war goddess orchestrating chaos while her Valkyries shield her from harm. Keep her on the move, using Seiðr magic to summon mist, curse, and empower.
- Valkyrie Strategy = Her Valkyries are not just fodder—they are extensions of her will. Use them to pressure the characters, forcing them to split their focus while Freyja rains down magic from a safe distance.
- Final Fury = Freyja's Last Stand should feel like the goddess herself has reached into her divine reserves to crush the characters. If they hesitate, her regenerative fury and Valkyrie summons will overwhelm them.

Loot and Rewards

- Brísingamen = A necklace which grants its wearer not only unparalleled beauty but also the power to control emotions and summon divine protection.
- Wand of Seiðr = A magical wand that deals d8+3 damage. Once per day, Test Wits DR14 to cast a powerful spell. All allies gain advantage on defence for d3* rounds.
- Freyja's Amulet = A magical amulet that grants the wearer the ability to summon a Valkyrie once per day to aid in battle for d6* rounds.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP 55	Armour Magical wards and runes –d2
Bonus +3DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Hogni's Blade

Damage d10+2

Effects

Freyja's strikes with this blade are swift and purposeful, a seamless blend of elegance and brutality.

Wand of Seiðr

Damage d8+3 ranged

Effects

Freyja wields a magical wand, allowing her to cast bolts of Seiðr energy. If non-inscribed armour is hit, it is degraded one tier.

Special

Valkyries' Command

Uses Once Per Battle

Freyja calls upon the deadly spirits of Fólkvangr to fight by her side, commanding their loyalty with the weight of eternity.

Freyja summons 2 Valkyries to assist her in combat. If a Valkyrie is killed, Freyja can sacrifice *d8*HP to immediately summon another.

Fólkvangr's Blessing

Uses Once Per Battle

The spirits of the honoured dead pour their power into Freyja and her allies, bolstering their will to fight.

Freyja and her allies (including summoned Valkyries) gain +2 Armour and heal *d6*HP.

Seiðr Magic

Uses Every round

Freyja wields Seiðr magic with devastating precision, turning the battlefield into a theatre of chaos and control.

Each round, she casts one magical effect:

- Mist of Fólkvangr = Freyja summons a thick, magical mist that obscures the battlefield. All enemies must Test Guile DR14 or attack with disadvantage for the next round.
- Goddess of Fertility = Freyja blesses herself or an ally, granting +2 damage for the next round.
- Seiðr's Hex = Freyja places a curse on a single target. The target must Test Fortitude DR14 or take d6 damage at the start of the next round and suffer disadvantage on defence and parry.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Last Stand

Activates at HP<20

When Freyja's health drops below 20HP, her divine rage manifests, and she becomes even more dangerous.

- × Freyja gains an additional +2 to all PC defence.
- × She gains 2 Valkyrie at the start of Last Stand.
- × While in this state, Freyja attacks twice per round.
- × When Freyja is defeated, her Valkyries also disappear.

Battle Fury

If an enemy is broken or dies from one of her attacks, she regains *d6*HP as her connection to the fallen warriors of Fólkvangr strengthens her.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Frigg
Goddess of Fate and Wisdom

Frigg isn't just a combatant—she's inevitable. Every move she makes feels deliberate, as though the battle has already been written, as her threads tighten around the players' choices. Fighting her is like fighting fate itself—unforgiving, unrelenting, and inescapable.

Running Frigg

- Master of Control = Frigg's abilities make her the puppet master of fate. Use Weaver of Fate to force rerolls, keeping players guessing and robbing them of certainty.
- Defensive Precision = Frigg isn't a brawler; she uses her Blessing to shield herself and her allies, while softening up enemies with curses and entangling threads. Play her as untouchable, always a step ahead.
- Unstoppable in the Last Prophecy = When her Last Prophecy triggers, Frigg becomes almost untouchable. Use this moment to turn the battlefield into a web of fate, overwhelming characters with her control and pushing them to act quickly before her visions consume them entirely.

Loot and Rewards

- Spindle of Fate = A magical spindle that grants its wielder limited control over destiny. Once per day, it allows the user to reroll any unsuccessful Test, pulling the strings of fate in their favour.
- Frigg's Cloak of Woven Fate = A cloak woven from threads of destiny, granting +2 armour and the ability to foresee danger once per session (automatically negating a Wrath of the Gods effect).
- Blessing of Frigg = A divine boon that shields the bearer from death's grasp. Once per session, upon death, the character is instead restored to 1HP, protected by Frigg's foresight.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP	45	Armour	Fate woven cloak −d3
Bonus	+2DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Spindle of Fate

Damage d8+2

Effects

Frigg throws enchanted threads of fate that twist and coil around her enemies. On a defence fumble, the target is entangled in the threads and stunned for 1 round.

Woven Curse

Damage d6+3 ranged

Effects

Frigg curses her enemies with a spoken word of power. The target must Test Fortitude DR12 or suffer disadvantage on their next attack as the curse disrupts their focus.

Special

Weaver of Fate

Uses Once Per Battle

Frigg pulls the threads of destiny taut, forcing the flow of events to bend to her will.

Frigg can force a player to reroll any successful Test once per battle.

Frigg's Blessing

Uses Once Per Battle

As the protector of life and the matron of wisdom, Frigg can shield herself or an ally with divine power.

Frigg grants +3 armour to herself or an ally for 3 rounds, shielding them from harm with the power of fate. In addition, if the target dies during this time, they are restored to 1HP.

Threads of Destiny

Uses Once Per Battle

Frigg binds her enemies with strands of fate, or cuts them off entirely from the flow of destiny.

Frigg targets a character and forces them to Test Wits DR16.

- Success = They resist, but are still bound by fate and suffer −2 to all Tests for the next 2 rounds.
- Failure = The target is temporarily cut off from fate and cannot receive any healing, magical buffs, or divine intervention (Fates) for the next 3 rounds.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

The Last Prophecy

Activates at HP<20

When Frigg's health drops below 20HP, her foresight sharpens and she becomes one with the weave of fate.

× Frigg sees every outcome for the next 3 rounds. The DR to hit her is increased by an additional d6.

Fate's Chosen

Frigg selects a champion, turning fate against her foes by bending their will to her purpose. She can do this only once.

Frigg selects one of her enemies to fight for her and grants them automatic success on their next Test. Test Wits DR16 or be compelled to fight for Frigg for d4 rounds.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

TYR
GOD OF WAR AND JUSTICE

Tyr is more than a warrior—he's a living symbol of sacrifice, duty, and the pursuit of balance. His presence on the battlefield is relentless and commanding, his every move carrying the weight of his divine purpose.

Running Tyr

- Relentless Combatant = Tyr's approach should feel unrelenting. Use Sword of Tyr for heavy damage while keeping characters on edge with his Arm of Justice knockbacks.
- Sacrificial Power = Lean into Strike of Sacrifice when the moment calls for it, showing Tyr's willingness to put himself in harm's way to uphold justice.
- Last Push = When Tyr's Unyielding Resolve activates, ramp up the intensity. His final phase should make the characters feel the weight of his fury—he won't fall easily, and his every move demands their full focus.

Loot and Rewards

- Sword of Tyr = This powerful sword deals d12+4* damage and, once per day, can deal an additional d12* damage on a critical hit.
- Tyr's Ethereal Shield = This shield grants +2 armour and, once per day, can be used to block all damage from a single attack.
- Blessing of Justice = This blessing allows the character to compel a single enemy to accept a holmgang. During the duel, the character gains +4 to attacks against the enemy.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP	65	Armour	Asgardian battle armour −d2
Bonus	+5DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Sword of Tyr

Damage d12+4

Effects

Tyr's sword strikes with overwhelming force, cutting through armour with ease. On a defence fumble, the sword deals an additional d6 damage and stuns the target for 1 round.

Arm of Justice

Damage d6+2

Effects

Tyr slams his fist into his opponent, knocking them back and disorienting them. The target must Test Fortitude DR12 or be knocked prone.

Special

Shield of Honour

Uses Once Per Battle

Tyr's unwavering sense of duty manifests as an ethereal shield, protecting both him and his allies.

Tyr creates a divine shield that protects him and his allies for d4 rounds. This shield reduces all incoming damage by half for its duration.

Battlecry of Justice

Uses Once Per Battle

Tyr's voice carries across the battlefield, demoralizing his enemies and rallying his allies.

Enemies within earshot must Test Fortitude DR14 or suffer −1 to all Tests for 2 rounds as they are demoralised by Tyr's unyielding strength and honour.

Strike of Sacrifice

Uses Once Per Battle

Tyr channels his belief in justice through a devastating strike, sacrificing his own strength to deliver a crushing blow.

Tyr delivers a powerful blow with his sword that deals 3d12+4 damage. However, the force of the attack causes Tyr to suffer 2d8 damage himself as the strain of the strike takes its toll.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Unyielding Resolve

Activates at HP<20

When Tyr's HP drops below 20, his resolve and sense of justice make him even more dangerous. He refuses to go down without a fight.

- DR for defence increases by an additional +2.
- His attacks deal an additional d6 damage.
- Tyr attacks twice per round in this state, refusing to back down.
- Battle Surge. For every enemy Tyr defeats, he regains *d8*HP (to a maximum of 20HP).

Trial of Justice

Tyr can call upon his divine authority as the god of justice to challenge a single enemy to a holmgang. He can do this only once.

For the next 3 rounds, Tyr and the target are locked in combat. Both Tyr and the target gain +2 to all attacks against each other, and any attacks made by other enemies or allies during this duel are at disadvantage and risk incurring wrath of the gods.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

VIDAR
GOD OF VENGEANCE

Vidar is a god of raw power, embodying the inevitability of vengeance. His attacks hit with crushing finality, and his presence on the battlefield demands respect. Facing Vidar is not just a fight—it's a reckoning, one that forces the party to match his unstoppable will or be shattered beneath it.

Running Vidar

- Brutal Precision = Vidar's attacks should feel heavy and deliberate. Use Crushing Stomp early to destabilise the party, forcing them to regroup while Vidar punishes any missteps with his sword or fists.
- Vengeance Unleashed = Lean into Vengeful Strike when Vidar suffers a significant blow, or if the party has already killed an Aesir god, when the time feels right.
- Final Fury = As Vidar approaches low health, his Indomitable Will transforms the battlefield into a desperate struggle for survival. His increased damage and double attacks make him a terrifying presence that demands focus.

Loot and Rewards

- Vidar's Blade = A massive sword that deals d12+6* damage. Once per day, it can ignore armour and deal an additional 2d12* damage on a single strike. After that strike, you become fatigued.
- Iron Shoe of Vidar = This iron shoe grants the wearer +2 armour and allows them to perform a Crushing Stomp. Once per day, Test Might DR12 to deal d8* damage to all enemies close to you and also knock them prone.
- Blessing of Vengeance = This blessing allows the character to gain +4 to a single attack when striking back after a significant loss or injury. Once per day, when reduced to 10HP or lower, the character can make a Vengeful Strike, dealing 2d12* damage to an enemy that hurt them or their ally.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP	60	Armour	Armour made from shoes of the dead −d3
Bonus	+3DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Vidar's Blade

Damage d12+2

Effects

Vidar's massive sword deals devastating damage, cutting through most armour with ease. On a defence fumble armour is degraded an additional tier.

Fist of Vengeance

Damage d8+4

Effects

Vidar's unarmed strike is powerful enough to crush bones. If the target is stunned or knocked prone, this attack deals an additional d8 damage.

Special

Crushing Stomp

Uses Once Per Battle

With his massive iron shoe, Vidar delivers a crushing blow that reverberates across the battlefield. Vidar stomps the ground or his target, causing an earthquake or crushing blow.

- Ground = The stomp causes the ground to quake, forcing all enemies close to him to Test Swift DR14 or be knocked prone and take d6 damage from the shock wave.
- Target = Deals 2d8 damage to a single enemy and knocks them prone.

Unstoppable Force

Uses Passive

Vidar's sheer strength makes him nearly impossible to slow down or stop in battle.

Vidar cannot be stunned or knocked prone by normal means. Any attempts automatically fail unless they involve runic magic or inscribed weapons.

Vengeful Strike

Uses Once Per Battle

If any other Aesir god has been killed or he is struck down himself, his rage empowers him to unleash a devastating attack.

Vidar gains +4 to his next attack and deals 2d12+4 damage on his next successful hit, which can only be activated if:

- He has taken more than 12 damage in a single hit.
- An Aesir god has been felled by the party.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Indomitable Will

Activates at HP<15

When Vidar is on the verge of defeat, his resolve and physical strength only increase.

- Vidar gains +2 armour
- He gains +4 to all damage rolls.
- Vidar attacks twice per round, pushing forward with raw, unrelenting vengeance.

Fenrir's Bane

Destined to bring down the wolf Fenrir, Vidar channels this same unstoppable strength into a single, monumental attack. He can do this only once. The attack ignores non-inscribed armour and deals 3d12+6 damage, devastating a single target.

After using Fenrir's Bane, Vidar is left vulnerable, and enemies attacking him gain advantage for the next d4 rounds as he recovers.

THOR
GOD OF THUNDER

Thor isn't just a warrior—he's the storm itself. Every attack should feel like a hammer blow from the heavens, and every roar of thunder a reminder that even gods tremble when he fights. When he enters his berserk state the players will understand why he's the defender of Asgard and a force that no mortal—or immortal—takes lightly.

Running Thor

- The Storm Unleashed = Thor's attacks should feel relentless, like a thunderstorm bearing down on the party. Use Mjölnir's Strike and Thunderous Charge to keep the party constantly on the defensive.
- Wrath Personified = When Thor takes heavy damage, Wrath of the Thunderer brings devastating payback.
- Unstoppable Rage = Thor's final phase is his deadliest. Combine his double attacks with Mjölnir's Wrath to make his berserk state a desperate race for survival.

Loot and Rewards

- Mjölnir = Mjölnir is the fabled hammer of Thor, the god of thunder, renowned for its unrelenting strength and its ability to summon the power of the storm.
- Thor's Gauntlets = These gauntlets grant the wearer +2 armour and allow them to deal an additional d6+2* damage. Once per day, the wearer can call down lightning to strike a single target for d8* damage.
- Belt of Strength = This belt increases the wearer's Might by +2 and allows them to perform one Thunderous Charge per day, knocking enemies prone and dealing d10+3* damage.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP 80 Armour Thor's armour & Mjölnir's magic –d3

Bonus +6DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Mjölnir's Strike

Damage d12+4 melee/ranged

Effects

Thor swings Mjölnir with all his might. On a successful hit, lightning splits from the hammer to the nearest enemy. Test Swift DR14 or take d10 damage.

Thor can also throw his hammer, which always returns to his hand.

Thunderous Charge

Damage d10+3

Effects

Thor charges into battle with thunderous force, smashing into his enemies. All enemies in his path must Test Swift DR14 or be knocked prone. Thor can make one follow-up attack after the charge against a single prone target, dealing an additional d6+2 damage.

Special

Summon Lightning

Uses Once Per Battle

Thor calls down the full force of the storm to obliterate a single foe.

Thor calls down a blast of lightning to strike the enemy with the longest Saga. The enemy must Test Fortitude DR16 or take d100 damage.

Wrath of the Thunderer

Uses Once Per Battle

When Thor is dealt 10 or more damage in a single blow, the attacker must Test Might DR14; failure means Thor retaliates with Mjölnir's Strike immediately.

Defender of Asgard

Uses Once Per Battle

As the protector of Asgard, Thor instinctively defends himself or his allies, using Mjölnir to block attacks or retaliate against enemies that threaten those under his protection.

Once per battle, when Thor or an ally is attacked, Thor can use Mjölnir to deflect the blow. The attacker must Test Might DR14; on a failure, the attack is completely negated and Thor can immediately make a retaliatory strike against the attacker using Mjölnir's Strike.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Unstoppable Rage

Activates at HP<25

When Thor is severely injured, his berserkr rage takes over, making him nearly unstoppable.

- Attack DR to hit Thor increases by +2.
- Thor gains +4 to all damage rolls and attacks twice per round.
- Thor becomes immune to all conditions.
- He regenerates *d6*HP every time he lands a hit (to a maximum of 25HP).

Mjölnir's Wrath

In moments of dire need, Thor can call upon the full power of Mjölnir, channelling its divine energy in a single, all-consuming strike that shakes the very heavens and earth. He can do this only once and only during his Unstoppable Rage.

Thor targets all enemies he can see and unleashes a devastating blow, striking with lightning-infused fury. This attack ignores non-enchanted armour, dealing 4d10+5 lightning damage to each target.

JÖRMUNGANDR
THE WORLD SERPENT

Every attack and ability should feel overwhelming, from the crushing power of its coils to the battlefield-altering effects of its presence. Let the players feel like they're battling a myth itself, one that shakes the very ground and sea around them.

Running Jormungandr

- Battlefield Dominance = Use Tidal Wave and Venomous Breath early to disrupt the party's positioning and weaken their cohesion.
- Target Weaknesses = Focus Venomous Bite on heavily armoured characters to degrade their defences, while using Constricting Coil to eliminate high-damage threats.
- Endgame Fury = Once Jörmungandr enters his final phase, his thrashes and Worldbreaker's Wrath should force the characters into a desperate scramble to avoid annihilation.

Loot and Rewards

- Fang of Jörmungandr = A massive, venomous fang that can be fashioned into a weapon. It deals d10+4* damage and delivers a poison that causes d6* poison damage over 2 rounds.
- Jörmungandr's Scales = Thick, impenetrable scales that can be crafted into armour. Armour made from these scales grants +2 armour and resistance to poison (half damage from poison effects).
- The Serpent's Blessing = A blessing from Jörmungandr that grants the character immunity to poison and the ability to breathe underwater. Once per day, the character can summon a tidal wave which deals d8* damage and knocks enemies prone.

HP 90	Armour Thick, metallic scales –d3
Bonus +5DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Venomous Bite

Damage d12+6

Effects

The bite delivers a potent venom. The target must Test Fortitude DR14 at the start of each round. Failure causes d6 damage and disadvantage on all Tests that round. On a hit, non-enchanted armour degrades by 1 tier.

Tail Sweep

Damage d10+4

Effects

Jörmungandr sweeps his massive tail across the battlefield, knocking down multiple enemies. All targets Test Swift DR12 or take d10+4 damage and be knocked prone.

Special

Venomous Breath

Uses Once Per Battle

Jörmungandr can unleash a cloud of poisonous gas from his maw, spreading across the battlefield and infecting anyone caught in it. All enemies caught in it must Test Fortitude DR14 or become poisoned.

Tidal Wave

Uses Once Per Battle

The serpent's presence disrupts the ocean itself, summoning a massive wave.

Jörmungandr summons a massive wave that crashes across the battlefield. All creatures must Test Might DR14 or be swept away, taking d8 damage and being knocked prone.

Effect on Terrain = After the wave hits, the battlefield becomes slippery and flooded, forcing all characters to Test Swift DR12 at the start of each round or move slower due to the difficult terrain. This effect lasts for d4 rounds.

Constricting Coil

Uses Once Per Battle

Jörmungandr can wrap his massive body around multiple enemies, crushing them with his enormous strength.

Jörmungandr targets up to 2 enemies, attempting to constrict them in his coils. The targets must Test Might DR14 to avoid being caught. If caught, the targets take 3d6 damage each round they remain constricted and must Test Might DR14 at the start of each round to break free.

If they fail, they remain constricted and take additional damage each round until freed or killed.

Ragnarok's End

Activates at HP<30

When Jörmungandr is severely injured he begins to thrash, making the battlefield even more dangerous.

× Any time he is successfully hit with a melee attack, Test Swift DR14 or take d12 damage.

Worldbreaker's Wrath

Jörmungandr can unleash his full power, striking the earth with his tail and causing catastrophic damage. The World Serpent can do this only once.

Jörmungandr slams his massive tail into the ground, causing earthquakes that ripple across the battlefield. All enemies in battle must Test Fortitude DR16 or take 3d10 damage and be knocked prone.

Additionally, the terrain becomes shattered and unstable, causing characters to Test Swift DR14 each round to avoid taking d6 damage from the broken ground.

FENRIR
THE DEVOVRER

Fenrir should be a terrifying, primal force—a predator that embodies the inevitability of death and vengeance. Every attack and ability should feel personal, like he's targeting each character with intent to destroy. Let the final phase turn into a chaotic, frenzied battle where the characters are fighting for their lives.

Running Fenrir

- Hunt and Destroy = Use Pounce and Savage Bite to incapacitate key targets early. Fenrir should feel like he's always one step ahead, stalking and striking with precision.
- Push the Pressure = His Devour ability forces the party into high-stakes decisions, requiring teamwork to save swallowed allies while dealing with his relentless attacks.
- Rage Unleashed = Fenrir's Ragnarök's Rage phase should feel overwhelming. Use his double attacks and triple damage fumbles to create an intense, do-or-die finale.

Loot and Rewards

- Fang of Fenrir = A massive fang that can be crafted into a weapon or enchanted for protection. As a weapon, it deals d12+6* damage.
- Hide of Fenrir = Thick, impenetrable hide that can be crafted into armour. Armour made from Fenrir's hide grants +3 armour and immunity to being knocked prone.
- Fenrir's Essence = This powerful essence can be used to imbue a character's weapon with Ragnarök's Rage, allowing them to double their damage (quadruple on a critical hit) for one battle. However, using the essence puts the wielder at risk of losing control. Test Wits DR12 to resist attacking the nearest ally.

HP 80	Armour Thick hide –d3
Bonus +4DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Savage Bite

Damage d12+6

Effects

On a defence fumble, Fenrir deals an additional d6 damage and the target's armour is weakened, reducing its effectiveness by 1 tier.

Claw Slash

Damage d8+4

Effects

If Fenrir's claw attack lands, the target must Test Fortitude DR14 or begin to bleed (d4 damage per round until the character receives healing).

Special

Devour

Uses Once Per Battle

Fenrir's infamous attack can swallow enemies whole, turning the battlefield into a scene of desperate survival.

Fenrir targets one enemy. The target must Test Swift or Might DR16 (player's choice) or be swallowed whole.

If swallowed, the character takes 4d6 damage each round from being crushed and suffocated within Fenrir's stomach.

The target can attempt to cut their way out by attacking from within, they must roll a critical hit or deal 18 damage in one round to escape. Allies can also help deal the 18 damage necessary in a round, or roll a critical hit from the outside to free them.

If the target is not freed within 4 rounds, they are killed outright. If they are considered a follower of Odin, the time limit is 2 rounds.

Pounce

Uses Once Per Battle

Fenrir can leap massive distances, pinning a single enemy to the ground and savaging them with his claws. Test Might DR14 to avoid being pinned.

If pinned, the target takes d8+4 damage at the beginning of each round and must Test Might DR16 to break free.

While pinned, the pinned enemy defends with disadvantage.

Ragnarok's Rage

Activates at HP<25

When Fenrir is wounded, he enters a berserk state, attacking anything in sight with uncontrollable fury.

- The DR to defend increases by +2.
- All attacks deal an additional d6 damage.
- Fenrir attacks twice per round.
- In this state, Fenrir is immune to all conditions except poisoned.
- Defence fumbles against Fenrir deal triple damage instead of double.

Fangs of Ragnarök

Fenrir attacks with devastating speed and power, ensuring no escape for his prey. He can do this only once.

Fenrir makes two attacks in a single round. Both attacks deal 2d12+6 damage. The second attack automatically hits any target that has already been pinned or swallowed.

NIDHOGG
THE CORPSE EATER

Nidhogg should feel relentless. His attacks sap strength, his abilities corrupt and trap, and his presence is a constant drain on the party's resources. The fight becomes increasingly dire as he enters his final phase, embodying the inevitable decay he represents.

Running Nidhogg

- Corruption First = Start with Breath of Decay to weaken the party, making every subsequent attack hit harder.
- Control the Fight = Use The Roots of Yggdrasil to trap key characters and reduce their ability to defend or attack effectively.
- Finish with Fury = In Death's Awakening, turn up the intensity. His regeneration and increased damage force characters to focus their attacks or risk losing momentum in the fight.

Loot and Rewards

- Fang of Nidhogg = A sharp, necrotic fang that can be fashioned into a weapon. It deals d10+4* damage and causes an additional d6* damage per round for d4* rounds unless healed by magic.
- Nidhogg's Scales = Thick, blackened scales that can be crafted into armour. Armour made from these scales grants +3 armour.
- Blessing of Nidhogg = The blessing of Nidhogg grants +2 to all Tests when fighting undead or creatures from the underworld. Once per day, the character can summon necrotic roots to entangle enemies (DR14 to resist, d8 damage per round).

HP	75	Armour	Corrupted scales that absorb damage −d3
Bonus	+3DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Corrupting Bite

Damage d12+4

Effects

On a defence fumble, Nidhogg's bite corrupts the target. They must strike the tale they are proudest of from their Saga.

Tail Whip

Damage d8+3

Effects

Nidhogg sweeps his tail across the battlefield, forcing all enemies to Test Swift DR12 or take d8+3 damage and be knocked prone.

Necrotic Breath

Damage d10+4 ranged

Effects

Nidhogg breathes a concentrated stream of necrotic energy, targeting a single enemy. If the target fails a Fortitude Test DR14, they take d10+4 damage and suffer d6 damage for the next d4 rounds.

Special

Breath of Decay

Uses Once Per Battle

Nidhogg exhales a cloud of necrotic energy that causes rapid decay in anything it touches, corrupting both flesh and metal. All enemies must Test Fortitude DR14 or take 2d8 damage.

If affected, enemies also suffer −2 to all Might Tests for d4 rounds as the decay saps their strength.

Non-enchanted armour caught in the cloud is also weakened, reducing its effectiveness by 1 tier.

Soul Drain

Uses Once Per Battle

Nidhogg feeds on the life force of his enemies, draining their vitality to sustain his own power.

Nidhogg targets one enemy and drains their life force. The target must Test Fortitude DR16 or take 3d6 damage. Nidhogg regains the damage dealt as HP.

Deathly Stare

Uses Once Per Battle

Nidhogg can peer into the souls of his enemies. The Corpse Eater stares at an enemy and they must Test Wits DR14 to avoid the gaze.

If failed, the target gains +4 to attacks and must attack their most trusted ally. The effects last for d3 rounds.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Death's Awakening

Activates at HP<25

When Nidhogg is close to death, his connection to the underworld strengthens, making him even more dangerous as he taps into the power of the dead.

- Nidhogg gains an additional +3 to all defence Tests.
- He regenerates *d6*HP per round (to a maximum of 25HP).
- All of Nidhogg's attacks during this time deal an additional d6 damage.
- While in this state, Nidhogg is immune to all conditions.

The Roots of Yggdrasil

Nidhogg channels the dark, corrupted power of Yggdrasil, summoning deadly roots that entangle and strangle his enemies. He can do this only once.

Nidhogg calls forth roots from the ground, targeting up to 3 enemies. They must Test Swift DR14 to avoid being entangled. If entangled, the targets take d8 damage each round and must Test Might DR14 to break free.

The roots drain life energy, causing the entangled targets to suffer −2 to all Tests for the duration of the effect. The roots last for d4 rounds, after which they wither and die.

SURTR
LORD OF MUSPELHEIM

Surtr should feel like a living inferno. His attacks and abilities overwhelm characters with fire and destruction, forcing constant adaptation. His final phase embodies the fiery fury of Muspelheim, turning the fight into a desperate race against time.

Running Surtr

- Control the Battlefield = Use Firestorm and Lava Eruption early to scatter and weaken the party, forcing tactical movement.
- Punish Close Combat = Leverage Unquenchable Flame to deter melee combatants, while delivering devastating blows with Flaming Cleave.
- Final Blaze = In Fireborn Fury, focus on relentless attacks, pushing the characters to finish the battle quickly or risk being overwhelmed by Surtr's flames.

Loot and Rewards

- Sword of Surtr = This massive flaming sword deals d12+6* damage and deals an additional d6* fire damage to every strike. Once per day, the wielder can use it to summon a Firestorm, dealing 2d8* fire damage to all enemies they can see.
- Molten Armour = Surtr's armour can be crafted into molten plate that grants +3 armour and immunity to fire damage. Additionally, anyone who strikes the wearer in melee takes d6* fire damage.
- Surtr's Essence = A vial of Surtr's essence can be consumed to grant the user resistance to fire damage (taking only half damage) and +2 to Might Tests for one battle per day. However, after the battle, the user takes d6* fire damage due to the burning energy coursing through their body.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP 75 Armour Surtr's molten armour −d3

Bonus +4DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Flaming Cleave

Damage d12+6

Scorching Gaze

Damage d10+3 ranged

Effects

Surtr's eyes burn with the fire of Muspelheim. He can focus his gaze on a single target, dealing d10 fire damage. Test Guile DR14 or be blinded for d3 rounds.

Special

Firestorm

Uses Once Per Battle

Surtr can summon a firestorm that rains down flames across the battlefield, igniting everything in sight. All enemies he can see must Test Fortitude DR14 or take 2d8 fire damage.

The battlefield is then covered in flames for the next d4 rounds, causing any movement through the area to deal d6 fire damage to characters and reducing movement.

Unquenchable Flame

Uses Passive

Surtr's body is covered in unquenchable flames, making him nearly impossible to approach without being scorched.

Any enemy who strikes Surtr in melee takes d2 fire damage automatically, as the heat radiates from his body.

Surtr is immune to all fire-based damage and takes half damage from any magical attacks not related to water or cold.

Lava Eruption

Uses Once Per Battle

Surtr calls upon the power of Muspelheim, causing lava to erupt from beneath the battlefield, creating pools of molten rock.

Surtr targets a section of the battlefield, causing lava to erupt and form pools. All enemies in the area must Test Swift DR14 to avoid the eruption. If they fail, they take 3d6 fire damage and are knocked prone.

The pools of lava remain for the rest of the battle, forcing characters to Test Swift DR12 to avoid stepping in them, taking d6 fire damage on a failure.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Fireborn Fury

Activates at HP<25

When Surtr is severely injured, he enters a state of fiery fury, drawing upon the eternal flames of Muspelheim to fuel his final assault.

- When Surtr's HP drops below 25, he attacks twice per round.
- He imposes an additional +2 to all the PCs' defence Tests
- He deals an additional d6 fire damage on all of his attacks.
- Surtr also regenerates *d6*HP per round for d4 rounds (to a maximum of 25HP), as the flames of Muspelheim restore his strength.
- During this phase, Surtr's Unquenchable Flame ability deals double damage to anyone who strikes him in melee.

Ragnarök's Blaze

Surtr ignites the entire battlefield in a cataclysmic blaze. He can do this only once.

Surtr plunges his sword into the ground, causing flames to erupt across the battlefield. All enemies must Test Fortitude DR16 or take 2d8 fire damage and be set on fire (d6 fire damage per round).

HEL
GODDESS OF DEATH

Hel's presence on the battlefield should embody the inevitability of death—relentless, draining, and always in control. Her abilities to weaken the party, replenish her forces, and regenerate in her final phase create an uphill battle for the players, forcing them to plan carefully and strike decisively.

Running Hel

- Master of the Dead = Use Raise the Dead early to bolster Hel's defences and overwhelm the characters. Her abilities should keep the party on edge, forcing them to divide their attention.
- Control the Battlefield = Combine Aura of Despair with attacks like Soul Bolt to sap the party's strength and morale. Hel thrives on wearing her enemies down slowly, staying in control of the encounter.
- Final Stand = When Ruler of Helheim activates, Hel becomes a dire threat. Use her regeneration and boosted attacks to push the characters into a desperate battle for survival.

Loot and Rewards

- Hel's Sickle = A curved, necrotic blade that deals d8+3* cold damage. Any damage dealt with this weapon heals the user for the amount of damage dealt.
- Hel's Cloak = A cloak woven from the essence of death itself. It grants +2 armour. Once per day, the wearer can become intangible for d4 rounds, allowing them to move through objects and enemies. They also gain advantage on all defence for the duration of the effect.
- The Blessing of Hel = One time use. Activating this blessing allows the user to deal double damage to all Followers of Loki for one battle.

Attacks

Chilling Touch

Damage d8+3

Effects

On a successful hit, the target must Test Fortitude DR14 or lose 2 Might for the remainder of the encounter.

Soul Bolt

Damage d10+4 ranged

Effects

Necrotic energy siphons life force from the victim, healing Hel for the damage dealt.

Special

Raise the Dead

Uses Once Per Battle

Hel can summon the souls of the dead to fight on her behalf, bolstering her forces with spectral warriors.

Hel summons d4+1 Móðguðr's Sentinels to fight for her. While the undead are active, +2 DR to attacks made against Hel.

Aura of Despair

Uses Once Per Battle

Hel exudes an aura of hopelessness and despair, sapping the will of those who oppose her.

All enemies she can see must Test Wits DR14 or suffer disadvantage when attacking her for d6 rounds as they are overwhelmed by despair.

Death's Embrace

Uses Once Per Battle

A touch that freezes the soul.

Hel targets one enemy. The target must Test Fortitude DR16 or be stunned for d4 rounds, unable to act as the freezing embrace of death overtakes them.

If the target succeeds, they take d8 cold damage but are not stunned.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Ruler of Helheim

Activates at HP<20

When Hel is gravely wounded, she draws power from her dominion over the underworld, becoming more dangerous as she taps into the power of the dead.

- Once Hel's HP drops below 20, she attacks twice per round.
- She also causes an additional +2 to all defence Tests.
- She regenerates *d6*HP per round for the next 3 rounds (to a maximum of 20HP) as she draws power from the souls of Helheim.
- Death's Vengeance. During this time, all of Hel's attacks deal an additional d6 damage as her connection to the underworld strengthens.

The Reaping

Hel calls upon the dead to reap the souls of her enemies, dealing devastating damage to all who oppose her. She can do this only once.

Hel unleashes a wave of necrotic energy across the battlefield. All enemies must Test Fortitude DR16 or take 3d10 damage. If the Test is failed one random Rune is removed from a weapon or armour.

LOKI
THE TRICKSTER GOD

Loki's fight should be an exercise in chaos, forcing players to think quickly and adapt to ever-changing scenarios. From illusions to shape-shifting to reality manipulation, Loki's abilities embody her chaotic, mischievous nature, making the encounter as unpredictable as she is.

Running Loki

- Chaos and Unpredictability = Shift forms frequently and use illusions to keep the party guessing. Loki should manipulate the battlefield as if it's an extension of her will, forcing characters to adapt constantly.
- Mind Games = Use illusions and phantasms to disorient and isolate characters, creating tension and mistrust within the group.
- Final Phase = When Loki enters Loki's Wrath, ramp up the chaos. Her dual forms and shifting terrain should make her feel like a force of pure entropy.

Loot and Rewards

- Lævateinn = A dagger that deals d10+3* damage and multiplies into three shards when thrown, targeting up to three enemies. Once per day, it can bend reality, allowing the user to reroll a failed defence roll.
- The Mask of Lies = A cursed mask that grants the wearer automatic success on a Guile Test once per day. However, they are compelled to lie until the mask is removed.
- Trickster's Omen = A one-time-use relic that summons Fenrir (if alive) to fight alongside the character for d4* rounds.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

HP 70	Armour Loki's horned helm −d2
Bonus +4DR to all PC defence

Attacks

Lævateinn

Damage d10+3

Effects

Loki throws a dagger that multiplies into three chaotic shards mid-air, each hitting a separate target (roll three attacks against different characters).

Illusionary Claws

Damage d10+4 ranged

Effects

Loki creates multiple illusory claws equal to the number of PCs, slashing at all enemies. All characters must Test Swift DR12 or take d6 damage.

Special

Trickster's Illusion

Uses Once Per Battle

Loki can create three illusions of herself, confusing the characters. The illusions move and attack alongside her, making it difficult to discern the real Loki.

Test Wits DR14 To identify the real Loki.

- Success = The character can target the true Loki.
- Failure = The character strikes an illusion, which disappears immediately.

The illusions have 0HP and deal no damage.

Manipulation of Reality

Uses Once Per Battle

Once during the fight, Loki can bend reality to her will. Loki shifts the battlefield, changing the terrain, causing parts of the realm to collapse or conjuring dangerous environmental effects (such as fire, ice, or poisonous fog).

Test Swift DR14 to avoid environmental damage or take d6 damage.

Additionally, Loki can trap a single character in a phantasm—an illusory prison of the mind. The character must Test Wits DR16 to break free. Until they succeed, they are Stunned.

Shape-shifting Chaos

Uses Once Per Round

Loki can change her form each round, gaining different abilities based on her chosen form:

- Serpent Form = Gains +2 Armour and her bite deals d8+3 poison damage. Injured characters must Test Fortitude DR12 or take an additional d6 poison damage at the start of the next round.
- Wolf Form = Her bite deals d10 damage. If she hits a target, she may make an immediate second attack with Illusionary Claws for d6 damage.
- Crow Form = Loki transforms into a crow and takes to the skies. She cannot be targeted by melee attacks.

Berserkr Barebones · Slightly Reckless Games LTD © 2025

Loki's Wrath

Activates at HP<20

When Loki's HP drops below 20, her form begins to fracture and she becomes unhinged.

× Loki will start using two forms at once (e.g., Wolf + Serpent or Serpent + Crow). This grants her two attacks and dual special abilities each round.

Fate's Trick

Once during the fight, Loki can reverse the outcome of any single roll. She can turn a player rolled success into failure or a critical into a fumble. She might use this at a vital moment when the players think they've landed a final blow or when they are on the verge of defeating her.

Reality Shatters

The battlefield begins to break apart under her chaotic influence. Each round, the environment changes drastically, with areas catching fire, freezing over, or warping in impossible ways. Characters must Test Swift DR14 every round to avoid taking d6 damage from the shifting terrain.

Mjölnir
Thor's Hammer

Type	Warhammer
Damage	d12+4 melee/ranged
Special	Mjölnir automatically returns to the wielder's hand after being thrown.

Abilities

Thunderstrike — Every Round

Mjölnir calls upon the wrath of the storm to deal a powerful, lightning-infused strike.

On a successful hit, Mjölnir deals an additional d6* lightning damage to the target. On a critical hit, the lightning arcs to nearby enemies, dealing d6* lightning damage to them as well.

Hammer of the Gods — Once Per Battle

The power of the storm courses through Mjölnir, unleashing a devastating shock wave.

The wielder smashes Mjölnir into the ground, releasing a shock wave that knocks all enemies close to the attacker prone. They must Test Fortitude DR14 or take 2d8* damage from the impact and thunderclap.

Stormcaller — Once Per Day

The true power of Mjölnir lies in its ability to summon storms at the wielder's command.

Once per day, the wielder can call down a storm that lasts for d6* rounds. During this time, the wielder gains +2 to all attacks, and lightning strikes randomly across the battlefield, dealing d8* lightning damage to a single enemy each round (GM's choice).

Mjölnir is the fabled hammer of Thor, the god of thunder, renowned for its unrelenting strength and its ability to summon the power of the storm. Forged by the Dwarves Brokkr and Sindri, it is said to be one of the most powerful weapons in existence, capable of smashing through any defence and returning to its master's hand.

Only those of extraordinary might can hope to wield it, and doing so marks the bearer as a target for gods and giants alike

Lore/Quest Hook

Roll d6.

1	Thor's Challenge. Thor has noticed someone wielding his sacred weapon. He confronts the wielder, demanding a trial of strength and honour to prove their worthiness.
2	Giants' Wrath. The Jötnar have learned that Mjölnir has fallen into the hands of a mortal, and they send a group of Frost Giants to retrieve it, determined to avenge their countless defeats by Thor's hammer.
3	Dwarven Claim. The Dwarves Brokkr and Sindri demand Mjölnir's return, believing no one is worthy of wielding their creation except Thor. They send an emissary, offering a challenge: defeat them in a crafting contest or face their wrath.
4	Storm Unleashed. Uncontrolled use of Mjölnir draws the attention of Odin, who warns the wielder that such power comes with great responsibility. If the wielder continues abusing its power, they may face severe wrath.
5	The Rival's Ambition. Another powerful warrior seeks to claim Mjölnir for themselves, believing they are the true heir to Thor's might. They will stop at nothing to defeat the wielder and take the hammer for themselves.
6	Thor's Favour. Thor sends a Valkyrie to offer his blessing to the wielder if they use Mjölnir to complete a sacred quest in his name. Succeeding grants the wielder immunity to lightning damage.

GUNGNIR
The Spear of Odin

Type Spear

Damage d10+5 melee/ranged

Special Gungnir rarely misses. If the wielder fumbles, they may reroll the attack once without penalty.

Abilities

Odin's Precision — Passive

Gungnir is enchanted to never miss its target.

Gungnir grants +2 to all attacks. On a critical hit, the spear automatically ignores armour and deals an additional d8* damage (before doubling).

Runic Empowerment — Once Per Session

Gungnir's power comes from the runic magic engraved along its shaft. Activating the runes allows the wielder to unlock its full potential.

Once per session, the wielder can activate Gungnir's runes, causing it to glow with divine energy. For the next d4* rounds, the wielder gains an additional +4 to all attacks, and Gungnir's attacks deal double damage.

Odin's Command — Once Per Day

Gungnir can summon the power of the Allfather to intimidate or control enemies.

Once per day, the wielder can channel Odin's authority. Test Wits DR14 to compel enemies to either flee in fear or stand down for d4* rounds. The wielder can choose whether to terrify or compel submission (does not work on gods).

Gungnir is the mighty spear of Odin, said to have been crafted by the sons of Ivaldi. It is the symbol of Odin's authority and power, a spear that never misses its mark and is said to be imbued with runic magic, making it unbreakable and unstoppable.

Wielding Gungnir is a sign of immense power, but it also marks the wielder as a rival to Odin, which can bring divine attention from both friend and foe.

Lore/Quest Hook

Roll d6.

1	Odin's Judgement. Odin himself appears to the wielder, demanding Gungnir's return. The Allfather gives the wielder a choice. Serve him in Ragnarök or face his divine wrath.
2	The Sons of Ivaldi. The Dwarves who forged Gungnir learn of its current wielder and demand a sacrifice in return for allowing them to keep the spear. Refusal could lead to a dangerous encounter with the cunning craftsmen.
3	The Rival God. Another Aesir, Vanir or Jötunn god learns that the wielder holds Gungnir and challenges them to a holmgang for control of the weapon. The outcome could change the balance of power between the gods.
4	Runes of Power. Gungnir's runes begin to reveal more power, but only if the wielder can unlock them through sacrifice or rune knowledge. A quest to learn the hidden runes could lead to great rewards—or dangerous encounters.
5	The Betrayer. A trusted ally becomes consumed by jealousy or fear of Gungnir's power and betrays the wielder, seeking to steal the spear for their own gain. The betrayal comes at a critical moment, and the wielder must decide whether to spare them or exact vengeance.
6	The Eye of the Norns. The Norns, the weavers of fate, appear to the wielder of Gungnir, offering a vision of their future. In return, they demand a piece of the wielder's soul or a life-altering decision.

LÆVATEINN

Loki's Curséd Dagger

Type Dagger

Damage d10+3

Special When thrown, the blade multiplies into three shards targeting up to three separate enemies.

Abilities

Infernal Flame — Passive

Lævateinn is constantly wreathed in hellish fire.

On a successful hit, it deals an additional d6* fire damage and ignores 2 points of armour.

Chaotic Surge — Once Per Battle

The blade surges with chaotic power, releasing a blast of destruction.

Once per battle, the wielder can unleash a blast from Lævateinn, dealing 3d8* damage to all enemies close to the blade. The wielder must Test Fortitude DR14 or take d6* damage from the chaotic feedback.

Cursed Fate — Passive

Each time the wielder lands a critical hit, they must Test Wits DR14. On a failure, they are cursed, suffering −2 to all Tests for the next d6 rounds as the blade corrupts their mind.

If a fumble is rolled when attacking with Lævateinn, the wielder automatically takes 2d6* damage as the curse lashes out, and they lose *d6*HP permanently until a curse-breaking ritual is performed.

Forged by Loki herself, long ago, in a process unknown to any mastersmith, it cannot be destroyed by conventional means. It is said to possess the power to slay even the gods and bring ruin to the world.

Wielding Lævateinn grants great power, but also great risk, as the weapon's malevolent nature often turns against its user, corrupting both body and soul.

Lore/Quest Hook

Roll d6.

1	Forged in Fire. The fire giants of Muspelheim learn of Lævateinn's whereabouts and demand its return. Eldmir arrives to retrieve it by force.
2	The Curse Deepens. Lævateinn's curse worsens. The wielder experiences visions of Loki urging them to commit treachery, and they suffer from random blackouts during which their actions are not their own.
3	Loki's Hand. Loki herself becomes aware of the wielder and sends an emissary to make a pact: wield the blade in Ragnarök and gain untold power, or face her wrath for using it improperly.
4	Binding Ritual. A mysterious Dwarven craftsman offers to teach the wielder a ritual to bind Lævateinn's chaotic power, but it requires a blood sacrifice from an ally.
5	Madness Beckons. A group of berserkrs seeks out Lævateinn, claiming it as their birthright. They will stop at nothing to retrieve it, believing it will drive them to greater blood-lust.
6	The Flame Reforged. Rumours circulate that the only way to control Lævateinn fully is to reforge it in the fires of Muspelheim. A treacherous journey through the Realm of Fire awaits.

Brísingamen
The Necklace of Freyja

Type	Necklace
Damage	-
Special	Grants significant magical and social abilities.

Abilities

Divine Aura — Passive

The wearer of Brísingamen is surrounded by a divine aura of beauty and grace. All creatures find it difficult to harm the wearer.

Defence is made with advantage.

Freyja's Blessing — Once Per Day

Brísingamen grants divine protection to the wearer and their allies.

The wearer and all allies gain +2 to defence for d6* rounds as Brísingamen glows with divine light, shielding them from harm.

Sway of Hearts — Once Per Day

Brísingamen allows its wearer to manipulate the emotions of those around them, bending even the will of gods for a time.

The wearer can target one creature and Test Wits DR14; on a success, the creature is charmed for d4* rounds and cannot attack or harm the wearer.

On a failure, the creature becomes enraged, focusing its attacks on the wearer.

Brísingamen is the famous necklace worn by the goddess Freyja. It is a symbol of beauty and power, and has the ability to sway the hearts of mortals and gods alike. It grants its wearer not only unparalleled beauty but also the power to control the emotions of others and summon divine protection.

However, the necklace is known to be coveted by many, and possessing it may attract dangerous attention.

Lore/Quest Hook

Roll d6.

1	Dwarven Debt. The four Dwarves who forged Brísingamen come seeking payment, claiming Freyja never fully compensated them. They demand something of equal or greater value from the wearer or, otherwise they plan to take it by force.
2	Divine Retribution. Freyja herself notices the necklace is missing and sends a powerful Valkyrie to reclaim it. The Valkyrie offers the wearer a choice: return it peacefully or prepare for a deadly duel.
3	Hearts of Stone. The wearer's growing ability to manipulate hearts catches the attention of a jealous deity who curses them. For the next d6 days, their charm backfires, causing disadvantage on social Tests.
4	Love and War. The wearer draws the attention of a powerful mortal ruler who is infatuated with them due to Brísingamen's aura. The ruler's enemies, however, begin to hunt the wearer, believing them to be a threat.
5	Gift of Freyja. Freyja offers to bless the wearer even further, granting an additional ability for Brísingamen—but only if they complete a sacred quest in her name.
6	Eyes of the Aesir. The Aesir begin watching the wearer closely, suspicious of how they acquired Brísingamen. Thor or Tyr might intervene if they believe it has been stolen.

ANDVARANAUT

The Ring of Andvari, Bringer of Wealth & Doom

Type	Ring
Damage	-
Special	Grants wealth but carries dangerous consequences.

Abilities

Wealth of Andvari — Passive

The wearer of Andvaranaut attracts wealth wherever they go.

Once per day, the wearer can roll *d100 to determine the amount of Trinkets they find, steal, or otherwise acquire. However, after three uses, Test Wits DR14. On a failure, the found Trinkets are cursed, causing bad luck (disadvantage on all Tests for the next d4 days).

Greed's Grip — Passive

Andvaranaut slowly warps the mind of its wearer, turning their thoughts to greed and hoarding.

Each time the wearer uses Wealth of Andvari, they gain +1 to Fortitude but suffer −1 to Wits permanently, as their mind becomes obsessed with acquiring more wealth. If Wits drops below −2, the wearer is driven to madness, obsessed with Trinkets above all else.

Curse of Ruin — Triggered

The curse of Andvaranaut eventually manifests, bringing ruin to the wearer and those around them.

After 7 days of wearing the ring, the GM secretly rolls d6. On a 1, the curse is triggered, and the wearer suffers a calamity—losing half their wealth and having their possessions stolen or destroyed by enemies drawn to the cursed ring.

The curse can be lifted only by destroying Andvaranaut in the fires of Musphelheim or returning it to the Dwarves who forged it, though this will require a great quest.

Andvaranaut is a cursed ring once owned by the Dwarf Andvari, who imbued it with the power to bring great wealth to its bearer—at the cost of eventual ruin.

While the ring grants untold riches, its curse ensures that no fortune lasts, as it sows the seeds of greed and destruction in those who possess it. The wearer may enjoy temporary prosperity, but must be wary of the inevitable downfall.

Lore/Quest Hook

Roll d6.

1	Andvari's Curse. The original owner, the Dwarf Andvari, sends a vengeful spirit to reclaim his ring. The spirit stalks the wearer, causing mishaps and disasters until the ring is returned.
2	Ruin Beckons. A massive misfortune strikes the wearer—perhaps their gold hoard vanishes, or a powerful enemy plunders their wealth. They must seek a way to reverse this calamity, perhaps by consulting an ancient seer.
3	Tempted by Wealth. The wearer's growing greed draws the attention of Loki, who offers them a bargain: unimaginable riches in exchange for a favour during Ragnarök. Refusing could incur her wrath.
4	The Ring's Rival. Another powerful figure—perhaps a king or merchant prince—has heard of Andvaranaut's power and sends assassins to steal it. The wearer is hunted by relentless enemies who will stop at nothing to possess the ring.
5	Breaking the Curse. A mystic offers the wearer a chance to break Andvaranaut's curse, but only if they sacrifice something of great personal value—an ally, a magical item, or their own wealth.
6	The Allfather's Eye. Odin has become aware of the ring's presence and sends an emissary to test the wearer. If they fail, Odin may deem them unworthy to hold such power, cursing their fortunes even further.
